Mathis ordered to trial

NEW MADRID— Harold Mathis, 35, of Portageville charged with forcible rape Sunday of a 19- year old Portageville Route Three girl, was ordered to stand trial in Circuit Court when he waived a preliminary hearing on the charge Tuesday in Magistrate Court before Judge Leo Hedgepeth.

Bond for Mathis was set at $5,000.

Three Baldwyn, Miss., men, Larry Billips, Bobby Billips and Jackie Warner were bound over to Circuit court on a charge of possession of stolen property and bonds of $500 were set for each, when they waived a preliminary hearing.

The men were arrested in New Madrid by city police Monday night when they were seen in a 1968 Cadillac which had been reported stolen in Jackson, Miss. Two guns and some jewelry were discovered in a search of the vehicle. The men also waived extradition and consented to be returned to Tupelo, Miss., where they are charged with felonious stealing.

Leonard Crum of Columbia was bound over to Circuit Court on a charge of carrying a concealed dangerous and deadly weapon— a .22- caliber pistol. His bond was set at $500 when he waived a preliminary hearing.

Richard Louis Wilburn, a minor charged with possession of alcohol, was levied $65 fine, given a six-month suspended jail sentence and placed on probation.

Terry Michael Robison was fined $35 on a public intoxication charge.

Fined on motor vehicle violations were:

Marvin Nichols, careless and imprudent driving by failure to stop at stop sign, $25; Willard Lee Morrison, permitting underage person to drive, $20; Herman LeRoy Moser, expired license plate, $20.

Bruce J. Bryant, improper motor vehicle inspection, $20; Republic Mfg. Co. and Henderson Trucking Co., each charged with operating a vehicle without a copy of Missouri special fuel permit in vehicle, $25 each; and Hydro Dredge Co., operating vehicle without a reciprocity cab card or trip permit, $25.

Fined on speeding charges were Willard Lee Robinson, $25; Herbert Hoover Fortune, $40; Russell Rudell Chaney, $35; Charles J. Stancil, $30; Vernon Thomas Bell, $49; and L. A. Jackson and Clyde Richard Hart, forfeited bonds of $55 each.

Sikeston driver killed

A Sikeston man was killed early today and two persons were injured Tuesday in three area traffic accidents, according to the highway patrol.

Mark Larkin Lewis, 24, of Route Two was killed at 4:30 a.m. today three miles west of Bertrand at the Route CC overpass at Interstate 57 when his car left I-57 at a high rate of speed and struck an overpass pillar.

Lewis was born June 10, 1949 in Matthews to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lewis of Miner, who survive.

In June 1969, he married Wanda Lou Harbison, who survives.

Also surviving are one daughter, Mary Lewis of the home; one son, James Samuel Lewis of the home; five sisters, Mrs. Mary Gartunz of Fontana, Calif., Mrs. Betty Johnson of Lexington Park, Md., and Rita, Cathy and Elaine Lewis of Miner; and two brothers, Bruce Lewis of Miner and Kenneth Lewis of Omaha, Neb.

The body is at Shelby Funeral Home in East Prairie, where arrangements are incomplete.

A one-car accident at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 143 one mile north of Patterson resulted in serious injuries to Sally Ann

Car demolished

Sikeston resident Mark Larkin Lewis, 24, died at 4:30 a.m. today when his car smashed broadside into a pillar of the Route CC overpass on Interstate 57 three miles west of Bertrand. Lewis's car struck the pillar at a high rate of speed (top photo), causing the auto to wrap almost completely around the post, and separated (bottom photo) the front end from the car by 20 feet. Lewis was pronounced dead at the scene.

House to debate no fault measure

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — As the Missouri House prepared to begin expected lengthy debate on a "no fault" insurance measure, a bill to establish a 10-year statute of limitation for claims alleging faulty construction ran into strong opposition on the floor.

The measure was amended to provide the 10-year limitation from the original five years.

An amendment to make the limitation 30 years was defeated.

Rep. David Reed, R-Kansas City, said th bill would benefit the "unethical contractor who cuts corners."

The allegation was denied by the bill's sponsor, Rep. George E. Murray, R-Creve Coeur, who said it would allow contractors and architects to look forward to a reasonable time period when they would not be sued.

Given first-round approval by the House today was a bill to remove circuit judges from the board of jury commissioners in third and fourth class counties and replace them with jueges of the county court.

Tuesday night the House Ways and Means Committee, considering a proposal to repeal the tax on household goods, was told the measure "carries out the mandate of the people when they passed a constitutional amendment giving us authority to repeal the tax."

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, who sponsored the bill along with eight fellow senators from both parties, added, "this ought to be the year of the taxpayer."

The committee, however, delayed making a recommendation on the measure, which has already received Senate approval, pending receipt of information concerning its financial impact from the state Department of Revenue.

Under the bill, municipalities and counties will be reimbursed from the general revenue fund for the money lost due to the repeal of the tax.

Although the annual cost of the reimbursement program was estimated at $14 million, Cason said the state should make reimbursement of that money a top priority, "before we get into any new programs."

Robbery, assault suspects given changes of venue

NEW MADRID — Circuit Judge William L. Ragland Tuesday granted a change of venue to Mississippi County in four cases against Calvin Ross and Robert Ross of St. Louis, who are charged with armed robbery, two counts of felonious assault with intent to kill and felonious stealing.

The men are charged with the Dec. 4, 1973 armed robbery of the DeWitt Barry Grocery near Kewanee in which store attendant Willie Hardin was robbed, severely beaten and shot. They are also charged with shooting Willie Glispie of Sikeston Route Four when he stopped a school bus in front of the store while the robbery was in progress. Glispie was shot in the mouth by one of the robbers who entered the bus.

The felonious stealing charge involves the theft of a car from the Rev. Donald Edwards of Wolf Island. The men are accused of stealing the car when the Rev. Mr. Edwards stopped to offer assistance when he noticed their wrecked car on Interstate 55.

Trial for a third man, Charles Williams of New Madrid, who is charged separately in connection with the same cases, is set for April 11 in New Madrid County Circuit Court.

A change of venue to Stoddard County was granted upon the application of Al Sullenger, one of the defendents named in a petition for a temporary injunction filed by Noranda Aluminum Inc. against striking officers and members of United Steel Workers of America Local 7686 and their wives and children.

A temporary restraining order issued by the court on March 15 remains in effect until a hearing is held in Stoddard County.

The court action stems from a strike which started Jan. 31 when efforts to work out a new contract were unsuccessful between the union and company representatives.

Revocation of probation for Jackie Drake of Canalou was ordered by Judge Ragland. Drake was placed under supervised probation when he was sentenced on June 22, 1971 to four years in the custody of the State Department of Corrections on a grand larceny charge.

An application for a writ of habeas corpus filed by Dwight Butler of Malden, confined in the New Madrid County jail on a charge of possession of stolen property and ineligible to make bond, was overruled by Judge Ragland.

Butler, who is on parole from a three- year sentence in Mississippi, also faces felony charges in Stoddard County.

McArthur Drake was granted a $1,400 judgment against Delores Recker for damages resulting in personal injuries he sustained in an automobile accident on Nov. 28, 1971 in Portageville.

A $4,000 judgment for personal injuries and property damage was awarded Ray Wilson and a $500 judgment was granted to Dawn Reneea Wilson for personal injuries against Jackie Lee Drake, which resulted from an automobile accident which occurred March 30, 1973 on Highway 61 in New Madrid County.

First National Bank of Sikeston was granted a default judgment for $7,500 on one count and $15,000 on a second count of its counter claim for punitive damages filed against the state of Missouri director of revenue, which involved two tracts of land on which the state had filed suit alleging it held sales tax liens.

The marriage of Lillie Marie Manning of East Prairie Star Route and Jimmy Ray Manning was dissolved, with Mrs. Manning receiving custody of one child.

Mrs. Ruby Lee Cravens Adams was granted custody of two children, $20 per week per child for support and $200 for attorney's fee when her marriage to John Lee Adams of Parma was dissolved. Adams received reasonable rights of visitation.

Other dissolution of marriage petitions were approved for Carl Joseph Cummings of New Madrid and Jessie Ray Cummings; David W. Midkiff of Gideon and Patricia Ann Midkiff, with custody of one son granted to the father; Nancy C. Goodman Pardon of Portageville and Carl Wayne Pardon; Mrs. Pardon was restored to her maiden name of Goodman; and Phyllis Ann Boulton of New Madrid and Robert Earl Boulton.

A change of venue to Stoddard County was granted in an unlawful detainer and damage suit filed by Margaret Essary against Bobby Cronan.

Student questioned about 'pot'

PARMA — A 16- year-old Parma High School boy suspected of smoking marijuana during a gym class was taken into custody Monday for investigation by New Madrid County juvenile officer J. J. Bloomfield Jr.

The youth reportedly was smoking in a restroom stall in the dressing room. Other students in the dressing room reported to the teacher that they suspected the smoke was from marijuana.

A few grams of loose marijuana and two burned marijuana cigarette stubs were discovered on the boy by officers.

Bloomfield said the investigation is continuing.

April to be disaster preparedness month

BENTON— Les D. Lankford, presiding judge of the Scott County Court, today signed a proclamation urging all citizens of Scott County to observe the month of April as Disaster Preparedness Month.

This proclamation points out that Scott County is annually confronted with the possibility of spring flooding and that we are entering into the tornado season. The proclamation urges citizens to prepare now for emergencies and to take protective measures designed to reduce the number of casualties and damage to property.

The presiding judge also paid tribute in his proclamation to workers in the field of Disaster Preparedness in Scott County, urging citizens to cooperate with Disaster Preparedness officials in this important work.

Lankford offered some suggestions on preparing for emergencies. Among these were making sure mobile homes and trailers are tied down and making plans for shelter of the occupants in case of windstorms or tornado. Families should establish a plan to be taken in case of a storm or attack warning.

McElrath cites inflation as cause of tax vote

EAST PRAIRIE — Inflationary costs of operations while maintaining the standards of quality to enable the East Prairie R-2 School District to be classified AAA by the State Board of Education is the cause for the school board's decision to ask for a tax increase in the April 2 school election, according to Supt. Gerald W. McElrath.

After long and careful deliberation, the board decided at its February meeting to seek voter approval of a 30- cent increase in the present school tax rate of $2.95 per $100 assessed valuation.

"The absolute minimum ($3.25) on which the schools can be operated at the present standards is being sought," McElrath said. "Everyone, housewives, farmers, businessmen, are all aware of the rise in the costs of living and we (schools) are no exception. There are increases in the costs of program improvements; building operation and maintenance; pupil transportation; cost of living increases for employes; food; and instructional supplies," he said.

McElrath cited, for example, an increase from 21 cents per gallon for gasoline last year to 38 cents this year; duplicator and mimeograph paper, which cost 85 cents per package last year, has doubled in price to $1.70 now; school buses, from $8,000 in 1971 to $9,500 at present; and added that costs of almost everything used for operations and maintenance of the schools have increased tremendously in the past year.

The present $2.95 tax rate — lowest in the area — has been in effect in the local district for five years. Prior to that, the rate was $3.40 from 1965 through 1969. With voter approval, the $3.25 rate would still be lower than the average tax levy ($3.64) for all schools in the state during the 1972-73 school year. For those districts operating high schools, the average levy was $3.76.

The necessity of seeking a tax increase is not unique to the R-2 school district.

Mrs. Buchanan seeks school board seat

Sarah Buchanan announces her candidacy for election to the Sikeston R-6 School District board of education in the April 2 general election.

"I think schools are a most important part of the community and that it takes interested parents to serve on the board," Mrs. Buchanan said.

Mrs. Buchanan has served as a den mother in the Cub Scout program and is a member of the Southwest Elementary and Middle School Parent- Teacher Associations.

She has been employed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for 20 years and is a member of the local executive board for Communication Workers of America.

She and her six children, Dale, 17; Jane, 16; Bruce, 14; Gina, 12; Gerald, 11; and Michael, 8, live at 1400 W. Murray Lane.

Truck hits bridge, loses wheels

Gary Leasure of Bradford, Ark., escaped injury at 2:15 a.m. today when the tractor- trailer truck he was driving overturned near the junction of Highways 60 and 114. The rear wheels of the truck apparently hooked on the bridge railing and sent the truck out of control. The truck (top photo) overturned on the side of the road. The right rear wheels (bottom photo) stayed on the west side of the bridge, with a set of wheels on the north side of the road and one wheel jammed against the bridge rail on the south side. The truck was loaded with vegetables.

RIDING THE RAILS

Among methods of surface transportation, cars are probably the least efficient. And yet, at least until recently, cars carried an estimated 87 percent of interstate traffic, with planes carrying 11 percent and the remaining 2 percent split between buses and trains.

The figures come from the three-year-old quasi-Government railroad agency, Amtrak, whose goal is to put a big dent in that 87 percent. And, boosted in large measure by the energy pinch, Amtrak appears to be doing just that.

In a published interview, an Amtrak official said that the number of railroad passengers increased by 7 to 9 percent during the first two years of the service, which was instituted to save a dying rail passenger industry.

"Then, in 1973, the increase was about 24 percent for most of the year," said the official, Fletcher Prouty, in an interview for Scripps League Newspapers. "For October through December, however, our ridership shot up 29 percent beyond the same period in 1972."

Amtrak now uses about 30,000 miles of track from coast to coast. However, there is already in place some 300,000 miles of track — or ten times more than what is now being used for passenger service, making feasible greatly expanded service as demand increases.

Although Amtrak is still heavily subsidized by the Federal government, it grossed $202 million in 1973 compared to $162 million in 1972. It appears that the agency could be self-sustaining within two to three years if all goes well.

We believe the government deserves a pat on the back for its unaccustomed foresight that led to creation of Amtrak in time to help cushion the effects of the energy shortage. Hopefully, increasing numbers of traveling Americans will decide to ridė the rails to help conserve our scarce energy resources.

BARE FACTS OF STREAKING

The less said about the new college craze of "streaking," probably the better. But it can be predicted that there will be all kinds of variations on the nude marathons before we've heard the last of them, for streakers have shown that their ingenuity is, uh, bottomless.

For instance, the other day three men and a woman ran across the grounds at Xavier University in Cincinnati in what they called "the first integrated coed streak since Moses crossed the Nile."

Only thing is, it wasn't the Nile but the Red Sea that Moses crossed. But then, that's what kids are in college for — to learn things.

WHO'S SERVING WHO?

By the year 2000, there may be as many public servants as there will be servees, says the U. S. Chambe;of Commerce. That is, if you are willing to accept "public servant" as another term for public employee.

In 1900, the government employed fewer than one million persons. This figured out to about one person for every 26 employed in the private sector.

By 1972, the situation had changed drastically. On the average, there were only 5.1 people employed privately for every civilian government employe.

If the trend continues, says the chamber, by the end of this century, for every worker in the private sector there will be one "public servant."

It won't continue, though, will it?

SEPARATISM DRIFT AMONG THE BLACKS

Whatever it is that doesn't love a wall seems to be getting scarcer and scarcer these days.

The lumps have been rising to the surface of the melting pot for a long time now as many Americans show an increasing tendency to withdraw into the comfort and security of ethnic groups. Despite the fact that the phenomenon has been noticeable among Poles, Italians, Irish and just about every mother nationality, has been most evident among blacks, for a lot of reasons.

And a recent study indicates that the trend toward black separatism is increasing.

The study on "racial solidarity and separate education" was conducted by William J. Wilson of the University of Chicago and Castellano B. Turner and William A. Darity, both of the University of Massachusetts.

Writing in the University of Chicago School Review, they report that although there is still considerable division in the black communities of the two cities they studied, 56 per cent of their random sample oppose busing of schoolchildren, 38 per cent favor black control of community schools and 22 per cent say that only black teachers should be allowed to teach black children.

They also found that blacks who did not complete high school showed more isolationist tendencies than did high school graduates and that younger people (under 30) were more often inclined to separatist ideas than were their elders

This is disquieting.

The problem is not that separatism is a reflection of black pride. Rather it is a negative expression of frustration, or resignation to the fact that the white-dominated society is not serving the needs of its black minority.

It is one thing to say "Black is beautiful." It is quite another thing to say, "White is ugly."

That is why it is important to differentiate between the relatively healthy growth of ethnic pride in this country and the relatively unhealthy increase in ethnic isolationism.

In his book "The Decline of the WASP," Peter Schrag wrote that America is becoming "a nation of outsiders for whom no single style or ethnic remains possible." And, he added, "there is a growing necessity to preserve and enlarge the place apart, to reestablish the legitmacy of the things a man can call his own; not the goods of plastic, not the future of anonymity, but the privileges of being intrinsic, the integrity of place, the ability to love and to create in the present, the gratifications of immediate expression and engagement and the ability to live where one feels most at home."

The black separatist movement contains many of these elements, of course. But it also contains too many elements of bitterness, frustration, despair and hatred to be healthy for itself or for American society in general (however justified those feelings may be)

For separatism is only a stop on the way to anarchy and while we are far from the danger of imminently dissolving into 200 million distinct states, the closer we come to such chaos, the less able we are to meet our problems.

Separatist blacks have to examine their motivations and try to determine what role paranoia plays in their desire to be splendidly alone. But more importantly, the rest of us have to try to understand what it is we have done to aggravate the harmful breaks in society and what it is we can do to help repair those breaks.

'GO METRIC' SAYS INDUSTRY EXPERT TO INCREASE EXPORTS

Efforts to boost the volume of U. S. exports are being hampered by the nation's failure to switch from the English system of weights and measures to the metric system, a petroleum industry executive said.

W. Andrew Wright, research scientist with the Sun Oil Co., Marcus Hook, Pa., pointed out that most of the world, is already using the metric system — grams, liters centimeters, etc.

"The world market," he said, "is in Europe, and elsewhere, where expanding national economies are producing the growing market. These markets are metric . . We no longer set the market specifications. The situation is now reversed and is becoming one of the prominent factors in the trade imbalance."

Wright said it is inevitable that the United States will go metric — 'the real question is: when?"

'It is obvious," he added, "that American industry is recognizing the problem and is no longer waiting for Congressional action. The U. S. Bureau of Standards found more than 70 per cent of business organizations in favor of change some time ago."

"Since then, we see Ford Motor Company planning to build a metric engine plant in Ohio. General Motors has set up a conversion plan starting immediately and aimed at a short term conversion on a new product basis. Caterpillar Tractor I.B.M., and others are using the metric system for all new designs .... The Aluminum Company of America is now involved in re-casting its lubricant specifications in the metric system. These are typical examples of a growing list."

Wright recommended that the petroleum industry start "immediately" to convert its product specifications to a metric basis.

"If we start now," he said, "we will have some opportunity to properly consider .. simplifications in the product areas. These can reduce costs by eliminating excessive numbers of grades, duplications or near duplications. This will also aid our customers by providing less confusion in product application."

Wright pointed out that Canada, Australia and New Zealand are in the process of converting to the metric system, and that Britain will have completed its conversion period in 1975.

He added:

"Continued delay in preparing to put American business on an equal footing with world-wide competition can only further injure every corner of our economy."

HOW TO BE COMPETITIVE

Marketing Problem: Establish a new name in process equipment for Welex Incorporated and develop the quality and quantity of sales leads to build and maintain market leadership.

Communications Plan: Establish Welex as the successor to Papenmeier, manufacturers of the basic unit imported from Germany, and sell the high- intensity principle as best for mixing dry PVC for extrusions.

Benchmarks: In September 1967, the name "Welex" did not exist. A branch recognition study taken in early 1968, was used to determine progress from "ground zero" in meeting objectives.

Campaign: Eight two-color, full-page ads were run between September 1967, and February 1968, when the brand recognition study was conducted. They appeared in six plastics and chemical publicatins.

Results: Through heavy, continuous space advertising effort, Welex has displaced the name of its predecessor, has achieved half the recognition of its leading competitor, and is producing enough sales leads to keep production near capacity. All of this was accomplished without direct mail, little publicity and trade show effort, and very little "cold selling."

AN INDIVIDUAL MATTER

A master plan for diet is no more workable than centralized economic planning. Individuals are as varying in their wants and needs as geographic regions. Thus, it is unreasonable to tell the entire population to give up certain basic foods because some people, for medical reasons, are advised by doctors to restrict their diets with respect to these foods.

Milk disagrees with some individuals but that does not mean the nation should stop drinking milk -- or eating other dairy products, meat or any of the nutritious elements of a normal person's diet. Usually there is a good reason for eating a balanced choice of the foods that nature has placed at our disposal. An item in the Chicago Tribune shows why this is so. It seems that studies conducted by researchers at Cornell University have now revealed that a widespread deficiency of calcium in the population is the primary reason millions of people lose their teeth. According to the science editor of the Tribune, Ronald Kotulak, the report of these researchers "... also gives new hope to 35 million more Americans afflicted with periodontal disease who are in the process of losing their teeth. Milk is the major source of calcium in the diet" and "... the bone loss associated with periodontal disease in the human may be reversible by dietary calcium in many subjects."

Endeavoring to tell millions of people what they should or should not eat via directives from Washington or anywhere else is no more feasible than centralized government management of business in a nation as diversified as the United States.

WHY MAKE A TOUGH JOB TOUGHER

Call him a sanitation engineer or, in this ecological age, a refuse recycler, but a garbageman's lot is not an easy one.

According to the National Safety Council, refuse collection has the highest injury rate of any public service, with 109.5 disabling injuries per million manhours worked.

This compares with disabling injury rates of 44.25 and 43.37 for policemen and firemen respectively. Not only that, but the severity of the garbageman's injuries ranks among the worst in all occupations.

The reasons, says Raymond Loscoe of the National Safety Council, are the type of physical activity, the work environment and the nature of the customer. He explains:

"First the job requires long hours of walking, stepping on and off vehicles, lifting heavy loads and dumping refuse into mechanical conveyances.

"Second, the environment provides such hindrances as narrow streets and alleys, low-hanging tree limbs, ice, snow, sleet, extreme cold and heat and assorted vicious animals.

"But the patron creates the ultimate hazard when he 'booby-traps' the target of the day ... by loading refuse cans with chunks of concrete or other heavy objects, placing loose broken glass in cans or using battered cans that have sharp edges, broken handles and rusted bottoms that are ready to collapse."

Some cans, of course, have been known to get in that condition because of less- than-gentle handling by the refuse collector.

Nevertheless, as Lascoe points out, the man performs a valuable service to society. Why make his job any tougher than it is?

STORY SELDOM HEARD

It is time that vituperative critics of nuclear power plants were asked to buttress their case, if they have any, with facts from the record -- something they may find difficult to do. The Atomic Energy Commission has questioned the citizens of one community of less than 5,000 people concerning their views five years after announcement that a multimillion dollar nuclear power plant was scheduled for construction near their town. The AEC interview of local citizens was occasioned by application for a permit to build the second generating unit planned for the original plant.

The response of local community leaders to AEC questioning is illuminating. Mayors, newspaper editors, state officials, spokesmen for the regional planning and development commission and others, including a Superior Court judge, praised the manner in which the local power company was carrying out its task of producing needed energy, and at the same time meeting its environmental, aesthetic and economic obligations as a citizen of the areas in which its plants operate. Of the nuclear plant in question and the proposal to build a second unit, a county commissioner lauded the economic boost given his county. He pointed out that many of the power company's personnel "have built homes and are now living in the community and are most worthwhile citizens."

The planning and development commission member declared, "... we have never had anyone come to us with any apprehension about the safety of the plant who was not satisified by either written or oral response from the appropriate individual." Here is a sample of the postive side of nuclear energy that too few have heard about.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: IRA Has Russian Missiles

WASHINGTON --The terrorist wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) has been equipped, presumably by Arab guerrillas, with Russian shoulder -fired missiles for shooting down British helicopters. In addition, the Arabs are believed to have helped the IRA pepper London with bombs.

These two unhappy disclosures are made in a secret U.S. intelligence report obtained by Rep. John Murphy, D -N.Y., and turned over to chairman Harley Staggers, D -W. Va., of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee.

The British helicopters in Northern Ireland, besides their advantages over ground vehicles for surveillance, have been used to transport troops rapidly from onetrouble spot to the next. IRA gunfire, so far, has not been effective against them.

The Strella SA -7 missiles, however, have a range of almost three miles and can be aimed and fired in seconds. They "home" on the heat from jet motors or can be fired like ordinary weapons at prop -driven planes, helicopters or objects.

"Arab terrorists (are) loose in Europe and England" and are armed with the 30 -pound rockets, said the intelligence report, developed by the CIA, and summarized and circulated to the FBI, Secret Service, Federal Aviation Administration and other sensitive agencies. The missiles, said the report, were "originally smuggled into Belgium in Libyan diplomatic pouches....

"Libya has publicly stated its support of the IRA as a revolutionary movement," the report went on. "British intelligence (has) stated there is 'firm evidence' that Arab terrorists are working with the Irish Republican Army and are part of the bombing campaign which has plagued London in recent months.

"British officials have also received intelligence reports that the Russian -built SA- 7 missiles are in the hands of the IRA in Northern Ireland," the document warned.

"Sources indicate they are for use against British helicopters along the border between Ireland and those counties under UK (British) control."

The secret advisory said the British Army is "on alert especially during the day when the danger is greatest as the terrorists would probably have to rely on visual sighting." At night, jet aircraft would also be vulverable because the missles seek out the heat from their jet blasts, said the report.

There is danger even if the missiles do not hit their target. They then zoom to seek out other jet planes, school chimneys or, indeed, any heat source.

At Heathrow airport in London, as we reported on Feb. 10, the British Army was put on alert for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's visit because intelligence reports had indicated Arab fanatics planned to shoot a Strella up his plane's jetpipe.

IMPEACHED STAFF: Some Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee proved at a closed -door meeting a few days ago that they still don't trust their distinguished counsel, Albert Jenner.

Though Jenner's GOP bona fides are long and eminent, some Republicans criticized his appointment as minority impeachment lawyer because he once arranged a fund -raiser for a long time Democratic friend, Sen..Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois.

Now the committee's Republicans have decided to oust one of Jenner's brightest young aides, Ted Tetzlaff, because he once worked for liberal Rep. John Brademas, D -In. The fact is that Tetzlaff has also served President Nixon as head of the Poverty Corps' legal services.

The squabble erupted at a secret meeting between the GOP impeachment committee members and House miniority leader John Rhodes. R -Ariz. There, Rep. Larry Hogan, R -Md., a rough -and tumble ex -FBI agent and conservative, personally attacked Tetzlaff's fitness to serve. Tetzlaff, whom Jenner hired from his own Chicago law firm, was not there to defend his good name.

The argument went back and forth on whether Tetzlaff had already said something indicating he favored impeachemnt, a charge he has reportedly denied. But, at the end, Hogan's view prevailed.

The Republicans, hoping that the whole affair could be kept out of the press, agreed to get Jenner informally to advise Tetzlaff to go back to Chicago.

Though senior Republican member Ed Hutchinson, R -Mich., refused to talk about it, his colleague, Robert McClory, R -Ill. confirmed that "he is going back to Chicago ... that's where his work is." Tetzlaff and Jenner, sticking gamely to the staff's gag rule, declined to comment. However, Jenner reportedly was still hoping to find some way of getting his GOP bosses on the committee to reserve themselves.

GAS RIP -OFF: At present, a car owner is often told by his auto manual to use 94 octane gasoline --regular. But octane rating systems vary. The same regular gas is posted as 90 on the gasoline pump. The unwitting buyer, therefore, buys premium.

The consumer -oriented Public Interest Campaign complained to federal energy czar William Simon, saying the inconsistency costs drivers $1 billion a year, wastes one million gallons of gasoline a day and adds 405,000 extra pounds of lead to the daily auto pollution. (Lead is blamed for disease and death in ghetto children, who breathe it or get it in their mouths from playing in street dirt.)

Simon, however, wrote a polite private letter to the Public Interest Campaign president, Lou Lombardo, declining to invervene. But a few days ago, Simon's own Consumer Energy Advisory Committee voted unanimously in favor of octane posting changes.

Moved by the vote, Simon's aides are now reviewing the question and promised us that "We won't let the issue go down the crack."

GIVING AWAY OUR INDUSTRY TO THE SOVIET UNION

It is bad enough to be exporting vital industrial products of potentially enormous military value to our deadly, unrelenting enemies in the Soviet Union. Now the trend is actually to provide the Russians with entire industrial plants superior to anything they now have, or at least the technology to build them. It is like a businessman selling the plans and components of his biggest factories to his most threatening competitor.

Exactly that was done last year when the U.S. - built Kama River truck plant was approved for the Soviet Union. Now American computer companies have been given permission to bid on a contract to install their best air traffic control system in the U.S.S.R. The White House Council on International Economic Policy is just completing a study on computer exports which is expected to recommend a further relaxation of the already very loose remaining controls on the export of this most sophisticated electronic technology to Russia.

Malcolm R. Currie, director of Defense Research and Engineering in the Defense Department, has spoken out against this suicidal rush to sell the best products we have to our worst enemies. Soviet scientific knowledge matches ours, Currie says, but their manufacturing and production technology is still inferior overall. It is this gap that they intend to close by the simple process of buying the best we have, on easy credit terms, and then copying it.

The best the United States produces should be for the United States. Those who have sworn to "bury us" should get none of it.

Oran election set April 2

ORAN -- In the April 2 city election, Oran residents will elect a mayor, collector, police judge and four aldermen.

Incumbent Mayor Kenneth Ransdell will face opposition from Benny Evans when he seeks re- election for a new two- year term.

Seeking the collector's office will be the incumbent, Naomi McCallister, and Shirley Michelsen and Fanny Thurston Davis. The collector's race developed after the City Council voted to change the salary from a commission basis to $6,000 per year.

Ed Burger, Robert Dennis and D. H. Perry are candidates for a two- year term as police judge.

Running for alderman in ward one for a two- year term is Sammy Shy and C. C. Parks; ward two, two- year term, Robert Dohogne and Kenny Pobst; ward three, two- year term, Charles Sallee, Wesley Harris and Buster Bollinger; ward four, two- year term, Clarence Curtis, Zexia Sietman, Bill Kiehlhofner and Joe Tate.

Voting places for wards one and four will be in the Burger building and for wards two and three in the city hall.

C'ville to vote on city manager issue May 14

CARUTHERSVILLE — Mayor Terry Wilson Tuesday set May 14 as the date for a special election to decide whether Caruthersville adopts a city manager system.

The action promises to upstage the April 2 city election when voters are to choose a new mayor, since approval of a city manager would greatly diminish the mayor's authority.

Wilson's was the first of about 540 signatures on a petition presented to the City Council Tuesday night.

Dennis Cain, chairman of the city planning commission, who offered the petition said a city manager system "will go a long way toward keeping politics out of city hall so that we can be assured of efficient government."

Caruthersville last July became the first Missouri Bootheel city to install a city administrator. But the council dismissed James Bell from the post five months later after several disputes.

Wilson, who left the council in December to serve as interim mayor when former Mayor Bill Inman resigned, is not seeking the post.

Longtime former Mayor B. F. 'Hot' Rogers and Alderman Perry Going are candidates for mayor.

Area students join fraternity

POPLAR BLUFF — Jayme McCarroll of Malden and Mary Jenkins, Earl Metcalf and Joe Stewart of Dexter were among 46 students recently inducted into the Sigma Rho Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, an honorary fraternity at Three Rivers Community College.

It was the second annual initiation banquet of the honor fraternity, which is the only one represented at TRCC.

3 unopposed in Benton race

BENTON-- Three unopposed candidates are seeking seats on the Board of Aldermen in the April 2 election.

Incumbent Jim Wilhelm is seeking a one- year term as ward one alderman and incumbent Leonard C. Diebold is running for a two- year term.

Incumbent Richard McIntosh is seeking the two-year term in ward two.

Griffey files

MARSTON — Louie Griffey, who has filed for the north ward alderman seat being vacated by Bruce Martin, is unopposed in the April 2 city election.

Tuesday's edition of The Daily Standard incorrectly listed the name Louise Griffey as unopposed for the office.

Changes announced in days, location of exams

POPLAR BLUFF-- Capt. W. C. Brooks, commander of Troop E of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, has announced that effective April 1 some of the days and locations for driver examinations in the 14 counties of the Troop E area will be changed.

The purpose of this change is to provide better service to the people of the area, Brooks said.

Under the new schedule, examinations will be given from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3:30 p.m. at the National Guard Armory in Sikeston on Tuesdays and Thursdays, at the armory in Dexter and courthouse in New Madrid each Monday, at the armory in Charleston on Wednesdays and at the city hall in Malden on Fridays.

Examinations will not be given on holidays.

Cheerleading clinics set for June

JONESBORO, Ark.- Headed by members of the National Cheerleader Association, the 17th annual Arkansas State University Cheerleading Clinic will begin its first session June 3.

Due to the energy crisis, the only change in this year's clinic will be that it opens on Monday, with the first general meeting at 11 a.m. in Indian Field House, according to Gladys Hudgins, clinic director.

Three one- week schools, scheduled for June 3- 7, June 10- 14 and June 17- 21, will provide instruction in every phase of cheerleading to those with or without previous experience.

Classes in tumbling, yell leading motions, chants, skits, pompom routines, organization of pep rallies, use of megaphones and other elements pertaining to cheerleading will be offered.

Under the direction of Lawrence Herkimer, the NCA staff will be selected from various geographic areas of the country. Herkimer, who has been acclaimed as "Mr. Cheerleader of the USA", plans to provide participants with the latest nationwide cheerleading techniques.

Those attending must be junior high, senior high or college students and do not have to be an elected cheerleader to be eligible for the school.

Team competition will highlight each week's school, with teams being rated daily and trophies being presented to the winning teams on the final day of each school.

Students will be housed in air- conditioned dormitories with meals being served in Woodlands Cafeteria in Carl R. Reng Center.

Total cost for a one- week school is $45 per person, with a $10 reservation fee required. The remaining $35 will be due at the time of registration.

Ann Landers

Mistress worries about lover's health

Dear Ann Landers: Something has been bothering me. I can't get it out of my mind. I don't dare ask anyone else. Please give me some advice.

A well-to-do married man has been keeping me for three years. R. is 22 years my senior and treats me like a queen. He made it clear when he set up this "arrangement" that we could never marry. His wife is a nice person, but dull and uninteresting. His children are grown and leading their own lives. Although we never appear together in public, a few people suspect we are seeing each other.

Five months ago R. had a serious case of indigestion. It happened in my apartment and I was terrified. I thought it was a heart attack. I called a friend who is a physician, explained the circumstances, and he came over immediately. By the time he arrived, R. was feeling better.

Now I am haunted by the fear that one of these nights R. might have a real heart attack in my apartment. What on earth would I do? I am not concerned about MY reputation, but I am plenty worried about his. Please help me. -- Lady In The Shadows.

Dear Shady Lady: If your friend should have a heart attack in your apartment, you would follow the same procedure as when he had indigestion. If he has a massive attack and dies on the spot, you couldn't do much about saving his reputation. If he has a less serious attack, your doctor friend could drive him to the hospital and think up something on the way.

Dear Ann Landers: Quite unplanned, at a party recently, I decided not to drink any liquor because we had arrived late and the guests were just being seated. (Ordinarily I would have hurried to the bar and taken a double martini to the table.)

I enjoyed the dinner conversation immensely and decided to see what it would be like to go through an entire evening with no booze. (Usually I take at least two doubles to "loosen me up.")

I had a marvelous time on ginger ale and concluded that "getting loosened up" actually means flirting shamelessly, talking like an idiot and becoming exhausted at an early hour and begging my husband to take me home.

We were nearly the last to leave and I wasn't the least bit tired. I enjoyed some stimulating conversation with non-drinkers, danced better than I ever had before and loved being me instead of behaving in a raucous and aggressively sexy manner.

So, you gals out there who think liquor helps make you look better or sound better, I have news. Try staying sober. You'll like it. —D. H. Lowell, Mass.

Dear D.: Welcome to the ranks of the blue-noses. There aren't many of us left.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife became pregnant by my best friend. Needless to say, that ended the friendship. He ducked out of the picture and I had to fly my wife to another state for an abortion. It cost me over $1,000 plus the grief.

The heel's wife was very "understanding" and stood by him. Our marriage was damaged but we are trying to work things out. Our three children have no idea why their parents left town so suddenly.

I say this jerk owes me $500. Please agree and print this letter so I can shake it in his face. —Mad

Dear M.: Sorry, but when a married woman gets into a jam like that, the problem is hers to work out as best she can. When her lover is a heel, she pays double.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers's booklet, "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

"Some people get the credit for thinking, but all they do is know how to frown."

'Fat' is important to diet

By DR. LAURENCE M. HURSH
National Dairy Council Consultant

Fat is beautiful? Of course it is. But I'm not speaking of someone who is carrying around excess pounds. I am referring to fat in our food. We need it. It is essential, nutritionally. And food would not taste very good without it.

Certainly there are varying degrees of liking for fat. One person may prefer leaner meats than another. I may put more butter on my bread than you do. And none of us should overdo fat in our meals anymore than we should overdo other substances. Like salt, or pepper, or whatever.

A Relentless War

But the war against fat has been so relentless that some of us might believe it is a kind of poison. Instead, I suggest you would not wish to eat a meal if it was anywhere near devoid of fat.

Even the people who tell you to fear cholesterol only suggest about 10 per cent reduction in the average American's fat consumption. We supposedly, on average, consume meals that contain 40 per cent fat. The cholesterol theorists suggest a reduction to 35 per cent. Most nutritionists, I believe, agree this is a good idea. The argument simply is whether there is any sense in eating less saturated fats and more polyunsaturated fats.

Polyunsaturated fats are, as you probably know, available from vegetable sources, principally from corn or safflower oils. During the past 50 years (while the incidence of heart disease has increased) the consumption of vegetable oils has gone up. During the same years saturated fats consumption has gone down. So I don't see a correlary with heart disease that, in turn, should make you fear saturated fats.

As a matter of fact, a researcher in the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Columbia University recently has advanced a new theory regarding cholesterol. Cholesterol, as you know, is one of the fatty substances that some researchers think may be related to heart disease. They cite statistics that individuals with high levels of cholesterol in their blood have more heart attacks and strokes.

Meanwhile, Dr. Hans Kaunitz at Columbia suggests that cholesterol may be a "repair" substance. He says cholesterol occurs in large amounts wherever there is a diseased organ and repair processes going on. This, he says, may partly explain why atherosclerotic lesions (in arteries) contain a high concentration of cholesterol.

Eat a Balanced Diet

Well, in my opinion, the best nutritional approach to total health is to eat a balanced diet chosen from a wide variety of foods. And you should not consume more calories than you need to maintain your ideal weight. This may mean eating somewhat less fat. It could easily mean less sweets and starches, less heavy gravies and perhaps a more sparing use of salad oils.

So don't fear fats: Enjoy them with moderation. Besides taste and perhaps great benefits we don't yet know about, fats give us energy and the fat-soluble vitamins (A, D, E and K). Fats also are part of the structure of body cells. And they form protective cushions around vital organs.

Teresa McGee receives practical nurse degree

RISCO-- Miss Teresa McGee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. McGee, graduated March 7 from the School of Health Occupations in Springfield. She was among the practical nurses' graduating class of 28 members.

The graduation address was given by Mrs. Florence Harris, L.P.N., executive director of the Missouri State Association of Licensed Practical Nurses Inc.

Presentation of diplomas was by Don Simmons, assistant director of vocational, technical and industrial education.

Upon completion of current classes in psychology and pharmacology, Miss McGee will be employed at a hospital in Springfield.

Miss McGee is a 1972 graduate of Risco High School.

Birthday celebrated

RISCO-- Miss Kathy Jo Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Wheeler, was honored on her sixth birthday Monday with a luncheon at her home in Baderville.

The circus party theme was carried out with balloons, streamers and a clown centerpiece. Guests received favors of party hats and various circus prizes.

Circus refreshments included hot dogs, potato chips, animal cookies and a clown birthday cake.

Guests included Tina Babb, Amy McGee, Cheryl Fortner, Teresa Johnson and Michael Landers.

Marcella Simpson is bride of Samuel Hugh Faulkner

NEW MADRID-- On March 2 at 7:30 p.m., the New Madrid Baptist Church was the setting for the candlelight wedding of Marcella Faye Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loyne Simpson of Lilbourn, and Samuel Hugh Faulkner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Faulkner of New Madrid. The Rev. Edward E. Wolfe performed the double- ring ceremony with Mrs. Virginia Keaton providing the wedding music.

The sanctuary was decorated with two candelabras and two large baskets of white gladioli and yellow daisies on white columns.

The bride wore a crisp white organza gown with attached train. Cluny lace and seed pearls trimmed the sheer yoke bodice and shirt sleeves, with lace bordering the hem and side seams giving the dress an apron effect. The bride's cathedral-length veil was of English silk illusion encircled with cluny lace.

Her only jewelry was a pin belonging to her mother's sister, Mrs. Almedia Henry.

The bride's bouquet consisted of white roses, yellow daisies and baby's breath centered over a white Bible covered with lace.

Mrs. Jessica Simpson, the bride's sister- in- law, served as matron of honor. She wore a floor- length gown of mint green crepe with short, flared sleeves and a floral sash complimenting the empire waistline. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, white and yellow daisies and baby's breath with yellow streamers tied in lover's knots.

Bridesmaids were Miss Sandy Simpson and Mrs. Joyce Patterson of Lilbourn, sisters of the bride. Their dresses were mint green crepe with a floral bodice and short, flared sleeves and floral sash at the empire waistline. The dresses were accented with a wide dust ruffle. Their bouquets were idential to the one carried by the matron of honor.

Miss Paula Wescoat of Kewanee, niece of the groom, served as flower girl. Her dress was identical to the bridesmaids. She carried a white basket with an arrangement of yellow daisies.

Kevin Kerr of Sikeston, nephew of the groom, served as ringbearer. He wore a black tuxedo with a mint green, ruffle shirt and wore a yellow rosebud bouttonniere.

The groom wore a black tuxedo with a white ruffle shirt and wore a white rosebud boutonniere to match the bride's bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hugh Faulkner

The groom chose Tommy Essary of Matthews as his best man. Essary wore a black tuxedo with a mint green ruffle shirt and wore a yellow rosebud.

Rick Faulkner of New Madrid, brother of the groom, and Danny Kerr of Sikeston, brother- in- law of the groom, served as groomsmen. Their attire was identical to that worn by the best man.

Robert Street sang "More" and "The Lord's Prayer", and was dressed identical to the best man.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a floor- length knit dress of avocado green. She wore a corsage of white roses.

The groom's mother chose for her son's wedding a street- length dress of red and white knit. She also wore a corsage of white roses.

The fathers of the bride and groom wore tuxedos identical to the one worn by the best man and wore boutonnieres of white rosebuds.

Mrs. Debbie Simpson, sister- in- law of the bride, attended the guestbook and distributed programs to the guests. She wore a corsage of yellow roses.

The ushers were Dalton, Bob and Jerry Simpson, brothers of the bride. Their attire was identical to that worn by the best man.

A three- tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom and decorated with yellow roses and white daisies, centered the reception table.

Attending the reception table were Mrs. Pam Simpson of New Madrid, sister- in- law of the bride, and Mrs. Sandra Kerr of Sikeston and Mrs. Phyllis Wescoat of Kewanee, sisters of the groom. They wore corsages of yellow roses. Miss Stacy Wescoat of Kewanee, niece of the groom, distributed rice bags to the guests during the reception.

The couple honeymooned in the Ozarks and now lives on New Madrid Route One.

On Feb. 1, the bride was given a miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. Sandra Kerr. Hostesses were Mrs. Phyllis Wescoat, Mrs. Kerr and Mrs. Joyce Fowler.

On Feb. 15, the bride was given a lingerie shower at the New Madrid Baptist Church fellowship hall by Mrs. Pat Weaks.

The wedding party was honored at a rehearsal dinner given by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Faukner, on March 1 in the New Madrid Baptist Church fellowship hall.

Stephenson says abortion is murder for convenience

PORTAGEVILLE — Abortion is "murder for convenience," a candidate for the Democratic nomination for 10th District congressman declared here Sunday.

Arthur T. Stephenson of Caruthersville, the Pemiscot County prosecuting attorney who is seeking to unseat three-term Rep. Bill D. Burlison, D-Cape Girardeau, said at a rally that there is only one "true reason" for supporting abortion. That reason, he contended, is "inconvenience."

"It is not convenient for the mother, or it's not convenient for the father or it's not convenient for the family of those involved to allow the unborn child to live," the Episcopal layman said, "and so that which is most precious to all living creation is denied by one living being to another—the right to live."

Stephenson said some abortion supporters "cloud the issue with spurrious arguments of over-population or women's rights.

"Others trade on suspicion and hatred by accusations that their opponents are motivated by an allegiance to an anachronistic theology."

Abortion "by any definition...is murder," he said.

"The real issue in the present abortion question is whether...this society will accept the principle that our government can declare a class of human beings to be outside the protection and the safety of the laws afforded to all other persons," Stephenson said.

"Once that principle is accepted, there is almost no limit to the number of so-called 'undesirable' or 'inconvenient' groups or classes of people that we can get rid of legally," he said.

Transportation system explained at senior meeting

PARMA-- Z. D. Hargraves of Malden explained the Southeast Missouri Transportation System (SMTS) program to Parma Senior Citizens Club March 19 at the Parma Library.

Hargraves said the SMTS program provides buses to serve senior citizens, 55 years of age or older, and handicapped persons in the area. Everyone who rides the bus must be a member of SMTS, he added.

Persons interested in riding the bus may contact Laura Johnson, coordinator, at the Parma DAEOC Center, phone 357-4777; Mrs. Virtrue Hill in Parma, phone 357-4612; or Mrs. Leota McGee, for those in the Risco area, phone 396-5517. Applications are available for enrollment.

Risco senior citizens were guests of the Parma Club.

Bond disappointed

No flood-zoning bill planned

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond expressed disappointment Tuesday night at the announcement by the Democratic leadership in the Missouri House that they will not make a bill calling for statewide flood plain zoning a special order of business.

Calling that "a disaster," Bond pointed out that people living in unzoned, flood-prone areas "may be in an unbelieveable bind" if the state is hit by another round of spring flooding this year.

"After consulting with members on both sides of the aisle, we feel sure there is not enough support to pass the bill," said House Speaker Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis.

The bill would require local governmental units to pass specific zoning regulations to make their communities eligible for federally subsidized flood insurance.

Bond pointed out that unless areas that were flooded in 1973 are zoned, many of those persons helped by the federal government last year would not be helped in future floods.

But Rep. Richard J. DeCoster, D-Canton, countered by saying that counties and cities can already voluntarily adopt the necessary legislation to qualify for federal flood insurance.

"If the local people want such insurance, they can easily obtain it by passing local regulations," he contended. "We should not impose unwanted statewide regulations on our local communities."

Bond noted in his comments Tuesday night that the Army Corps of Egnineers has predicted some flooding in the state this spring, though probably not as much as last year.

"With so little time left in the session," Rabbitt said, "it would be a tragedy to spend time on a measure which does not have substantial support."

AID TO MENTALLY RETARDED

Audit shows milk producers contributed to both sides

WASHINGTON (AP) — An internal audit shows the Associated Milk Producers Inc. directed corporate money to both sides of the political street during President Nixon's first term.

The audit and a lawyer's report on the co-op's past activities were obtained from court records.

Until President Nixon took office in 1969, the giant dairy cooperative backed mostly Democrats. The audit traces $91,691 in corporate money used to help Hubert H. Humphrey's 1968 campaign against Nixon.

But after Nixon's victory, the co-op leaders decided to make peace with the Republicans. Harold S. Nelson, the co-op's general manager, drew $5,000 in corporate funds to buy tickets to a Republican victory dinner in 1969, the audit shows.

In August, a co-op lawyer delivered $100,000 in cash — now admitted to have been an illegal corporate donation — to the keeper of Nixon's secret political trust, Herbert L. Kalmbach.

But the audit shows the milk producers continued to aid Democrats with corporate money even as they solidified their alliance with the administration.

In 1970, about the time the milk producers were promising to raise $2 million for the President's then-distant re-election campaign, co-op funds reportedly flowed into the senatorial campaigns of Humphrey in Minnesota and of Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

The co-op's former lobbyist, Bob A. Lilly, is quoted as saying he passed along $34,500 in corporation funds to Humphrey's campaign manager to pay campaign printing bills.

And a former lawyer for the co-op, Stuart H. Russell of Oklahoma City, is quoted as saying he was reimbursed from corporation funds for three contributions to the 1970 Muskie campaign, for a total of $8,400.

Humphrey, asked about both the 1968 and 1970 dairy money, said through a spokesman, "I have no knowledge of these transactions ... An organization as large as AMPI should have had the kind of legal counsel that would have prevented these types of transactions."

A Muskie spokesman said, "It's impossible to check on the veracity of every individual who claims he's giving an individual contribution. The campaign made very careful checks to see that no corporate funds were either solicited or accepted and money which could be identified as corporate funds was returned during the campaign."

The milk producers also used several Democrats in a complex paycheck scheme to cover the $100,000 gift to Nixon's trust. The arrangement generally called for phony legal fees or public relations fees to be paid to persons doing business with the milk producers.

These persons then relayed most of the money to Lilly to repay bank loans he had taken out to cover the Nixon gift and some other political expenses.

Among those listed as taking part in this arrangement were former Democratic party treasurer Richard Maguire, former Humphrey aides Ted Van Dyk and Kirby Jones, former Lyndon B. Johnson White House aide W. DeVier Pierson, Rep. James R. Jones D-Okla., and the late Clifton C. Carter, who had been the Democratic National Committee's executive director.

Van Dyk was quoted as saying the milk producers didn't tell him the true purpose of the money that he and his employe Kirby Jones passed along.

Rep. James Jones was quoted as saying he wasn't reimbursed for his $10,000, which he said he gave voluntarily thinking it would be relayed to Democrats. The report said Maguire didn't respond to requests for comment, and that Pierson declined to comment personally.

The audit was conducted by the firm of Haskins & Sells of San Antonio, Texas. It was attached to a report on the coop's past political dealings by attorney Edward L. Wright, a former American Bar Association president.

MIND CONTROL® & ESP

MIND CONTROL GRADUATES report better control over

•HEALTH •INTUITION •SALESMANSHIP •SMOKING
•MEMORY •MOTIVATION •CONCENTRATION •WEIGHT
•FEARS •CREATIVITY •PROBLEM SOLVING •SLEEP

WHAT IS SILVA MIND CONTROL?

The "Silva Method" as it is known was developed by Jose Silva, a research scientist in Loredo, Texas, and a pioneer in mental training and research in brain waves. Mr. Silva states, "The discovery that Human Intelligence can learn to control brain waves and function with awareness at the Alpha and Theta frequencies of the brain will go down inhistory as the greatest discovery of man."
Silva says that we somehow have unconsciously learned to interfere with the body's healing function and this effect is known as the psychosomatic health problem. It appears that by learning to function with awareness at the Alpha/Theta levels we automatically cease to interfere, allowing the body's internal organs and glands to return to their natural rhythmic self-healing function.
"We don't need to teach the internal organs how to function. Nature takes care of that when we do not interfere. The Silva Method is dedicated to help humans become healthier, more productive and better problem-solvers.

"Our students report better memory, high grades, less tension and anxiety, faster healing, release and rejection of Psychosomatic problems, control of sleep and headaches, control of smoking, weight and even correction of drug habit, and also maintenance of better general health."

LEARN TO USE ESP TO SOLVE PROBLEMS

Silva adds that these are just side benefits and that the real benefit is that the student when at these levels seems to sense information impressed on the brain cells of others. This what some call ESP or Extra Sensory Perception, but Silva calls it Subjective Communcations.
The MIND CONTROL program has changed the meaning of ESP which was uncontrolled, erratic and very evasive to Subject Communciations which is controlled and effective for problem solving.
You can now have an added tool to obtain information, to use your mind more effectively and become more successful. By learning simple, practical, easy-to-use techniques you can make your life better and also help people around you

BRUNSWICK STEEL RADIAL

RADIAL GUARANTEE*
Guaranteed against all road hazards and defects for the life of the original tread. If tire fails, we will, at our option, repair it free or replace it, charging only for the tread worn on a pro rata share of the exchange selling price plus F.E.T.
Guaranteed against wearout for 40,000 miles. If tread wears out in this period, we will replace it, charging the current exchange price less the following allowance plus F.E.T.
Less than 28,000 miles 30% allowance
28,000 - 40,000 miles 20% allowance
Tire is considered worn out when tread wear indicators are visible.

BENEFITS OF STEEL RADIALS

RADIAL CONSTRUCTION	2-PIECE TREAD	OPEN, AGGRESSIVE BLOCK TREAD
The body cords run directly across the tread from rim to rim, a 90-degree angle to direction of travel. Stability and Handling ease unmatched by tires of any other type construction. Plus you get an exceptionally smooth ride and extended tire life.	The wide, open, aggressive, block tread is made of two different compounds—one a cool-running compound for the undertread or tread base, the other a long mileage compound for the tread.	The computer-designed block tread provides better all-weather stop-go traction. The tread is deeper with wider grooves than most other steel radials.
STEEL BELTED	SEVEN PLIES UNDER TREAD	WIDE 70-SERIES PROFILE
A tempered, brass-coated, steel belt bonded between two double plies of Dynacor rayon puts five plies in the belt for fantastic strength!	The 5-ply steel-rayon belt plus two rayon body plies give you 7-layer protection against road hazards. The Seven Plies under the tread also means Strength & Fuel Savings for you!	This profile produces a tire carcass that is wider and lower, with a wider tread. Puts more tread on the road, gives quick steering response, provides excellent high speed stability.

STEEL RADIALS PRICED as low as $46.50

Lora Rader, as Mrs. Clarence; Karen Willis, as Mrs. Poe; Debbie Warth, as Frieda Fisher; Jacky Coffer, as Squint; and the following as extras: Emma Sawyer, Charla White, Linda Issacks, Wanda Issacks, Raymond Woolums, Freeman Metcalf and Steve Landers.

3 seek Illmo aldermen posts

ILLMO-- After the close of filing Friday, three candidates have filed for two positions on the Board of Aldermen.

Incumbent I. F. Sanders is unopposed in his bid for re-election as alderman in ward one.

In ward two, incumbent Kenneth Rainey will face opposition from John Z. Smith.

Ballots will be cast Tuesday in the Illmo city hall.

The credenza, a sideboard for china and plate, was originally a table used for food tasting to guard against poison in Renaissance Italy and France.

THIS HIDEBOUND WORKER is laboring in a tannery in Silinhaote, in China's Inner Mongolia. The products are felt boots and sheepskin coats.

Honor students named

RISCO— John Green, Risco High School principal, recently released the names of students on the third quarter honor roll:

Seventh grade: Karmen Jones; Eighth grade: Linda Wheeler, Shirlene Coffer, Keith Byrd, Vernon Robertson and Roger Smesler; Ninth Grade: Judy McNeely; 10th grade: Kathy Downs, Janet Keaster, Kevin Carlisle and Karen Jones; 11th grade: Nancy Cummins; and 12th grade: Marilynn Kellick, Doris Wood, David Crouthers and Myra Keaster.

The Synagogue of Congregation Mikve Israel-Emanuel, founded 241 years ago in Willemstad, Curacao, is the oldest synagogue in the Americas.

Well baby clinic set

RISCO— The New Madrid County Health Center, in cooperation with Delta Area Economic Opportunity Center, will hold a well baby clinic in the Farmers State Bank meeting room on April 4 from 9 a.m. to noon.

A doctor will attend and immunizations will be given.

For more information, phone the coordinator, Laura Johnson, 357- 4777, or visit the DAEOC Center in the city hall at Parma. Residents of the Risco and Gideon area may call 396- 5390, or 448-3476.

3 in race for Oran board

ORAN-- Three candidates are seeking election in Oran R-3 School District for positions on the board of education.

Two directors will be elected for terms of three years each.

Candidates running are Elmer Seyer, Aaron Anthony and Clinton Hodges.

THE RYATTS by Jack Elrod

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, March 27, the 86th day of 1974. There are 279 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1964 Alaska was rocked by one of the worst earthquakes in modern history. More than 100 persons were killed, and property damage was estimated at $750 million.

On this date:

In 1703, the Russian czar, Peter the Great, founded the city of St. Petersburg, now Leningrad.

In 1854, France declared war on Russia.

In 1933, Japan withdrew from the League of Nations after being denounced as an aggressor in Manchuria.

In 1939, Adolf Hitler demanded that Poland agree to German annexation of Danzig.

In 1941, during World War II, the government of Prince Paul was ousted in Yugoslavia.

In 1945, General Dwight D. Eisenhower declared that German military forces on the Western Front had been defeated.

Ten years ago: Two U.S. Air Force fliers were returned to U.S. custody 17 days after their reconnaissance plane was shot down by a Soviet fighter over East Germany.

Five years ago: The United States launched a Mariner spacecraft on a four-month flight toward Mars to help determine if that planet can support life.

One year ago: The man who oversaw the drafting of Americans for military service in three wars, General Lewis Hershey, retired from the government after 62 years of military service.

Today's birthdays: Former Japanese Premier Eisaku Sato is 73 years old. Ballet dancer and producer Arthur Mitchell is 40. Actor David Janssen is 44.

Thought for today: It's great to be great, but it's greater to be human. — Will Rogers, American humorist, 1879-1935.

JAMES E. MARTIN

James E. Martin, 71, formerly of Salem, a retired farmer, died at 4:15 p.m. Monday in Suffit's Nursing Home No. 1, 509 Ruth St., where he had lived for three years.

He was born Feb. 2, 1903 in Dent County.

Surviving are two brothers, William and George Martin, and two sisters, Lisa Gibbs and Hazel Loos, all of Salem.

The body was removed Tuesday from Welsh Funeral Home in Sikeston and taken to James and Gahr Mortuary in Salem.

Services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Thursday in the funeral home with Melvin Bryant of Salem officiating.

Burial will be in Tune Cemetery at Salem.

LEO COMSTOCK

Leo Comstock, 54, of 2109 Indiana St., owner and operator of Comstock Painting, died at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday in Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

He was born Nov. 22, 1919 in Vanduser to the late Claude and Myrtle Ann Hamilton comstock.

He was a veteran of the Army Air Corps, a member of American Legion Post 114 and a charter member of the Eagles Lodge.

He is survived by his widow, the former Betty McDowell; three sons, Terry and Lee Comstock of Sikeston and Jimmy Dale Comstock, stationed in West Germany in the Army; one daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Malinda Jones of Sikeston; one brother, Omer Comstock of Topeka, Kan.; and six grandchildren.

Friends may call at Welsh Funeral Home after 6 p.m. today. Services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Friday in the Welsh Chapel with the Rev. Lester Dale, pastor of North Acres General Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Garden of Memories Cemetery.

HERMAN W. SMITH

TALLAPOOSA — Services for Herman W. Smith, 67, who died Sunday, were conducted at 2 p.m. today at the Assembly of God Church by the Revs. Sanford Berry and Marvin Walters.

Burial was in Memorial Park Cemetery at Malden with Boyd- Bradshaw Funeral Home in Malden in charge of arrangements.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm commodity futures prices were generally weak in early dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

On the opening, wheat futures were 5 to 11 cents a bushel lower, May 4.88; corn was ½ to 3 lower, May 2.88½; oats were unchanged to 2½ lower, May 1.34¼ and soybeans were unchanged to 2 lower, May 6.06.

Federal school plan may lead to more taxes

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A House-passed bill to revise the formula by which state aid to schools is distributed was criticized in the Senate Education Committee Tuesday night as likely to lead to a state tax increase.

The bill would raise state aid for most of Missouri's 600 school districts and is designed to give more money to poor districts and less to affluent districts. The committee delayed action on the bill until next week.

Sen. Edward Linehan, D-St. Louis, asked, "Where are we going to get the money? From another tax increase?"

He estimated the cost of the bill over the next three years could run as high as $210 million.

"This would require another tax increase," Linehan said, "I think people are really getting disgusted with this kind of thing."

Several senators suggested the only alternative to a tax increase would be to cut down expansion of other state programs.

"Have you ever known any of the barnacles of bureaucracy being scraped off the ship of state?" asked Sen. Emory Melton, R-Cassville.

However, Sen. Nelson Bone Tinnin, D-Hornesville, advocated the bill, saying, "isn't this the first strong effort for statewide equalization of educational opportunity?"

A room full of school superintendents, including a representation of the St. Louis city school system, supporting the bill, agreed with Tinnin.

However, Tinnin warned money available for expanded programs is limited to about $65 million for the next fiscal year which begins in July.

Slaughter of contaminated chickens begins

MAGEE, Miss. (AP) — The slaughter of millions of Mississippi chickens found to contain unsafe levels of a cancer-causing pesticide has started.

H.F. McCarty, one of the largest poultry producers in Mississippi, stood watching in a drizzling rain Tuesday as farmhands loaded squawking chickens into a dump truck turned gas chamber.

A metal pipe connected the truckbed to the exhaust pipe of a larger truck which stood nearby, its engine running. As the chickens were dumped into the chamber filled with carbon monoxide and they died.

The chickens were among at least 1.6 million of McCarty's 3.2 million birds found in routine testing to contain unsafe levels of dieldrin, which the Environmental Protection Agency says can cause cancer on long exposure. The EPA ordered the birds killed.

Estimates of the number of chickens affected range as high as 12 million. Federal and state officials say there is no way at present to reimburse the poultrymen for the loss of their chickens, or for the additional cost of destroying the birds.

McCarty said he agrees with the decision to slaughter the chickens.

Ferrell speaks to Rotary

Club president Jim Woods, left, listens as Mayor Frank Ferrell, standing (top photo), tells Sikeston Rotary Club members that prospective new industry would need some of the area included in the annexation proposal on the ballot for Tuesday's city election. He told the group Monday night that the city has already received inquiries from industries and added that property owners have indicated they are in favor of the proposal. Woods, left, (bottom photo), greets three new Rotarians, from left, Doyle Horne, Don McCormick and Bob Bowen.

Firm asks Malden council help to expand facilities

MALDEN — Alderman Phil Santie told the City Council Monday night that Bee Cee Manufacturing Co. Inc. met recently with the council's finance committee and requested that the city sign a $75,000 note for expansion of the company's facilities, since the city owns the property on which the company is located.

Action on the matter was postponed until legal questions can be answered in a meeting scheduled Thursday night. Also to be discussed at the Thursday night meeting is proposed enactment of a one- cent sales tax for the city and plans for the purchase of Associated Natural Gas Co. facilities.

The planning and zoning commission presented the council a revised zoning map. A public hearing on the matter will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in the city hall council room.

Athletic commissioner Gene Bennett announced that a plan has been formulated in which the church baseball leagues, Pony League and Babe Ruth League teams may use the Layne baseball field on Broadwater Road which is the only lighted field.

The council voted to advertise for bids on health and life insurance for city employes. Bids will be opened at 7 p.m. April 19.

Ron Yersak of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission told the council that it must obtain a clear title for the lot chosen as the building site of the new community building before it applies for matching funds.

In other action, the council hired Tom Chambers Bookkeeping Service to keep the city's books and write most of city's checks. The firm will also audit the airport commission books.

The council also voted to purchase new engines for street and park department mowers, proceed with new roofing for restrooms in Frisco Park, hire James Hensley as street department employe and increase the salary of the humane officer to $2 per hour.

Memo asked oil cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators said today they have a 1968 oil company memo which recommends foreign crude production cutbacks because of fears of a surplus of oil.

Staff members of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on Multinational Corporations said the document was from the files of Standard Oil of California and projected "large potential surpluses" through 1973.

They said the memo recommended cutbacks in some foreign production areas to offset some increases in Saudi Arabia and Iran where pressures were on for stepping up production.

A surplus of oil would cause the price of oil to drop, thus lowering company profits.

Staff members said the memo would be discussed with officials of the Standard Oil Co. of California in open hearings Thursday on the influence of multinational oil corporations on United States foreign policy.

According to a report in today's Wall Street Journal, the memo is a December 1968 forecast prepared by Standard of California economists. The newspaper said the memo also predicted even more bothersome supluses through 1978 when new production was expected from the Arctic, Australia and Indonesia.

The Socal economists urged strong measures to prevent such an oversupply of crude, including the production cutbacks.

The Socal economists assumed that all the major international oil companies would act concurrently to hold production down, and their forecast of total non-Communist world production based on that assumption proved to be correct within 1 per cent, the newspaper said.

A spokesman for Socal was asked about the economists' report and termed it a "think piece," adding: "There were no collective determinations ... There is no international oil Cartel ... So it would be a mistake to salivate too much over this piece of paper."

One of the results of the oil company actions was that spare production capacity fell from 6 million barrels a day in the early 1960s to less than 4 million barrels a day in 1968 through 1969 and to zero in 1973 as demand rose and Arctic oil development was delayed, the paper said.

SeMo men held in investigation

Cairo, Ill., police today were holding two Southeast Missouri men for investigation of possession of stolen ools.

The tools are believed to belong to E. H. Dugger of Sikeston Route Two. Dugger apparently did not know the tools were missing until informed by police, according to Scott County Sheriff John Dennis.

Deputy sheriff Gerald Inman and Sikeston police detective Dan Hinton were in Cairo this morning talking to suspects.

Cairo police said the men had been arrested after they tried to sell the tools.

Police car damaged in pursuit

CLARKTON-- A highway patrolman escaped injury but his patrol car was not quite so lucky Tuesday night while pursuing a vehicle with no tail lights on a township road four miles east of Clarkton.

Trooper Thurman M. Almond, 31, of Malden was pursuing a vehicle that had been involved in a race with another vehicle. The patrol car ran off the road on a curve into a drainage ditch, damaging the right side.

Johnson, 27, of Patterson.

The accident occurred when the right front tire on Mrs. Johnson's car blew out, causing her to lose control of the car which struck a guard rail.

She was taken to Madison County Memorial Hospital in Fredericktown.

Pamela Elaine Pierce, 7, of Gordonville was injured at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday on a gravel road three miles south of Jackson when the driver of the car in which she was riding lost control of the vehicle on a curve and ran into a ditch.

Miss Pierce suffered minor injuries and was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

The driver, Joan Natalie Pierce, 40, of Gordonville, was not injured.

Other area school districts are also asking approval of tax increases in order to combat inflationary costs. In Charleston, the R-1 school district board of education is seeking approval of a 30-cent increase, raising the levy from $3.60 to $3.90. Richland voters are being asked to approve an increase from $3.50 to $3.75, and the Thomas W. Kelly district at Benton is asking a 55- cent increase from $3.70 to $4.25.

With the tax increase approved, the tax rate in the East Prairie school district would still be considerably lower than other area schools, lower even than some schools which do not have the AAA rating.

"This year we lost some 120 students from the district, which means a loss of about $47,000 in state assistance," McElrath said. The 30- cent tax levy would bring in approximately $42,000 which is needed to offset the amount lost in state aid. Average daily attendance in all local schools this year is 1,550 compared to 1,671 last year.

"Operating a school district is a big business, an economic fact which can be proven by our budget which totaled $1,634,816 this year," McElrath commented.

"Over a million dollars of this budget went for teacher and other employe salaries, and when you consider the fact that most of this money is brought back into our town in some manner, you must realize the economical role our schools play in the financial growth of our town," he added.

When asked what alternative measures he felt the board should have to consider if the proposal is not approved, McElrath replied, "To name a few, some of our programs now offered would have to be eliminated or curtailed; some employes, including some students who work under various programs after school hours, would have to be dismissed; and changes in bus transportation and school maintenance would probably be necessary."

A six per cent salary increase for all employes, approved by the board earlier this year, would also be cut from the budget if the measure fails to receive approval McElrath added.

The superintendent is optimistic about approval of the tax measure and indicated that the board of education also felt that parents and other school patrons who have given their support to the school district, teachers and the educational programs in the past would again support them by approving the issue, in order to continue to provide a high standard of education for the children of the district.

Anyone who has questions concerning the proposed tax levy is urged to contact McElrath or a member of the board.

Polls for the annual school election scheduled April 2 will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Registered voters in ward one will ballot in the fire station; in ward two, the high school lobby; East Prairie ward three (rural) teen town building; and in the Dorena and Wolf Island areas, in the Dorena school building.

Included on the school ballot will be the election of two members for the board of education for three year terms. Candidates are Avery Hutcheson, A. L. "Bud" Story and John Joe Bryant.

McClarty leads SEMO hit parade

Southeast Missouri State University of Cape Girardeau split a doubleheader with Western Illinois State of Macomb, Ill., Tuesday afternoon at VFW stadium, dropping the opener 3-2 in nine innings and charging back for a 6-3 win in the second game.

The victory raised Coach Joe Ulhs Indians record to 3-1 and sends them to Warrensburg Saturday to open their MIAA league wars with Central Missouri State University.

Bob Blankenship, former SHS standout, suffered the opening game loss for the Tribe after relieving Gaylon McSpadden in the eighth. Western got to the curve balling artist for three hits and one run in the ninth. McSpadden allowed three safties through eight innings and fanned seven.

Pat McClarty, Missouri prep all stater from Lilbourn, led SEMO's six hit offense with two safties. The 5-foot- 9 first baseman transferred from Memphis State and won a starting spot with a five RBI performance in the Indians opening encounters at CBC in Memphis, Tenn.

Mark Amick connected for a solo homer for Southeast in the fourth.

Steve Elfrink got a five hit, five run first inning backing from his teammates and went on to tame Western 6-3 in seven innings.

McClarty once again paced Southeast's hitting department with two hits.

Cepeda, Agee released

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Luis Aparicio wasn't mad while Orlando Cepeda was stunned, but neither one was a member of the Boston Red Sox today.

The two veterans were unconditionally released by the Red Sox Tuesday. So were their combined $200,000 salaries.

"I'm not mad at anybody," said Aparicio, a nine-time Gold Glove winner who'll be 40 next month and has played more games—2,599—than any shortstop in major league history. "This was something that had to come sooner or later. I've been suspecting something would happen."

Cepeda, 36, didn't take his release quite so calmly. In fact, he took a blast at Darrell Johnson, the Red Sox' new manager.

"I'm really shocked and disappointed," he said. "I really didn't expect it because it was only a couple of weeks ago that he Johnson told me I was going to be his designated hitter.

"Somebody told me not to trust Johnson because he was two-faced. I told him I knew he didn't want me right along and he kept saying that was wrong."

Despite gimpy knees that prevented him from playing in the field, Cepeda hit .289 with 20 home runs and 86 runs batted in last year as the Red Sox' designated hitter.

Another famous baseball name was released when the Los Angeles Dodgers dropped outfielder Tommie Agee, 31, a World Series hero in 1969 with the miracle New York Mets.

Juan Beniquez doubled across two tying runs in the ninth inning and then scored the winner on Bob Montgomery's single, lifting Boston to an 8-7 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Los Angeles pounded Baltimore's Ross Grimsley for six runs in the fourth inning on Jim Wynn's homer, Bill Russell's double and Dave Lopes' double and defeated the Orioles 9-5.

Al Santorini, Aurelio Monteagudo and Mike Wallace limited the New York Mets to seven hits in pitching the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-0 triumph.

Rich Gossage apparently nailed down a spot as the Chicago White Sox' No. 4 starter when he pitched five hitless innings in a 4-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Angel Mangual's run-scoring double in the 10th inning enabled the Oakland A's to defeat the Chicago Cubs 8-7.

A two-run homer by Willie McCovey and a solo shot by Leron Lee powered the San Diego Padres to a 4-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Cincinnati Reds got sixhit pitching from Pat Osburn, Dick Baney and Pedro Borbon and defeated the Minnesota Twins 5-1.

Al Kaline and Ed Brinkman drove in two runs apiece as the Detroit Tigers blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0 and Tom Griffin allowed four hits in seven innings and pitched the Houston Astros past Montreal 5-1.

Lee Stanton's single drove in the winning run as the California Angels beat the Cleveland Indians 5-4 in 11 innings.

Atlanta's Carl Morton and New York's Pat Dobsen each hurled seven scoreless frames as the Braves and Yankees struggled to a 0-0 tie in a game halted after 14 innings.

MSHSAA survey on cage classes

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Is the energy crunch proving too much for an expanding Missouri high school basketball program?

Should the Missouri State High School Activities Association have cut back to two competition classes rather than expanding to four last year?

Are 421 invitational basketball tournaments too much for the Missouri high school basketball scene?

Those are questions the MSHSAA is attempting to answer in a survey of high schools across the state.

The past school year the association expanded from its Class L, M and S format to Class A, AA, AAA and AAAA.

Now Irvin Keller, executive secretary, is questioning whether expansion might have been the wrong direction. He's polling members to determine their views.

He notes members voted to expand to four classes—but that was before the energy crunch hit. Now there's concern about sending the numerous schools involved to additional regionals and state tournament play at a time when gasoline to operate school buses for educational purposes is in short supply.

"I would say that half of our schools have to travel farther (for regional play)," Keller said. The extra travel has also cut into the followings the teams bring with them—and thus in the gate receipts.

"Our regional receipts are down considerably this year," he added. "Some were down as much as 50 per cent and that's in places where they've been good in the past."

Keller said attendance at the Class AA and AAA state tournament in Columbia earlier this month drew 6,771 paying fans, while the Class M tournament at Columbia a year ago drew 8,800. Figures for the other tourneys were not available.

Another factor in the lack of attendance is saturation. Keller says there were 421 different basketball tournaments for boys this season prior to regional and state playoffs.

Keller cites another factor for the attendance lag—the fear of fans that they couldn't find gas to get home Saturday night after the state finals.

And he's not sure how wise it is to have all four state tourneys in one city. He notes that if the contestants are close to Columbia, the attendance is good; if they're far away, the attendance is bad. He noted that the Class AAAA finals were comprised of teams from the far western and eastern reaches of the state.

On the otherhand, the Class A finals featured Glasgow and Smithton—right in Columbia's back yard.

And the turnout of townspeople from those two communities at Columbia?

"I'll bet they didn't have enough people left in town to put out a fire," Keller says.

Cards blanked by Sox

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Mike Garman gave up four runs in the eighth inning as the Chicago White Sox defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0 Tuesday in a spring exhibition game.

Two of the runs off Garman, acquired from the Boston Red Sox in the off-season, were unearned. Earlier, Cardinal right hander Lynn McGlothen, also an ex-Red Sox, allowed only two hits in six innings.

The Cardinals managed only three hits against Chicago pitching, one more than their output Monday against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The St. Louis roster was reduced to 29 Tuesday with the sale of catcher Larry Haney back to the Oakland A's from whom he was obtained last year.

The Cardinals were in Winter Haven today for a mtch against the Red Sox.

Foreman stops Norton in 2nd

CARACAS (AP) — World heavyweight champion George Foreman, who retained his heavyweight boxing title Tuesday night against Ken Norton, turned his attention now to a $10 million fight with former champion Muhammad Ali scheduled for late September in Africa.

Norton also turned his attention to the Foreman-Ali fight and chose the former champion to win saying "he is a classic boxer."

Norton, a 28-year-old ex-Marine, was stopped in the second round.

A dejected Norton told newsmen in his dressing room he did not plan to quit boxing after falling before Foreman.

"I am not a quiter and I am not going to quit a loser," the challenger said, adding "I would like to fight Foreman again after the Ali-Foreman fight."

Norton won himself fame and money in the ring after two fights with Ali, one of which he won and another he lost. Both fights were split decisions.

The champion said he was sure he could whip Ali in two rounds if they met.

Commenting on his fight with Norton, the champ said he felt a few of the challenger's punches "but they did nothing to me."

"A right hand under the heart shook him. As soon as I hit him with that right in the second, I heard him grunt. I knew it was the end for Norton," the champion told newsmen.

"That really took it out of him," Foreman said of the man he fought for his second title defense since he took the crown away from Joe Frazier in 1973.

The champion said he "prayed to God before the fight and my prayers were answered."

"When I hurt a guy I've got to go out and finish him because it's my job," Foreman said. "Most of my fights end in the first or second round and that goes for a fight with Ali. It's either he gets me or I'll get him."

Commenting on his injured knee, the champion said it did not prevent him from clobbering Norton, "but my knee is really in bad shape, I was only faking out there while jumping around," he said.

Norton said before the fight he did not know of Foreman's knee injury, which reportedly occurred about 10 hours before the fight, according to Foreman himself.

Neither Foreman nor his handlers said how the injury— which his doctor said was an inflammation—occurred.

Hulshof backs Jackson's performance

CHARLESTON — Coach Jim Thornsberry's Kelly Hawks opened their 1974 baseball campaign by squeaking past the CHS Bluejays 2-1 in a Scott-Mississippi confence game here Tuesday afternoon.

Fireballing Jeff Jackson hooked up in a pitching duel with Junior Delay for eight innings before Kelly Hulshof exploded a 330 foot homerun to give Jackson his first victory of the young season.

Charleston started the scoring in the bottom of the first inning after Delay set the Hawks down without a run as McDowel belted a double to drive in the runner who had reached the base on a walk.

Kelly was unable to solve the offerings of the Bluejay moundsman until the top of the second when Jamie Burger led off with a double and Jimmy Duncan followed with a two bagger to put men on second and third with nobody out. Kenny Urhahn drove in the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

Neither team could cross the plate again until the game went into the extra inning when, with two out and nobody on base, Kenny Hulshof blasted his homer.

Jackson fanned 13 batters in recording his first victory of the year in his first start.

"I was going to put Urhahn in to pitch the bottom of the eighth frame but Hulshof delivered", coach Thornsberry commented.

Doubles were hit in the game by McDowel for Charleston, Urhahn, Duncan, and Burger for Kelly. Delay smacked a triple and Hulshof hit the lone homer. Hatchel took the loss for the Bluejays after relieving Delay.

Jackson allowed only two hits in the game while Delay and Hatchel gave up eight for the Bluejays.

Wolfpack unanimous pick

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina State, which won the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball toarnament, was officially crowned the No. 1 team in America by The Associated Press today.

Coach Norm Sloan's Wolfpack was the unanimous choice in voting by the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. N.C. State was named No. 1 on all 47 ballots for 940 points.

Kayoed in the tournament's semifinal round by the Wolfpack, defending national champion UCLA took second place on The AP poll with 832 points, easily outdistancing Marquette, which finished No. 3 with 694.

Maryland was fourth with 591 points and Notre Dame finished fifth with 508. Those top five teams retained the same position in the final poll that they had held a week earlier in the midst of the NCAA, National Invitation and Collegiate Commissioner's Tournaments.

Michigan, Kansas and Providence, all knocked off in the NCAA playoff, held the next three spots. Indiana, which won the Commissioner's tourney, used that victory to move up two notches from a tie for 11th place last week to No. 9. Long Beach State completed the Top 10 teams.

Purdue, which captured the NIT, rode that victory to 11th place in the final poll, a healthy jump from last week's tie for 18th place. The Boilermakers just topped No. 12 North Carolina in one of the poll's tightest battles. The Tar heels had been 10th a week ago.

Utah was No. 15 behind Vanderbilt and Alabama.

Pittsburgh finished 16th and Southern California was No. 17. The last three slots were held down by Oral Roberts, South Carolina and Dayton in that order.

EAST PRAIRIE — The East Prairie Eagles opened their 1974 Baseball season with a 5-4 win over the Scott Central Braves in a Scott-Mississippi Conference game Tuesday afternoon.

Tim Bard was the winning pitcher for the Eagles with ten strikeouts.

East Prairie held a three run lead at the end of the first inning, and added another two in the third. Scott Central was unable to score until the sixth inning when the Braves drove in four runs off Bard. Steve Husk entered the game as pitcher, replacing Bard, and struck out five Braves to hold off the attack.

Husk, and Mark Mars led the Eagle offense with two RBI's each. Brown and Husk each cracked the ball for doubles to spark the Eagles batting.

Teammates Williams and Mays added the sixth inning punch for the Braves with two hits each.

FAR OUT CAMP OUT takes these Boy Scouts to the wide-open spaces of Kansas City, Mo. The tenters chose not to go too far afield in celebrating Scouting's 64th anniversary. Reassuringly close was the midtown Crown Center Hotel.

Program has aided 450 farmers

Of the 137,000 farms in Missouri, approximately 98,000 (73 per cent) report annual sales of less than $10,000. On the average 70 per cent of this gross figure is needed to run the farm. This means that the average annual net income from these small farms is approximately $3000.

In human terms, these statistics mean that each year 2000 farmers feel the economic pinch too harshly and are forced to turn elsewhere for a living. The small farm is a tradition in American society. But when it comes to more than token support, persons who want to earn their total income from farming are often in trouble. That's why in 1971 University of Missouri Extension launched a small pilot project in Wayne and Polk counties.

Appropriately dubbed the small farm program by the extension farm management staff, the project was desinged to help those farmers who wanted to stay on the land despite economic barriers.

Following the pilot project, University Extension was convinced the program was needed. It was expanded to Dallas, Crawford, Oregon, Putnam, Shannon and Washington counties in 1972. These counties became the tesing ground for full scale program development which may eventually lead to a statewide program.

Identifying those who still worked small farms in each of the two original counties was the first problem. Local leaders were contacted and asked to provide names. more than 200 were interviewed.

Members of a six- member Polk County family, who were involved in the pilot project, said they regretted only one thing — that they hadn't encountered a similar project much sooner. After a year in the program they established 200 acres of improved forages on their 237- acre farm. It had been mainly broomsedge and brush. They also remodeled a dairy barn, expanded their dairy herd from 18 to 36 cows and began producing Grade A milk.

According to this farmer, he was able to increase his annual net income more than $2000 by making the right combination of resources and information.

Two- thirds of the farmers interviewed in Wayne and Polk counties had beef cows as a major enterprise; more than one- half had feeder pigs; and a smaller number were involved in dairying. The average size of the farms was 139 acres with most of the land in pasture and hay. Ninety- three per cent owned their farms. Results also showed 65 per cent of the farmers reported working at off- farm jobs during the year and 27 per cent of their wives had outside jobs.

Personal data on the farmers in the original study revealed that almost half are between the ages of 45 and 64.

Overall the study found that the farmers were concerned about improving their farm income and providing a better way of life for their families. But they lacked information on up- to- date farm management practices.

Today the program reaches more than 450 farmers using 12 education assistants. These assistants are local farmers who are concerned with helping other farmers.

They listen to the farmer's problems and offer suggestions. They also attempt to find out the interests and future plans of the family, obtain background information, help families see possible opportunities for obtaining more income, suggest an order of priorities and keep each family informed of services available from other agencies as well as University Extension.

The education assistants are trained by University Extension and work with their area farm management specialist. Once training is completed, the assistants spend most of their time helping 30 to 50 farmers on an individual basis. Identifying farm problems and improving production are their major objectives.

Frankly speaking

Cancer act calls for strategy

By THOMAS F. EAGLETON
U.S. Senator—Missouri

The cancer death rate in Missouri is 14 per cent higher than the rate in the United States. In 1950 there were 160 cancer deaths in Missouri per 100,000 population. In 1970 there were over 180.

According to current rates, cancer will strike two of three families over the years – or one in four persons. Estimates for Missouri project that during the rest of the 1970's, 17,000-18,000 new cancer cases will be reported per year, with 8,000-9,000 deaths per year.

Cancer must be controlled. Research into treatment and prevention is a necessity.

The Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare, of which I am a member, recently approved the National Cancer Act of 1974, which I cosponsored. It is designed to continue and strengthen current cancer research programs.

Progress has been made. The first National Cancer Act passed in 1971. This past fall the National Cancer Institute reported improvements in the percentage of patients surviving more than three years after diagnosis of several kinds of cancer, including leukemia.

But this progress is not enough. The Act of 1974 calls for the NCI to develop and coordinate a national strategy against cancer. Communication between the research centers and the Institute will be improved. Research results must be quickly and systematically put into widespread use for cancer prevention, detection and treatment.

Impoundment of funds for medical research is a threat to the fight against cancer. Cancer will not be understood until the fundamental life processes are understood. This requires research in all of the biosciences. In 1973, funds for several health research programs were impounded by the Administration. This only impeded our progress in fighting cancer. A few more lives may have been lost.

To help prevent this, the 1974 National Cancer Act calls for a Biomedical Research Panel. This panel will monitor the development and execution of biomedical research programs of the National Institute of Health. It will also immediately report to the President and to the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee any delays or blockages in the execution of these research programs.

Another concept strengthened in the new act is peer review of grants. All grant applications for over $35,000 will be thoroughly studied to be sure of their merits and prevent the possibility of duplicating research.

With a higher death rate from cancer than the United States as a whole, Missourians have a special stake in cancer research. More people between the ages 35 and44 in Missouri died of cancer than from any cause, and cancer was among the five leading killers for all ages except persons less than one year old.

I am hopeful the Senate and the House will quickly pass this legislation so the fight against cancer can continue.

Banking committee votes to let wage, price controls die

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee voted Tuesday to let wage and price controls die on April 30.

First the panel rejected, 11 to 4, a compromise proposal by four Democratic senators to give standby authority for continuation of the curbs.

Then it killed, 15 to 0, President Nixon's proposal to retain controls in one or two areas and preserve some of the existing control machinery.

The votes meant that the Senate will not even consider any legislation to extend the controls which expire at the end of next month.

Youth Corps offers new job opportunities

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Missouri youths between the ages of 15 and 18 will be able to earn up to $300 this summer through 13 U.S. Youth Conservation Corps summer programs to be set up throughout the state this year, according to Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.).

Federal and state funds totaling almost $300,000 have been approved for the 250 job openings available in Missouri.

April 15 is the deadline for receiving applications for the program.

Administered through the U. S. Departments of Interior and Agriculture, Youth Conservation Corps activities include construction and maintenance of trails and campgrounds, range management, erosion control and improvement of wildlife habitats.

Youth Corps camps may be coeducational, all female or all male, with live- in quarters or camps to which employes will commute. At the live- in camps, facilities may range from tents and rough bunkhouses to barrack- type facilities or dormitories.

Those interested in applying for a job in the programs may contact local Missouri State employment offices or write Robert Wilson, Assistant Director, Emcployment Service Operations, Division of Employment Security, Box 59, 421 E. Dunklin St., Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

The Missouri programs will last from four to eight weeks and will be held at the following camps:

Mingo National Wildlife Refuge, near Puxico in Wayne and Stoddard Counties (Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife).

Hay Hollow Camp in Mark Twain National Forest, near West Plains (U.S. Forest Service).

Clark National Forest, near Ft. Leonard Wood and Rolla in Pulaski County (U.S. Forest Service).

Cedar Creek Management Area, Fulton, Callaway County (U.S. Forest Service).

Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, St. Louis (National Park Service).

Welch Cave, Cedar Grove Route, near Salem (National Park Service).

Babler Memorial State Park, Grover, St. Louis County (Missouri Park Board).

Reed Memorial Wildlife Area, Lee's Summit, Jackson County (Missouri Department of Conservation).

Busch Memorial Wildlife Area, Weldon Springs, St. Charles County (Missouri Department of Conservation).

Shepherd of the Hills Hatchery, near Table Rock Dam, Taney County (Missouri Conservation Department).

Blind Pony Hatchery and Public Use Area, Sweet Springs, Saline County (Missouri Department of Conservation).

East Central District Headquarters, Union, Franklin County (Missouri Conservation Department).

Woodson K. Woods Memorial Wildlife Area, St. James Phelps and Crawford Counties (Missouri Conservation Department).

NWS to test tornado device

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)— A tornado detection device will be tested at 20 sites of the National Weather Service and the National Severe Storms Laboratory at Norman, Okla., in May.

The instrument, the size of a typewriter with four antennas, was developed here at the Wave Propogation Laboratory, operated by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The new unit detects the direction of electrical "bursts" associated with tornado bearing thunderstorms, William L. Taylor, project director, said. This means the Weather Service can intensify its radar search of a more specific area and warn the people there of a possible tornado, he said.

During the tornado detector evaluation, instruments will be installed at sites along America's "tornado alley." The sites are at Fort Smith, Ark.; Tampa, Fla.; Atlanta, Ga.; Evansville and Indianapolis, Ind.; Des Moines, Iowa; Topeka and Wichita, Kan.; Baton Rouge, La.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Springfield, Mo. Grand Island, Neb. Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Norman, Okla.; Memphis, Tenn.; Fort Worth, Houston and Lubbock, Tex.

Budapest is a city formed by the two ancient towns of Buda and Pest.

Spend a night, not a fortune.

We'll give you a large room with a dressing area and bath. Two double beds, Electric heat and air conditioning. A TV and telephone for about half what you've been paying.

General Dynamics reports sales of $1,641,799,000

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Sales of $1,641,799,000 in 1973 were reported by General Dynamics Corp. compared with those of $1,539,390,000 in 1972.

The company reported its net earnings for the year at $41,343,000, or $3.94 per stockholder share, compared to $24,271,000 or $2.30 per share in 1972.

Three major contracts on which earnings were yet to accrue included a $1.2 billion contract for construction of 18 SSN attack submarines, the company report said.

General Dynamics' report on earnings also did not include a year-end backlog of $636 million covering contracts for liquefied natural gas tankers by its Quincy Shipbuilding division.

In a letter to stockholders, General Dynamics president David S. Lewis described the company's Stromberg-Carlson.

'The Sting' is story of the 'Big Con'

Paul Newman reteams with Robert Redford, and Robert Shaw is added, to make the stellar trio which brings to the screen the Bill/Phillips production of a George Roy Hill film, "The Sting", which will come to the Mall Theatre at Kingsway Plaza Mall April 5.

The exciting suspense-packed story of the "Big Con", by David S. Ward, a Richard D. Zanuck/David Brown presentation in Technicolor, is set in Chicago in the mid 1930's.

Newman considers his role in "The Sting", in which he plays the main con man, a complete original. He has played lawbreakers and nonconformists before in such films as Hud", "The Hustler", "Cool Hand Luke" and "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid".

Like every memorable character in his gallery of screen portraits, Newman's portrayal in "The Sting" is unique.

Redford, in the picture, becomes a protege of Newman's, playing the "Roper" to Newman's "insideman". A youthful success on the Broadway stage, Redford recreated his Broadway starring role in the film version of "Barefoot in the Park" opposite Jane Fonda. "Tell Them Willie Boy is Here" followed in 1969, but it was "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" that bolted him into stardom.

He soon will return to Universal to star with Bo Svenson for producer-director Hill in "The Great Waldo Pepper", the story of a post-World War I brainstorming pilot.

In an intriguing change of image, England's sophisticated Shaw emerges in "The Sting" as an American racketeer--a far cry from his Sir Randolph Churchill in "Young Winston." He has been seen, among others, in "A Man For All Seasons", "From Russia With Love" and "The Battle of the Bulge". He is the author of five novels and three produced plays.

"The Sting" is the second original screenplay by 27-year-old Ward to reach the camera under Bill/Phillips Productions. The first was "Steelyard Blues".

Besides 20th Century Fox's "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid", Hill's previous credits include "Thoroughly Modern Millie" and "Slaughterhouse Five" for Universal. He will be in his own element in "The Great Waldo Pepper", his next Universal production.

Hooker seeks friend

Johnny Hooker (Robert Redford), anxious for female company, asks diner cashier Dimitra Arliss to go out with him. Universal's "The Sting", which starts April 5 at Mall Theatre in Kingsway Plaza Mall, stars Paul Newman, Robert Redford and Robert Shaw. The Richard D. Zanuck/David Brown presentation was directed by George Roy Hill and produced by Tony Bill and Michael and Julia Phillips. David S. Ward wrote the screenplay about "The Big Con" in Chicago of the 1930s.

Favorable signs shown in market, say experts

"Pluck the day, seize time by the forelock".
.....Horace

As of March 18 a number of the leading stock market prognosticators were detecting favorable signs.

United Business and Investment Report: "There are growing signs that the economic slowdown may have been, or at least is in the process of being arrested. The decline in housing construction activity presents some hint of having bottomed out.

"New factory orders remain strong. Businessmen still plan heavy plant and equipment outlays. The end of the Arab oil boycott and the steadiness of the unemployment rate should give consumers new heart, reopening their wallets a bit in the process.

"The first half of 1974 still promises to be something less than spectacular, but with potential strengths apparently developing in several areas, as noted above, prospects for the second half seem bright."

Standard & Poor's Investment Advisory Survey: "We see no reason to alter the policy we have been advocating of adding to commitments on price dips. A step-up in accumulation of stocks would be justified if favorable decisions are taken at the conference in Vienna."

Standard & Poor's Outlook (another subsidiary of Standard & Poor's Corp.) comments that "the oil situation and inflation have been the two major concerns for some months, and there is a certain interrelationship. Thus the nature of new oil developments remains an important nearby market factor."

Drew Odd Lot Studies was less optimistic in its appraisal of the market than some of its brothers in the business of equity evaluation.

"The market is not acting well. In spite of strength in certain indicators and potentially bullish news from the Arab oil ministers, it looks like a very good time to move your stops up tight."

Argus Research: "Consumer spending is weak right now, but is slated for a pick-up next quarter that will gather in intensity.

The big swing will, as usual, come in the volatile durable goods sector. After declining at an annual rate of 20 percent in the final quarter of 1973 and an estimated annual rate of about 14 percent in the current quarter, consumer spending for durables is expected to advance at a five percent rate next quarter, and then begin to accelerate steadily to an almost 12 percent gain in the final quarter this year."

An equity which some SEC-registered representatives term "speculative" but feel worthy of research with professional counsel at this time is Duddy's, a distributor of auto and truck tires.

This firm, which went public a year or so ago around $12 per share, now is trading in the $3 to $4 area and, with the lifting of the oil embargo, its potential is believed to be improving.

A portion of the tires it sells (mostly by Watts line telephone) through terminals strategically placed throughout the United States is produced in Israel. A major portion, however, of its needs are made under contract by big name domestic tire manufacturers bearing Duddy's brand names.

For the three months ended the past Dec. 31, sales totaled $14,437,000 with net income of $275,000 or 22 cents per share with 1,272,377 shares outstanding. For the like period of the prior year, sales were $10,458,000, with a net of $170,000 or 15 cents per share on the basis of 1,111,507 shares outstanding.

Some analysts feel that such a gain in earnings under the unfavorable situation as the gas shortage and the turbulence in Israel are quite remarkable. With so few shares outstanding, continued growth in earnings could make this stock a candidate for a split, it is noted.

Sikeston realtors hear Matthews and Turner

Ned Matthews, assistant vice president of the Bank of Sikeston, and Wayne Turner, owner of Turner Map Co. in Risco, addressed the Sikeston Board of Realtors March 19 at the Travelodge Restaurant.

Matthews informed the group of the bank's new long-range financing program, and Turner presented an outline on the various maps and atlases of Bootheel counties that are available to the public.

Plans for Realtor Week, which will be observed April 21-27, were discussed. Shirley A. Dyer will serve as chairman for the week. Dr. Raymond Lansford of Columbia, director of educational services for the Missouri Association of Realtors, will be the featured speaker for the board's next meeting at 7 p.m. April 25 at Ramada Inn.

President Ira Merideth presided and special guests were the Rev. Jim Young of Charleston, pastor of the Charleston Assembly of God Church, and Dennis Ziegenhorn, local insurance and real estate salesman.

New addition to be opened at Weiser Co.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Wieser Motor Co., 1725 North Kingshighway, will hold grand opening ceremonies Friday, Saturday, and Sunday for its new 7,800 square-foot addition.

The new addition provides additional showroom, accessory and service areas. Wieser Motor Co. now has 7,200 square feet of showroom space and over 30,000 square feet in two buildings located on a 3.5-acre tract. The company, which was established in 1964, has 22 full and part-time employes.

John L. Wieser serves as president. Managers are Jerry Wieser, general manager Ron Kokorudz, sales manager; Robert Ford, parts manager; and Robert White Jr., service manager.

Wieser Motor Co. sells Honda, Yamaha and BMW motorcycles, five lines of fiberglass and aluminum boats, plus two lines of canoes, Starcraft camping trailers and Hop Cap pick-up truck campers.

Clem Beal

Beal to head Scott County cancer drive

Clem Beal of Sikeston has been selected as chairman of the Scott County unit of the American Cancer Society.

Miss Linda Lawrence of Cape Girardeau, area executive director of Southeast Missouri of the American Cancer Society, made the announcement.

Other officers of the Scott County unit are Herb Stephens, vice president, and Priscilla Righter, secretary, both of Sikeston.

The American Cancer Society Crusade for Scott County will be during the month of April. All cities in Scott County have chairmen who will be assisted by people in that community to help in soliciting funds.

Miss Lawrence stated that cancer claims the lives of over 383,000 people per year ... 8,900 of these will be from Missouri. It is also estimated that there will be over 16,000 new cancer cases in Missouri in 1974.

Over 1,000 people will be involved in the cancer crusade in Scott County.

The majority of all the funds contributed will be used for research, with smaller allocations for public education, professional education, patient services, community services, fund raising and management.

Tanya Tucker is not afraid of growing old

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — That old enemy Age has ended many a child star's career, but Tanya Tucker, the latest fairhaired child of country music, is unconcerned.

"Starting young can be good or bad. Like, sometimes I wonder what Donnie Osmond will be doing when he's 30. But I don't let fears like that bother me," the curly-haired blone remarked.

"I don't really have a child's voice so I don't have to worry about what I'll sound like later on.

"I know my voice will be different, but it's already changed. It did that when I had my tonsils out."

No tonsils helped her latest single "Will you Lay With Me (In a Field of Stone)" make the number two spot last week in the charts. Her album, in its second week in the charts, is in the top 30.

"People like to be surprised. And they are surprised when they hear a 15-year-old singing a song like "Will You Lay With me." And sometimes they're surprised just by my age. They don't all know I'm as young as I am."

Her roots are in country music, but her release of "Delta Dawn" in 1972 and now, "Will You Lay with Me," cross over, as the term goes, into rock airplay."

"My album has a little of everything: ballads, rock and country. I don't want to put myself into a category that's too tight, but at the same time, when you have a country fan, he's the most loyal kind you can have."

Stardom, difficult to handle with poise—even for an adult, might be even harder for someone as young as Tanya. But she says she's just having fun.

"I love traveling around and doing shows. It's really exciting and I get to meet a lot of other people in the business. These are people I've been a fan of for years and they always seem surprised when I ask for their autographs.

"The whole thing is still exciting. And it's getting better. We've got a band now and we're getting new equipment and maybe a new bus," she bubbled.

"I guess I'm really not used to getting the start treatment yet," she admitted with a grin.

While her father is her manager and her producer is the highly-regarded Billy Sherill, Tanya knows the burden falls to her.

Survey shows farm-fuel situation is not improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government surveys show the farm-fuel situation is not improving much despite farmers' demands that they get new allocations.

A report by the Agriculture Department for the week ended March 21 says "the situation is about the same to slightly worse" than in the first half of the month.

Officials said the farm supply of diesel fuel was "tight to very tight" in parts of 16 states, compared with 13 states two weeks earlier.

The survey showed that some counties in Mississippi, Tennessee, Ohio and Kansas were "very critical" in diesel fuel supply.

Eight states—North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Oregon—reported wet weather had delayed field work.

"All indicate that if farmers had been able to get into fields, fuel supplies would have been inadequate to meet demand," the report said.

Officials said farm fuel prices of gasoline had increased about 29 per cent from last Nov. 1 to March 18. Diesel fuel prices had increased 38 per cent and LP gas had increased 21 per cent during the period.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers who underwent a baling wire shortage last year can expect another squeeze when the 1974 haying season rolls around.

"Baling wire supplies are expected to be short about 30 per cent if imports and domestic production continue at present rates and requirements are similar to 1973," the department said Monday.

THE BEEFS about beef in Argentina don't look likely here as Mario, a cook in a small restaurant in Buenos Aires, slices off steaks. But that holds true only for the first half of the month. During the last half there is a ban on selling beef locally in an effort to boost export sales.

The action is in Missouri in 74

The action is in Missouri this year, says the Missouri Tourism Commission. "Missouri is one of the few states that has been relatively untouched by the energy crisis," says James Pasley, commission director. "We think that with adequate supplies of gasoline and a continuing growth of attractions in the state, Missouri is the place to be this year."

As evidence that the tourist industry in the state is optimistic and expects a big year Pasley says Lake of the Ozarks area planners are continuing to build additions to already luxurious resorts, leaders in tourism and travel around the state continue to attend sports shows in large numbers, talking and promoting Missouri to thousands of vacation- minded persons and state officials continue to plan expansion of services to would- be vacationers.

Executive officers of Tourist Associations at Table Rock Lake and officials at the Lake of the Ozarks, two of the state's largest water oriented resort areas, have issued statements indicating there will be enough fuel on hand to provide all visitors to the areas with gasoline to return home and fuel for pleasure use. These areas, along with others around the state, have laid plans to insure that service stations are open seven days a week, on a rotating basis if necessary. "I think it is safe to say there will be enough fuel at the state's major resort areas to provide every visitor with enough to have a goodtime and return safely home," says Pasley.

The tourism commission points out that all agencies surveying potential vacationers are learning that most Americans plan to travel somewhere, but will probably be staying closer to home and spending more time in one spot, than in recent years. "You can't deny that our central location among the other states and our excellent recreational facilities will have an affect on where people in the midwest will vacation," says Pasley. "We could end up better off than before."

The commission has prepared a 46- page booklet on the state's seven vacation lands. Special sections deal with the Pony Express Region, Mark Twain Region, Lake of The Ozarks Region, Ozark Playgrounds Region, the Big Springs Region, Kansas City and St. Louis.

Pasley says it is important to most people to get away from yearly headaches. "After 11 months of rising prices, taxes, mortgage payments and illnesses you are ready to get away from it all," he says, "and Missouri is ready to accommodate you."

The Missouri State Park Board is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year and has taken on the monumental task of developing a state- wide system of trails. "There are several people who are interested in this program," says park director James Wilson, "including hikers, campers, horseback riders, bicycle and motorcycle enthusiasts." Park officials are starting with 1,216 miles of trails already in existence and planning to put them into a system that links city, county and state parks and recreational areas. Pasley says this program is just one more example of the forward look Missouri has in developing outstanding vacation programs.

And Missouri Boat Commission officials say boating in the state is in for a very good year. Executive Secretary W. C. "Pat" Murphy says recreational boating is expected to continue its growth. "Prospects appear good there will be enough fuel to go around for the state's 300,000 boaters," says Murphy, "and the only change in boating habits we foresee is one to smaller 'runabout' boats and a move away from the heavy cruisers." Last year boat and motor registration added more than $319,000.00 to the state's revenue. Boat registration fees amounted to $248,000.00 last year and outboard motor registration fees added another $71,378.00 to that figure.

The tourism commission says there are many historic sites and monuments in the state of interest to visitors. Recently the Gateway Arch in St. Louis was picked as one of the "Seven Man- Made Wonders of the U.S.A."in an unofficial poll of the American travel industry conducted by the United States Travel Service. Pasley says the Arch, in downtown St. Louis, attracts over 4 million persons a year.

Other important spots to visit in the state, says Pasley, include the Winston Churchill Memorial and Church of St. Mary Aldermanbury located in Fulton; Fort Osage near Kansas City; the State Capitol Building and Governor's Mansion in Jefferson City and Forest Park in St. Louis and Swope Park in Kansas City, home of two widely known zoos.

"You can't go wrong in Missouri this year," concludes Pasley.

Washington report

Senator supports soil conservation

By STUART SYMINGTON
U.S. Senator—Missouri

WASHINGTON, D. C. — This past week representatives of the Missouri Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts were here in Washington presenting their message of significance to all Americans: "Soil Conservation is Consumer Protection."

With agricultural exports at an all time high and fuel and fertilizer shortages threatening, the need to preserve and increase the productiveness of American farms has never been greater.

Major efforts of the Soil Conservation Service include work with farmers to help prevent erosion, conduct soil surveys and provide technical assistance to farmers. Among the examples of these efforts are advice on terracing of fields, which grasses to use for cattle forage, effective use of marginal cropland and flood control protection.

This past year, the Soil Conservation Service has awarded more than $1 million in contracts for work in the Small Watershed Program (P.L. 566). Work under this program is done on a cost/share basis, with the Federal Government providing the funds and local landowners and sponsors providing labor and rights- of- way.

Completed work in the last 10 years has provided benefits estimated to be almost equal to the costs; benefits such as stopping water where it falls, thereby preventing floods, and reducing soil erosion and water pollution caused by silt.

In rural areas, P. L. 566 lakes provide outdoor recreation, water supply and aid in attracting industry.

The Soil Conservation Service also sponsors two resource conservation and development projects in Missouri designed to assist rural and small town residents with projects to provide employment opportunities and improve their standard of living.

As example, the Top of the Ozarks RC&D project has stimulated some 5.5 million recreation visitor days and added an estimated $10 million to the local economy during 1973. Since inception, this project has created an estimated 2,674 man years of employment

Southwest Missouri RC&D provided assistance for such diverse projects as local fire protection, housing, landfills and flood control structures.

In addition to services in rural and smaller communities, the Soil Conservation Service provides technical advice and assistance in metropolitan areas for control of soil erosion caused by excessive run- off from shopping centers, parking lots and housing developments.

We agree with the message the representatives of the Missouri Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts brought to Washington. Because of its efforts to protect valuable land, increase agricultural production, provide protection from devastating floods and stimulate rural economic growth, soil conservation is truly consumer protection.

SHEEP GETS HER SHARE

LONDON (AP) — A fully grown sheep found wandering near London's Euston Station has created a host of woolly problems for police. Frank Pawlowski claims ownership of the animal and says he wants to sacrifice it to a sun god in a religious ritual. The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says this is illegal.

While the dispute rages, the 3-year-old ewe has eaten all the roses around the police station where she is detained.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letter To The Editor

Mr. C. L. Blanton, III, Editor
Sikeston Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir:
Enclosed is a copy of a letter personally handed to your sports editor, at the Standard office, last Thursday morning about 9 o'clock. He told me he would have it printed in your 'Letters To The Editor' column.
Having followed rather closely the content of most of the letters in this particular column, I cannot understand what might have been so objectional that it couldn't be printed. Unless, I got too close to the truth!
This letter was not written by a "sore loser" but in the interest of promoting fair play on the part of some of our adults who scratch their heads and wonder why our young people aren't satisfied with the "bag of tricks" we are handing them. It may be too late after the game to print this for it to serve any useful purpose, but since putting forth this much effort, would like to have it in the paper if it meets with your approval

Very Truly yours,
Mrs. Lester Miller, Jr.

Dear Sir:
This letter is written in protest of unfair officiating in area high school basketball games, particularly at the Lilbourn- Kelly Sub-State Class AA Tournament play in Poplar Bluff Monday night.
We like to think of high school sports as the training ground for discipline and fair play, both absolute requirements in good sportsmanship, plus the thrill of winning the game - all the way to State if possible. Monday night at Poplar Bluff each team thought the State Championship was within their grasp, along with all the fans who have followed these teams all year.
Without demeaning any of the players or the capabilities of either team as a whole, let us look at the officiating.
First, one of the referees that night had called a game in which each of the teams had participated this season. It would seem more reasonable to select officials unknown and unfamiliar to the area for these crucial games. And crucial this game was! It was certain to be the last game for those seniors on the losing team, and what player would jeopardize his last chance to play by committing senseless fouls that would put him on the bench, only to watch his teammates carry on for three quarters of play without him, particularly one who had not been in consistent foul trouble all season.
With this in mind, let us look at Jeff Jackson, a senior and forward for the Kelly Hawks who has an enviable record as a high school athlete. Only a few minutes into this game he committed his team's first foul, only to commit another before the end of the first quarter while also making 10 of the 24 points scored thus far. This proved to be his fate as far as this game was concerned because on three other attempts to make a comeback into the game, he was pegged for questionable, insignificant fouls before he had a chance to make it down court and back.
Now is it coincidence that he was benched for three-fourths of the game and no one else on either team in four quarters of play fouled out? Surely if all the boys had been watched as closely as he was none would have made it through the game.
Now what causes a situation like this? You will never find out from the officials - they run from the floor after a game like they have committed a crime! More frequently is the integrity of the officials being questioned not only in our area, but scattered across the states. But whose fault is this? Are the MSHSAA regulations not strict enough to guide and govern the actions of licensed officials to avoid so many inconsistencies in calling plays from one game to the other, thus confusing the fans?
Or do some referees assume more responsibility for the outcome of the game than it rightfully theirs?
Of course there is good and bad in everything, and I'm sure referees are no exception, and a lot can be overlooked if there seems to be a sincere effort made to threat each boy and each team impartially, but such obvious attention to one boy is unforgivable.
It is high time a firm position is taken by the MAHSAA to insure fair, unbiased officiating, or the game of basketball will surely suffer.

Very Truly yours,
Mrs. Lester Miller, Jr.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

March 18, 1974

Dear Uncle Charlie,
I would appreciate the opportunity to use your paper in expressing my thanks to the hundreds of Sikeston families who opened their homes to the high school students attending the State Student Council Conference last weekend. The student body of Sikeston High School worked hard to make the conference a success, but we could never have welcomed the 900 delegates without the warm kindness all the host families showed in making the visitors feel welcome.
It's a great feeling to know that the adults in Sikeston had confidence in both us and in the visiting students from other Missouri High Schools. I'm very proud of Sikeston!

Sincerely yours,
Maureen Klein

Mr. Charley Blanton, Editor
Sikeston Daily Standard
Sikeston, Mo. 63801

Dear Mr. Blanton:
I am writing this letter to complain; not about the Watergate affair; and not about the high cost of living; and not about the shortages of things; nor about the 55 mile speed limit. I am complaining about the way people are trusting "God". I want to take a stand for my "God", your "God", everybody's "God".
We get our daily newspapers and we read about all the crimes that are being committed; we read about the Watergate affair; we read about the high prices and the shortages; we read about which school beat which school playing football, basketball and etc. How much do we read about "God?" A little two by four inch inch spot in paper with a scripture and a prayer. And then one day a week; one whole page is dedicated for all the church services for Sunday. I wonder Mr. Blanton, how many people bother to read this page.
We turn our T.V.'s on of a evening, and we see and hear about more crime, more about sports, and the weather. Then, it's murder movies, rape movies, crime, crime, crime, 'till the stations go off the air. People will stay up and lose sleep to see who kills who.
Then, there are the people who will dash in from work, change clothes, and grab a bite to eat, sometimes they have to miss that bite, and they rush off to a ball game. Scream their heads off for their teams to win.
Alas! Come Sunday morning. They are too sleepy to get up and go to Sunday School and Church. That is the only day to catch up on their sleep. So what? They aren't doing anything wrong, so "God" won't be too mad at them if they miss church. Miss a meal to go to church! Never.
Mr. Blanton, people better wake up. It's later than they think. With out "God", there would be nothing. I pray that Sunday morning the churches will be overflowing. I'll be there. Will you?

Concerned about souls,
Sincerely,
Mary Craig

Dear Editor:

FEET OF CLAY

Two times in American history our Great Nation has abandoned soldiers to an enemy so small we could whip them on Saturday afternoon and then watch it on the six o'clock news — and both times Richard Nixon was there. He was vice president under Dwight Eisenhower when they left about 500 men unaccounted for in North Korea. The second time was North Vietnam where Nixon very recently abandoned about 1500 American soldiers who are unaccounted for, and no doubt, like those in North Korea, 22 years from now they will still be unaccounted for. A president or a nation who abandons the men they sent to fight their war can never be honorable. Must we wonder why some fled our country to avoid this fate?
I would like to see an amendment making it unconstitutional for America to leave soldiers unaccounted for — ONLY unless we are defeated, and it would automatically be an impeachable offence for a president to commit this shameful act. I see no real difference in our P.O.W.'s — M.I.A.'s and S.A.H.'s — the latter meaning Safe at Home's, we traded the lives of our M.I.A.'s and with it our honor for personal convenience and now in filthy corruption up to our necks and without a leader, this once proud nation stands on "FEET OF CLAY."

COOKING-UP

The Daily Standard, Sikeston, Mo.
Wednesday, March 27, 1974 — 24

With the arrival of March comes the first hint of spring and fishing enthusiasts everywhere take to their favorite fishing holes with hopes of landing the big one. Our rivers and lakes in Southeast Missouri yield a large and varied supply of fish for our dining pleasure. Your cooking can become legendary with the following collection of recipes for the proper cooking of fish.

Wanda Atchley

The secret to fish cookery is using the proper temperature and time. In general, a moderately hot skillet or oven and a very short time period is best. Watch the fish carefully. It is done when the watery, translucent look of raw fish changes to an opaque, milky color in the center of the thickest part.

At this point, the flesh will easily separate into flakes when tested with a fork. Handle fish as little as possible during and after cooking to preserve the appearance.

Whether you fry your fish or bake it, you will be guaranteed success with these recipes.

SOUTHERN PAN-FRIED FISH

2 to 3 lbs. fish
1 cup shortening
2 tbsp. salt
½ cup cornmeal

Cut fish into serving pieces. Heat shortening in frypan over medium heat. Mix salt and cornmeal; roll fish in cornmeal mixture. Drop into frypan; fry for three minutes or until delicately browned: Yield four servings.

For those of you who prefer to cook their catch immediately, the above recipe can be prepared easily on the river bank or your favorite camp spot.

BATTERED CATFISH

1 can shortening
2 eggs beaten
1 cup milk
salt and pepper to taste

Melt shortening in deep thick kettle. Mix eggs and milk. Salt and pepper catfish; dip into milk mixture. Roll in cornmeal; drop in hot shortening. Fry until brown, turning once; drain on absorbent paper and serve hot with hush puppies, if desired. Yield 12 servings.

SOUTHERN BROILED TROUT

Salt and pepper to taste
4 large fresh speckled trout
½ cup melted butter
1/3 cup lemon juice
5 tbsp. chopped parsley
½ cup grated onion
½ tsp. paprika
5 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
Dash of cayenne pepper

Salt and pepper trout; place on foil. Mix remaining ingredients; pour over trout. Close foil. Broil at 450 degrees until done. Yield: six servings.

FAVORITE BLUEGILLS

¼ lb. salt pork, cubed
1 large onion, sliced
1 tsp. mixed spices
½ cup vinegar
½ cup sugar
1 gsp. salt
1 dozen bluegills

Fry salt pork until brown. Cook onion in small amount of water until tender. Combine onion and pork; add spices, vinegar, sugar and salt. Cook bluegills in vinegar mixture for 10 minutes or until tender. Yield: four servings.

The following recipe is for those of you are are non-fisherman and prefer to purchase your fish at your local grocer's.

BAKED FISH WITH TOMATO SAUCE

2 pkg. frozen fish fillets, partially thawed
2 tbsp. minced onion
1 clove of garlic, minced
1 tbsp. butter
2 8-oz. cans tomato sauce
1 tsp. sugar
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 tbsp. lemon juice
Chopped parsley (opt.)

Cut fish into six portions; arrange in greased, shallow baking dish. Saute onion and garlic in butter until tender and transparent; add tomato sauce, sugar, Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice. Simmer for five minutes; pour over fish. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes; sprinkle with chopped parsley. Yield: six servings

Try these with fish

HOT SLAW RELISH

Small-size version of a favorite recipe.

3 tablespoons packed light brown sugar
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 tablespoons corn oil
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon celery seed
4 cups packed shredded green cabbage

In a 10-inch skillet over low heat stir together all the ingredients except the cabbage; add cabbage and mix well. Cover and simmer, stirring a few times, until tender — 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

CUCUMBER SAUCE

It features sour cream.

1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon prepared white horseradish
1/2 cup peeled minced cucumber
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon white pepper
1 tablespoon minced fresh chives

Shortly before serving mix together all the ingredients; cover and refrigerate. Makes about 1 1/2 cups. (If cucumber has large seeds, cut in half lengthwise and scoop out seeds before mincing remaining cucumber; if seeds are small they need not be removed.)

Food's More Than Something To Gulp

By Virginia Knauer
Special Assistant to the President and Director
Office of Consumer Affairs
Department of Health, Education and Welfare

Are your hands quicker than your eyes?

Do you grab a can or box of food off the grocer's shelf without giving your eyes time to read the label? Or just barely give your eyes time to read the price?

This week when you do your grocery shopping, slow down. Take time to read labels. I think you'll find some interesting information has been added to the labels of many foods.

If you have been reading labels recently, you know I'm referring to the new nutrition labeling that some food companies are using. By 1975, more foods will have nutrition labeling either because of some regulations of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) or—I'm pleased to say—consumer demand.

Why should you take time to read the nutrition labels? I personally read them:

- To find out how many calories are in each serving of the food;
- To compare the nutrition content of different kinds of food, to find better nutrition for my food dollar;
- To aid me in planning nutritionally balanced meals;
- To identify foods that are high in certain nutrients that I need or should avoid.

The labels don't tell you everything you need to know about food. For one thing, there is a limited amount of space on boxes and can or jar wrappers. Also, a supermarket is not a library where you pull "books" off the shelf to do your homework about nutrition.

You can do your homework at home—or at your public library — by finding and reading books and magazine articles about nutrition. But so much has been written about nutrition, it is easy to get confused. The Federal Government has two basic booklets about nutrition available free: Food Is More Than Just Something To Eat and The New Look in Food Labels. Send your request for either one (or both) to Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Tube watchers may be interested in a 10-part series about nutrition that will be broadcast by some NBC-affiliated television stations, starting this spring. Check local TV schedules for the program called "Nutrition for Today," or call or write the NBC station in your area for its schedule of this series.

SOUTHERN SANDWICHES

Preserves and nuts taste good with ham.

8-ounce package cream cheese
½ cup Concord grape preserves
¼ cup finely chopped toasted pecans
½ pound thinly sliced ham
16 slices whole-wheat bread

Soften cream cheese and mix thoroughly with preserves and nuts. Toast bread if desired; arrange ham on 8 slices of the bread; spread cheese mixture on remaining 8 slices bread and place these, cheese side down, over ham. Cut each sandwich into 2 triangles. Makes 8 servings.

REGINA VAN AALTEN BENENSON'S BOTERKOEK

A Dutch family recipe contributed, via her daughter, by a great cook now living in Lexington, Ky.

1 cup butter
¾ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg, separated
1 rounded tablespoon sour cream
1¾ cups unsifted flour
2-3rds cup ginger marmalade

Butter and flour a baking pan (about 11 by 7 by 1½ inches). In a medium mixing bowl with a wooden spoon, cream butter and sugar; thoroughly stir in egg yolk and sour cream. With your hands, gradually work in the flour, scraping bowl with a spatula at end of mixing and rounding dough into a ball — it will be very soft. Cover tightly and freeze until firm. Cut into quarters; work with ¼ at a time, keeping remainder refrigerated. Pinch off small pieces of a ¼ portion and soften slightly with fingers; pat pieces, as you pinch them off, to cover half of bottom and ½-inch up half of sides of prepared pan; cover remaining half of pan with another ¼ portion of the dough; smooth. Spread with marmalade. Using the same method, pat remaining 2 portions of dough over the marmalade (but not up sides of pan) and smooth. Pour the unbeaten egg white over the top and spread evenly; pour off excess egg white. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until golden-brown — 30 minutes. Cool. Loosen edges. Cut into diamond shapes.

POSTMAN FINDS NEW COMPOST

BRADFORD, England (AP) — A Bradford postman decided to save time on his morning rounds by burying part of the mail in his back garden, a magistrate's court was told. The prosecutor said the letters seemed to have formed a "new type of compost."

Double Recipe

It takes time to make a good pot of chili, so it makes sense to double the recipe, using half now and popping the rest in the freezer.

And that holds true for other dishes as well, casseroles, stews, spaghetti sauce, for example. Simply cook according to the recipe, cool thoroughly at room temperature, and store in an air-tight container, leaving room for expansion at the top if the dish contains liquid.

5 run in race for collector

SCOTT CITY-- Five candidates are running for collector and nine are seeking seats on the Board of Aldermen in the April 2 general election.

Candidates for a nine-month unexpired term as collector are Mary Weisenborn, Fern Arnold, Virginia Richardson, Bonnie Raines and Linda Davis.

Four aldermen will be chosen for terms of two years each.

In ward one, incumbent Alderman E. Dale Crites faces opposition from Tom Bellis.

In ward two, incumbent John Schlenker will be running against Richard Hink, Lawrence Ward and John Josharek.

Lester MeKee is unopposed in his bid for alderman from ward three.

In ward four, incumbent William Anderle is opposed by E. C. Tyler.

Voting precincts for ward one will be in the Illmo- Scott City High School. Wards two, three and four will vote in the city hall.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

The breath of life

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am wondering about the right and wrong techniques of mouth-to-mouth respiration — and what the dangers are when done wrong?

I am elderly. I had been listening to a talk attentively and under tension for one long hour. When I was standing upright after that I passed out.

When I soon became semi-conscious someone near me raised my head, pinched my nose shut tightly and pushed my lower jaw down tightly and began mouth-to-mouth respiration. It stopped my breath. It seemed like I was in torture. I pulled away and blacked out again. When I became conscious again my tongue got thick and my lower jaw was so stiff I could hardly answer questions.

When should mouth-to-mouth respiration be given and how?

DEAR READER — I would imagine that mouth-to-mouth respiration would be very uncomfortable if you were breathing normally on your own.

Artificial respiration should be given when the breathing has stopped. If the breathing is very shallow and infrequent it might be difficult to be sure that a person is still breathing. If there is any doubt then one can suspect that respiration is not adequate and it would probably be better to do it than not do it. Respiration does stop in some cases during a heart attack, a stroke, or other medical problems.

Properly done, the mouth is opened. A trained person might be sure that the tongue hasn't fallen back into the throat blocking the air passages or, if possible, see that food is not lodged in the windpipe.

The victim's head is tilted back. The nose is closed or pinched shut and the person giving the artificial respiration puts his mouth over the victim's and exhales into the mouth. Obviously, if the nose is not closed the air simply rushes out the nose and not into the lungs. Also, the mouth has to have a tight enough fit not to lose air. If the windpipe is not obstructed the exhaled air goes into the victim's lungs. The chest should expand as it does with normal breathing.

Next, the mouth is removed and the victim naturally exhales. Then the procedure is repeated so that the person giving the respiration exhales each breath into the victim's mouth. Basically each time the donor exhales his breath goes into the victim's lungs and when he takes his mouth off to get a new breath the victim is releasing the air from his lungs.

Fortunately, respiration resumes normally in many people after a few breaths this way. If it doesn't then the process is continued until medical help can be obtained.

A handy little book on artificial respiration and other emergency first aid is "Save Your Child's Life!" by David Hendin. For your copy send one dollar plus 25 cents for postage and handling to "Save Your Child's Life!" in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10022.

The danger in giving artificial respiration is minimal indeed. The danger is in failing to give it when needed. If the procedure is continued for a relatively long period of time some residual soreness of the jaw might occur and your mouth might not feel normal.

If you had a simple faint then you might not have needed artificial respiration but the only people who would know would be those present at the time and able to observe your breathing pattern.

When an adult is giving artificial respiration to a young child, then it is often possible and best, to cover both the nose and the mouth of the child with the adult's mouth.

Dr. Lamb welcomes questions from his readers, but because of the volume of mail he cannot answer personally. Questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns. Write to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

New study opens to students

CAPE GIRARDEAU-- Southeast Missouri State University students who find they can't satisfy their objectives through an established program at the university are increasingly turning to the interdisciplinary studies major, now barely a year old.

Dr. Donald Froemsdorf, chairman of the university's Division of Science and Mathematics, is credited with introducing the idea on the Southeast Missouri State campus.

"It isn't original with us," he said, "but has been done in small liberal arts colleges where the student contracted his plan of study from a list of courses offered."

When the division chairman first mentioned the prospect in a meeting with the heads of the science and math departments, it was greeted with enthusiasm.

"I felt that the program would be beneficial for students in our departments who were interested in, for example, environmental studies and oceanography," he recounted. "We worked on it for about a year before it was then accepted and presented to university officials."

The interdisciplinary studies major was eventually adopted on a university- wide basis and now encompasses several areas. The most popular so far are social work, journalism, and conservation, according to Dr. David Strand, dean of the university and officer in charge of administering the program.

"Currently there are over 50 students working with a faculty committee," Dr. Strand noted, "and I usually have several applications on hand that are in some state of being processed."

He added, "There is no limit to the program other than the imagination and interests of the student involved."

The basic requirements for a bachelor of science degree with a major in interdisciplinary studies are 14 hours of communications and humanities, 10 hours of natural and mathematical sciences, 14 hours of social studies, and four hours of physical education.

In addition, as contracted by the students, the work must be done in two or more departments and usually can include no more than 30 hours from any one discipline. A major or minor as defined in other curricula is not required.

A student interested in this program writes a letter to Dr. Strand stating the area of emphasis he wants to study. He also gives the names of two or three faculty members who can assist in planning his program.

Dr. Strand contacts the faculty members to determine their willingness to serve on the student's committee. This done, the student meets with his committee, discusses the specific courses that will constitute his program or "contract," and submits the resulting decision to Dr. Strand for approval.

Dr. Strand emphasized that "one of the criteria for graduation with a major in interdisciplinary studies is a 2.5 GPA (2.0 is the standard for other majors), so we're dealing with a better than average student."

Teri Thompson, a freshman from Cape Girardeau, plans to enter social work and deal primarily with children.

"With this program," she said, "I feel in touch with what I'm interested in. I started as a major in child psychology but kept losing touch with my purpose in college."

A junior college transfer from Mineral Area College in Flat River, Dennis Rogers of Farmington heard of the program from a friend.

"I planned to go into sociology but didn't want to take the foreign language requirement. I find the courses I take relate to what I plan to be doing," said Rogers.

Rogers wants to enter the Volunteers in Service to America corps after graduation and go from there into some form of social work.

Journalism is the major interest of Mark Bliss, a sophomore from Kirkwood. "I was in history until the end of last semester," explained Bliss, "but I now have a minor in political science and plan to go into newspaper work with my journalism major."

None of the students expressed any major concern about being able to find a job with their unusual degree.

What's the law?

The case of the vicious sidewalk

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Jake and Barney were two vicious dogs who frequently terrorized pedestrians using the public streets. The barked, snarled and even bit one or two victims. Despite several warnings to their owners, the dogs were permitted to continue their delinquent ways unabated.

When they bit Mr. Jones, however, instead of biting them back, which was his first inclination, Mr. Jones sued the city for his injuries.

"Under the law," argued Mr. Jones in court, "a city is responsible for maintaining its sidewalks in a safe condition. With Jake and Barney permitted to roam them, no sidewalk was safe."

"He's got it all wrong," responded a municipal official. "A city's obligation to keep its sidewalks safe refers to keeping them in good repair. Since a vicious dog is not a defect in the sidewalk and since a defective sidewalk can't be vicious, Mr. Jones can't claim that he was injured as the result of an unsafe sidewalk."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the city liable for maintaining a vicious sidewalk?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that where impoundable vicious dogs are permitted to prowl city sidewalks with the knowledge of city officials who also know that their owners have failed or refused to control or confine them, the city can be held liable to a person bitten by such a dog for failing to maintain its public sidewalks in a safe condition.

This decision, noted the judge, refers only to dangerous conditions to human beings created by nonhuman animals and not by other human beings. In other words, concluded the judge in effect, a city cannot be held liable for failing to maintain its sidewalks in a safe condition where, for example, a drunk bumps into another and causes injury.

Mathis ordered to trial

NEW MADRID— Harold Mathis, 35, of Portageville charged with forcible rape Sunday of a 19- year old Portageville Route Three girl, was ordered to stand trial in Circuit Court when he waived a preliminary hearing on the charge Tuesday in Magistrate Court before Judge Leo Hedgepeth.

Bond for Mathis was set at $5,000.

Three Baldwyn, Miss., men, Larry Billips, Bobby Billips and Jackie Warner were bound over to Circuit court on a charge of possession of stolen property and bonds of $500 were set for each, when they waived a preliminary hearing.

The men were arrested in New Madrid by city police Monday night when they were seen in a 1968 Cadillac which had been reported stolen in Jackson, Miss. Two guns and some jewelry were discovered in a search of the vehicle. The men also waived extradition and consented to be returned to Tupelo, Miss., where they are charged with felonious stealing.

Leonard Crum of Columbia was bound over to Circuit Court on a charge of carrying a concealed dangerous and deadly weapon— a .22- caliber pistol. His bond was set at $500 when he waived a preliminary hearing.

Richard Louis Wilburn, a minor charged with possession of alcohol, was levied $65 fine, given a six-month suspended jail sentence and placed on probation.

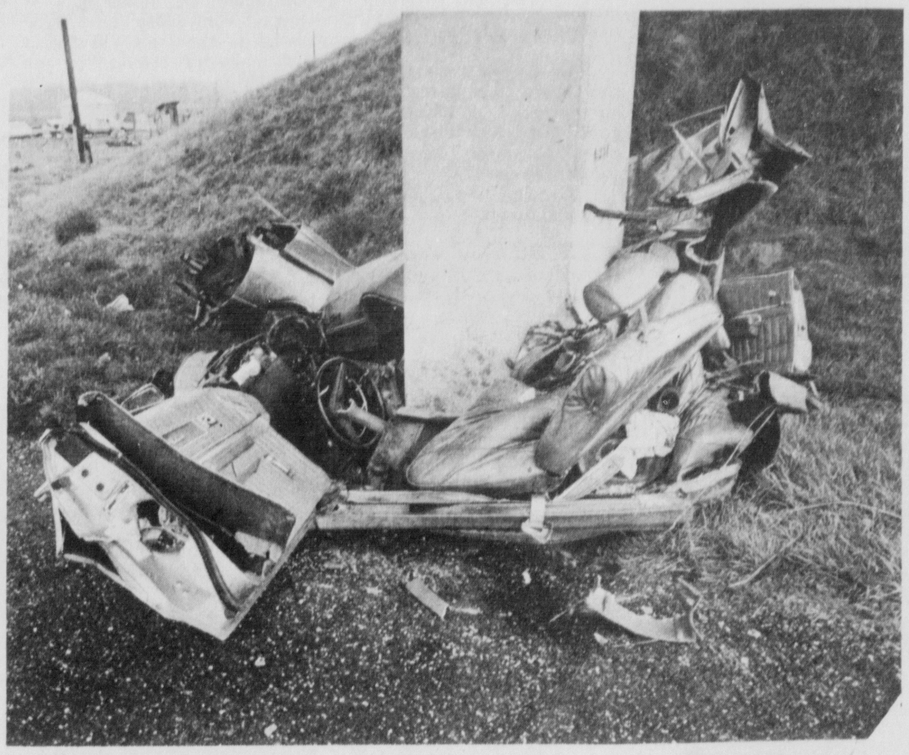
Terry Michael Robison was fined $35 on a public intoxication charge.

Fined on motor vehicle violations were:

Marvin Nichols, careless and imprudent driving by failure to stop at stop sign, $25; Willard Lee Morrison, permitting underage person to drive, $20; Herman LeRoy Moser, expired license plate, $20.

Bruce J. Bryant, improper motor vehicle inspection, $20; Republic Mfg. Co. and Henderson Trucking Co., each charged with operating a vehicle without a copy of Missouri special fuel permit in vehicle, $25 each; and Hydro Dredge Co., operating vehicle without a reciprocity cab card or trip permit, $25.

Fined on speeding charges were Willard Lee Robinson, $25; Herbert Hoover Fortune, $40; Russell Rudell Chaney, $35; Charles J. Stancil, $30; Vernon Thomas Bell, $49; and L. A. Jackson and Clyde Richard Hart, forfeited bonds of $55 each.



House to debate no fault measure

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — As the Missouri House prepared to begin expected lengthy debate on a "no fault" insurance measure, a bill to establish a 10-year statute of limitation for claims alleging faulty construction ran into strong opposition on the floor.

The measure was amended to provide the 10-year limitation from the original five years.

An amendment to make the limitation 30 years was defeated.

Rep. David Reed, R-Kansas City, said th bill would benefit the "unethical contractor who cuts corners."

The allegation was denied by the bill's sponsor, Rep. George E. Murray, R-Creve Coeur, who said it would allow contractors and architects to look forward to a reasonable time period when they would not be sued.

Given first-round approval by the House today was a bill to remove circuit judges from the board of jury commissioners in third and fourth class counties and replace them with jueges of the county court.

Tuesday night the House Ways and Means Committee, considering a proposal to repeal the tax on household goods, was told the measure "carries out the mandate of the people when they passed a constitutional amendment giving us authority to repeal the tax."

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, who sponsored the bill along with eight fellow senators from both parties, added, "this ought to be the year of the taxpayer."

The committee, however, delayed making a recommendation on the measure, which has already received Senate approval, pending receipt of information concerning its financial impact from the state Department of Revenue.

Under the bill, municipalities and counties will be reimbursed from the general revenue fund for the money lost due to the repeal of the tax.

Although the annual cost of the reimbursement program was estimated at $14 million, Cason said the state should make reimbursement of that money a top priority, "before we get into any new programs."

Sikeston driver killed

A Sikeston man was killed early today and two persons were injured Tuesday in three area traffic accidents, according to the highway patrol.

Mark Larkin Lewis, 24, of Route Two was killed at 4:30 a.m. today three miles west of Bertrand at the Route CC overpass at Interstate 57 when his car left I-57 at a high rate of speed and struck an overpass pillar.

Lewis was born June 10, 1949 in Matthews to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lewis of Miner, who survive.

In June 1969, he married Wanda Lou Harbison, who survives.

Also surviving are one daughter, Mary Lewis of the home; one son, James Samuel Lewis of the home; five sisters, Mrs. Mary Gartunz of Fontana, Calif., Mrs. Betty Johnson of Lexington Park, Md., and Rita, Cathy and Elaine Lewis of Miner; and two brothers, Bruce Lewis of Miner and Kenneth Lewis of Omaha, Neb.

The body is at Shelby Funeral Home in East Prairie, where arrangements are incomplete.

A one-car accident at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 143 one mile north of Patterson resulted in serious injuries to Sally Ann

Car demolished

Sikeston resident Mark Larkin Lewis, 24, died at 4:30 a.m. today when his car smashed broadside into a pillar of the Route CC overpass on Interstate 57 three miles west of Bertrand. Lewis's car struck the pillar at a high rate of speed (top photo), causing the auto to wrap almost completely around the post, and separated (bottom photo) the front end from the car by 20 feet. Lewis was pronounced dead at the scene.

Robbery, assault suspects given changes of venue

NEW MADRID — Circuit Judge William L. Ragland Tuesday granted a change of venue to Mississippi County in four cases against Calvin Ross and Robert Ross of St. Louis, who are charged with armed robbery, two counts of felonious assault with intent to kill and felonious stealing.

The men are charged with the Dec. 4, 1973 armed robbery of the DeWitt Barry Grocery near Kewanee in which store attendant Willie Hardin was robbed, severely beaten and shot. They are also charged with shooting Willie Glispie of Sikeston Route Four when he stopped a school bus in front of the store while the robbery was in progress. Glispie was shot in the mouth by one of the robbers who entered the bus.

The felonious stealing charge involves the theft of a car from the Rev. Donald Edwards of Wolf Island. The men are accused of stealing the car when the Rev. Mr. Edwards stopped to offer assistance when he noticed their wrecked car on Interstate 55.

Trial for a third man, Charles Williams of New Madrid, who is charged separately in connection with the same cases, is set for April 11 in New Madrid County Circuit Court.

A change of venue to Stoddard County was granted upon the application of Al Sullenger, one of the defendents named in a petition for a temporary injunction filed by Noranda Aluminum Inc. against striking officers and members of United Steel Workers of America Local 7686 and their wives and children.

A temporary restraining order issued by the court on March 15 remains in effect until a hearing is held in Stoddard County.

The court action stems from a strike which started Jan. 31 when efforts to work out a new contract were unsuccessful between the union and company representatives.

Revocation of probation for Jackie Drake of Canalou was ordered by Judge Ragland. Drake was placed under supervised probation when he was sentenced on June 22, 1971 to four years in the custody of the State Department of Corrections on a grand larceny charge.

An application for a writ of habeas corpus filed by Dwight Butler of Malden, confined in the New Madrid County jail on a charge of possession of stolen property and ineligible to make bond, was overruled by Judge Ragland.

Butler, who is on parole from a three- year sentence in Mississippi, also faces felony charges in Stoddard County.

McArthur Drake was granted a $1,400 judgment against Delores Recker for damages resulting in personal injuries he sustained in an automobile accident on Nov. 28, 1971 in Portageville.

A $4,000 judgment for personal injuries and property damage was awarded Ray Wilson and a $500 judgment was granted to Dawn Reneea Wilson for personal injuries against Jackie Lee Drake, which resulted from an automobile accident which occurred March 30, 1973 on Highway 61 in New Madrid County.

First National Bank of Sikeston was granted a default judgment for $7,500 on one count and $15,000 on a second count of its counter claim for punitive damages filed against the state of Missouri director of revenue, which involved two tracts of land on which the state had filed suit alleging it held sales tax liens.

The marriage of Lillie Marie Manning of East Prairie Star Route and Jimmy Ray Manning was dissolved, with Mrs. Manning receiving custody of one child.

Mrs. Ruby Lee Cravens Adams was granted custody of two children, $20 per week per child for support and $200 for attorney's fee when her marriage to John Lee Adams of Parma was dissolved. Adams received reasonable rights of visitation.

Other dissolution of marriage petitions were approved for Carl Joseph Cummings of New Madrid and Jessie Ray Cummings; David W. Midkiff of Gideon and Patricia Ann Midkiff, with custody of one son granted to the father; Nancy C. Goodman Pardon of Portageville and Carl Wayne Pardon; Mrs. Pardon was restored to her maiden name of Goodman; and Phyllis Ann Boulton of New Madrid and Robert Earl Boulton.

A change of venue to Stoddard County was granted in an unlawful detainer and damage suit filed by Margaret Essary against Bobby Cronan.

Student questioned about 'pot'

PARMA — A 16- year-old Parma High School boy suspected of smoking marijuana during a gym class was taken into custody Monday for investigation by New Madrid County juvenile officer J. J. Bloomfield Jr.

The youth reportedly was smoking in a restroom stall in the dressing room. Other students in the dressing room reported to the teacher that they suspected the smoke was from marijuana.

A few grams of loose marijuana and two burned marijuana cigarette stubs were discovered on the boy by officers.

Bloomfield said the investigation is continuing.

April to be disaster preparedness month

BENTON— Les D. Lankford, presiding judge of the Scott County Court, today signed a proclamation urging all citizens of Scott County to observe the month of April as Disaster Preparedness Month.

This proclamation points out that Scott County is annually confronted with the possibility of spring flooding and that we are entering into the tornado season. The proclamation urges citizens to prepare now for emergencies and to take protective measures designed to reduce the number of casualties and damage to property.

The presiding judge also paid tribute in his proclamation to workers in the field of Disaster Preparedness in Scott County, urging citizens to cooperate with Disaster Preparedness officials in this important work.

Lankford offered some suggestions on preparing for emergencies. Among these were making sure mobile homes and trailers are tied down and making plans for shelter of the occupants in case of windstorms or tornado. Families should establish a plan to be taken in case of a storm or attack warning.

McElrath cites inflation as cause of tax vote

EAST PRAIRIE — Inflationary costs of operations while maintaining the standards of quality to enable the East Prairie R-2 School District to be classified AAA by the State Board of Education is the cause for the school board's decision to ask for a tax increase in the April 2 school election, according to Supt. Gerald W. McElrath.

After long and careful deliberation, the board decided at its February meeting to seek voter approval of a 30- cent increase in the present school tax rate of $2.95 per $100 assessed valuation.

"The absolute minimum ($3.25) on which the schools can be operated at the present standards is being sought," McElrath said.

"Everyone, housewives, farmers, businessmen, are all aware of the rise in the costs of living and we (schools) are no exception. There are increases in the costs of program improvements; building operation and maintenance; pupil transportation; cost of living increases for employes; food; and instructional supplies," he said.

McElrath cited, for example, an increase from 21 cents per gallon for gasoline last year to 38 cents this year; duplicator and mimeograph paper, which cost 85 cents per package last year, has doubled in price to $1.70 now; school buses, from $8,000 in 1971 to $9,500 at present; and added that costs of almost everything used for operations and maintenance of the schools have increased tremendously in the past year.

The present $2.95 tax rate — lowest in the area — has been in effect in the local district for five years. Prior to that, the rate was $3.40 from 1965 through 1969. With voter approval, the $3.25 rate would still be lower than the average tax levy ($3.64) for all schools in the state during the 1972-73 school year. For those districts operating high schools, the average levy was $3.76.

The necessity of seeking a tax increase is not unique to the R-2 school district.

Mrs. Buchanan seeks school board seat

Sarah Buchanan announces her candidacy for election to the Sikeston R-6 School District board of education in the April 2 general election.

"I think schools are a most important part of the community and that it takes interested parents to serve on the board," Mrs. Buchanan said.

Mrs. Buchanan has served as a den mother in the Cub Scout program and is a member of the Southwest Elementary and Middle School Parent- Teacher Associations.

She has been employed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for 20 years and is a member of the local executive board for Communication Workers of America.

She and her six children, Dale, 17; Jane, 16; Bruce, 14; Gina, 12; Gerald, 11; and Michael, 8, live at 1400 W. Murray Lane.

Truck hits bridge, loses wheels

Gary Leasure of Bradford, Ark., escaped injury at 2:15 a.m. today when the tractor- trailer truck he was driving overturned near the junction of Highways 60 and 114. The rear wheels of the truck apparently hooked on the bridge railing and sent the truck out of control. The truck (top photo) overturned on the side of the road. The right rear wheels (bottom photo) stayed on the west side of the bridge, with a set of wheels on the north side of the road and one wheel jammed against the bridge rail on the south side. The truck was loaded with vegetables.

RIDING THE RAILS

Among methods of surface transportation, cars are probably the least efficient. And yet, at least until recently, cars carried an estimated 87 percent of interstate traffic, with planes carrying 11 percent and the remaining 2 percent split between buses and trains.

The figures come from the three-year-old quasi-Government railroad agency, Amtrak, whose goal is to put a big dent in that 87 percent. And, boosted in large measure by the energy pinch, Amtrak appears to be doing just that.

In a published interview, an Amtrak official said that the number of railroad passengers increased by 7 to 9 percent during the first two years of the service, which was instituted to save a dying rail passenger industry.

"Then, in 1973, the increase was about 24 percent for most of the year," said the official, Fletcher Prouty, in an interview for Scripps League Newspapers. "For October through December, however, our ridership shot up 29 percent beyond the same period in 1972."

Amtrak now uses about 30,000 miles of track from coast to coast. However, there is already in place some 300,000 miles of track — or ten times more than what is now being used for passenger service, making feasible greatly expanded service as demand increases.

Although Amtrak is still heavily subsidized by the Federal government, it grossed $202 million in 1973 compared to $162 million in 1972. It appears that the agency could be self-sustaining within two to three years if all goes well.

We believe the government deserves a pat on the back for its unaccustomed foresight that led to creation of Amtrak in time to help cushion the effects of the energy shortage. Hopefully, increasing numbers of traveling Americans will decide to ride the rails to help conserve our scarce energy resources.

"The old, old saying 'Plan your work, work your plan' is," says The Spotlight, a Field Enterprises Educational Corporation publication, "no idle and theatrical bit of dreaming. It really means something in every walk of life. . The toughest part of everything we do in life is getting started to do it. The planning is really the easy part, but the courage and persistence of action are difficult. If we make plans and then really work them, the results will be amazing. . . The results from workable plans will be so much better than those perfect plans which are left unexecuted. Whatever your plan may be, get started!"

BARE FACTS OF STREAKING

The less said about the new college craze of "streaking," probably the better. But it can be predicted that there will be all kinds of variations on the nude marathons before we've heard the last of them, for streakers have shown that their ingenuity is, uh, bottomless.

For instance, the other day three men and a woman ran across the grounds at Xavier University in Cincinnati in what they called "the first integrated coed streak since Moses crossed the Nile."

Only thing is, it wasn't the Nile but the Red Sea that Moses crossed. But then, that's what kids are in college for — to learn things.

WHO'S SERVING WHO?

By the year 2000, there may be as many public servants as there will be servees, says the U. S. Chambe;of Commerce. That is, if you are willing to accept "public servant" as another term for public employee.

In 1900, the government employed fewer than one million persons. This figured out to about one person for every 26 employed in the private sector.

By 1972, the situation had changed drastically. On the average, there were only 5.1 people employed privately for every civilian government employe.

If the trend continues, says the chamber, by the end of this century, for every worker in the private sector there will be one "public servant."

It won't continue, though, will it?

SEPARATISM DRIFT AMONG THE BLACKS

Whatever it is that doesn't love a wall seems to be getting scarcer and scarcer these days.

The lumps have been rising to the surface of the melting pot for a long time now as many Americans show an increasing tendency to withdraw into the comfort and security of ethnic groups. Despite the fact that the phenomenon has been noticeable among Poles, Italians, Irish and just about every mother nationality, has been most evident among blacks, for a lot of reasons.

And a recent study indicates that the trend toward black separatism is increasing.

The study on "racial solidarity and separate education" was conducted by William J. Wilson of the University of Chicago and Castellano B. Turner and William A. Darity, both of the University of Massachusetts.

Writing in the University of Chicago School Review, they report that although there is still considerable division in the black communities of the two cities they studied, 56 per cent of their random sample oppose busing of schoolchildren, 38 per cent favor black control of community schools and 22 per cent say that only black teachers should be allowed to teach black children.

They also found that blacks who did not complete high school showed more isolationist tendencies than did high school graduates and that younger people (under 30) were more often inclined to separatist ideas than were their elders

This is disquieting.

The problem is not that separatism is a reflection of black pride. Rather it is a negative expression of frustration, or resignation to the fact that the white-dominated society is not serving the needs of its black minority.

It is one thing to say "Black is beautiful." It is quite another thing to say, "White is ugly."

That is why it is important to differentiate between the relatively healthy growth of ethnic pride in this country and the relatively unhealthy increase in ethnic isolationism.

In his book "The Decline of the WASP," Peter Schrag wrote that America is becoming "a nation of outsiders for whom no single style or ethnic remains possible." And, he added, "there is a growing necessity to preserve and enlarge the place apart, to reestablish the legitmacy of the things a man can call his own; not the goods of plastic, not the future of anonymity, but the privileges of being intrinsic, the integrity of place, the ability to love and to create in the present, the gratifications of immediate expression and engagement and the ability to live where one feels most at home."

The black separatist movement contains many of these elements, of course. But it also contains too many elements of bitterness, frustration, despair and hatred to be healthy for itself or for American society in general (however justified those feelings may be)

For separatism is only a stop on the way to anarchy and while we are far from the danger of imminently dissolving into 200 million distinct states, the closer we come to such chaos, the less able we are to meet our problems.

Separatist blacks have to examine their motivations and try to determine what role paranoia plays in their desire to be splendidly alone. But more importantly, the rest of us have to try to understand what it is we have done to aggravate the harmful breaks in society and what it is we can do to help repair those breaks.

'GO METRIC' SAYS INDUSTRY EXPERT TO INCREASE EXPORTS

Efforts to boost the volume of U. S. exports are being hampered by the nation's failure to switch from the English system of weights and measures to the metric system, a petroleum industry executive said.

W. Andrew Wright, research scientist with the Sun Oil Co., Marcus Hook, Pa., pointed out that most of the world, is already using the metric system — grams, liters centimeters, etc.

"The world market," he said, "is in Europe, and elsewhere, where expanding national economies are producing the growing market. These markets are metric . . We no longer set the market specifications. The situation is now reversed and is becoming one of the prominent factors in the trade imbalance."

Wright said it is inevitable that the United States will go metric — 'the real question is: when?"

'It is obvious," he added, "that American industry is recognizing the problem and is no longer waiting for Congressional action. The U. S. Bureau of Standards found more than 70 per cent of business organizations in favor of change some time ago."

"Since then, we see Ford Motor Company planning to build a metric engine plant in Ohio. General Motors has set up a conversion plan starting immediately and aimed at a short term conversion on a new product basis. Caterpillar Tractor I.B.M., and others are using the metric system for all new designs .... The Aluminum Company of America is now involved in re-casting its lubricant specifications in the metric system. These are typical examples of a growing list."

Wright recommended that the petroleum industry start "immediately" to convert its product specifications to a metric basis.

"If we start now," he said, "we will have some opportunity to properly consider .. simplifications in the product areas. These can reduce costs by eliminating excessive numbers of grades, duplications or near duplications. This will also aid our customers by providing less confusion in product application."

Wright pointed out that Canada, Australia and New Zealand are in the process of converting to the metric system, and that Britain will have completed its conversion period in 1975.

He added:

"Continued delay in preparing to put American business on an equal footing with world-wide competition can only further injure every corner of our economy."

HOW TO BE COMPETITIVE

Marketing Problem: Establish a new name in process equipment for Welex Incorporated and develop the quality and quantity of sales leads to build and maintain market leadership.

Communications Plan: Establish Welex as the successor to Papenmeier, manufacturers of the basic unit imported from Germany, and sell the high- intensity principle as best for mixing dry PVC for extrusions.

Benchmarks: In September 1967, the name "Welex" did not exist. A branch recognition study taken in early 1968, was used to determine progress from "ground zero" in meeting objectives.

Campaign: Eight two-color, full-page ads were run between September 1967, and February 1968, when the brand recognition study was conducted. They appeared in six plastics and chemical publicatins.

Results: Through heavy, continuous space advertising effort, Welex has displaced the name of its predecessor, has achieved half the recognition of its leading competitor, and is producing enough sales leads to keep production near capacity. All of this was accomplished without direct mail, little publicity and trade show effort, and very little "cold selling."

AN INDIVIDUAL MATTER

A master plan for diet is no more workable than centralized economic planning. Individuals are as varying in their wants and needs as geographic regions. Thus, it is unreasonable to tell the entire population to give up certain basic foods because some people, for medical reasons, are advised by doctors to restrict their diets with respect to these foods.

Milk disagrees with some individuals but that does not mean the nation should stop drinking milk -- or eating other dairy products, meat or any of the nutritious elements of a normal person's diet. Usually there is a good reason for eating a balanced choice of the foods that nature has placed at our disposal. An item in the Chicago Tribune shows why this is so. It seems that studies conducted by researchers at Cornell University have now revealed that a widespread deficiency of calcium in the population is the primary reason millions of people lose their teeth. According to the science editor of the Tribune, Ronald Kotulak, the report of these researchers "... also gives new hope to 35 million more Americans afflicted with periodontal disease who are in the process of losing their teeth. Milk is the major source of calcium in the diet" and "... the bone loss associated with periodontal disease in the human may be reversible by dietary calcium in many subjects."

Endeavoring to tell millions of people what they should or should not eat via directives from Washington or anywhere else is no more feasible than centralized government management of business in a nation as diversified as the United States.

WHY MAKE A TOUGH JOB TOUGHER

Call him a sanitation engineer or, in this ecological age, a refuse recycler, but a garbageman's lot is not an easy one.

According to the National Safety Council, refuse collection has the highest injury rate of any public service, with 109.5 disabling injuries per million manhours worked.

This compares with disabling injury rates of 44.25 and 43.37 for policemen and firemen respectively. Not only that, but the severity of the garbageman's injuries ranks among the worst in all occupations.

The reasons, says Raymond Loscoe of the National Safety Council, are the type of physical activity, the work environment and the nature of the customer. He explains:

"First the job requires long hours of walking, stepping on and off vehicles, lifting heavy loads and dumping refuse into mechanical conveyances.

"Second, the environment provides such hindrances as narrow streets and alleys, low-hanging tree limbs, ice, snow, sleet, extreme cold and heat and assorted vicious animals.

"But the patron creates the ultimate hazard when he 'booby-traps' the target of the day ... by loading refuse cans with chunks of concrete or other heavy objects, placing loose broken glass in cans or using battered cans that have sharp edges, broken handles and rusted bottoms that are ready to collapse."

Some cans, of course, have been known to get in that condition because of less- than-gentle handling by the refuse collector.

Nevertheless, as Lascoe points out, the man performs a valuable service to society. Why make his job any tougher than it is?

STORY SELDOM HEARD

It is time that vituperative critics of nuclear power plants were asked to buttress their case, if they have any, with facts from the record -- something they may find difficult to do. The Atomic Energy Commission has questioned the citizens of one community of less than 5,000 people concerning their views five years after announcement that a multimillion dollar nuclear power plant was scheduled for construction near their town. The AEC interview of local citizens was occasioned by application for a permit to build the second generating unit planned for the original plant.

The response of local community leaders to AEC questioning is illuminating. Mayors, newspaper editors, state officials, spokesmen for the regional planning and development commission and others, including a Superior Court judge, praised the manner in which the local power company was carrying out its task of producing needed energy, and at the same time meeting its environmental, aesthetic and economic obligations as a citizen of the areas in which its plants operate. Of the nuclear plant in question and the proposal to build a second unit, a county commissioner lauded the economic boost given his county. He pointed out that many of the power company's personnel "have built homes and are now living in the community and are most worthwhile citizens."

The planning and development commission member declared, "... we have never had anyone come to us with any apprehension about the safety of the plant who was not satisified by either written or oral response from the appropriate individual." Here is a sample of the postive side of nuclear energy that too few have heard about.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: IRA Has Russian Missiles

WASHINGTON --The terrorist wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) has been equipped; presumably by Arab guerrillas, with Russian shoulder -fired missiles for shooting down British helicopters. In addition, the Arabs are believed to have helped the IRA pepper London with bombs.

These two unhappy disclosures are made in a secret U.S. intelligence report obtained by Rep. John Murphy, D -N.Y., and turned over to chairman Harley Staggers, D -W. Va., of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee.

The British helicopters in Northern Ireland, besides their advantages over ground vehicles for surveillance, have been used to transport troops rapidly from onetrouble spot to the next. IRA gunfire, so far, has not been effective against them.

The Strella SA -7 missiles, however, have a range of almost three miles and can be aimed and fired in seconds. They "home" on the heat from jet motors or can be fired like ordinary weapons at prop -driven planes, helicopters or objects.

"Arab terrorists (are) loose in Europe and England" and are armed with the 30 -pound rockets, said the intelligence report, developed by the CIA, and summarized and circulated to the FBI, Secret Service, Federal Aviation Administration and other sensitive agencies. The missiles, said the report, were "originally smuggled into Belgium in Libyan diplomatic pouches....

"Libya has publicly stated its support of the IRA as a revolutionary movement," the report went on. "British intelligence (has) stated there is 'firm evidence' that Arab terrorists are working with the Irish Republican Army and are part of the bombing campaign which has plagued London in recent months.

"British officials have also received intelligence reports that the Russian -built SA- 7 missiles are in the hands of the IRA in Northern Ireland," the document warned.

"Sources indicate they are for use against British helicopters along the border between Ireland and those counties under UK (British) control."

The secret advisory said the British Army is "on alert especially during the day when the danger is greatest as the terrorists would probably have to rely on visual sighting." At night, jet aircraft would also be vulverable because the missles seek out the heat from their jet blasts, said the report.

There is danger even if the missiles do not hit their target. They then zoom to seek out other jet planes, school chimneys or, indeed, any heat source.

At Heathrow airport in London, as we reported on Feb. 10, the British Army was put on alert for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's visit because intelligence reports had indicated Arab fanatics planned to shoot a Strella up his plane's jetpipe.

IMPEACHED STAFF: Some Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee proved at a closed -door meeting a few days ago that they still don't trust their distinguished counsel, Albert Jenner.

Though Jenner's GOP bona fides are long and eminent, some Republicans criticized his appointment as minority impeachment lawyer because he once arranged a fund -raiser for a long time Democratic friend, Sen. Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois.

Now the committee's Republicans have decided to oust one of Jenner's brightest young aides, Ted Tetzlaff, because he once worked for liberal Rep. John Brademas, D -In. The fact is that Tetzlaff has also served President Nixon as head of the Poverty Corps' legal services.

The squabble erupted at a secret meeting between the GOP impeachment committee members and House miniority leader John Rhodes. R -Ariz. There, Rep. Larry Hogan, R -Md., a rough -and tumble ex -FBI agent and conservative, personally attacked Tetzlaff's fitness to serve. Tetzlaff, whom Jenner hired from his own Chicago law firm, was not there to defend his good name.

The argument went back and forth on whether Tetzlaff had already said something indicating he favored impeachemnt, a charge he has reportedly denied. But, at the end, Hogan's view prevailed.

The Republicans, hoping that the whole affair could be kept out of the press, agreed to get Jenner informally to advise Tetzlaff to go back to Chicago.

Though senior Republican member Ed Hutchinson, R -Mich., refused to talk about it, his colleague, Robert McClory, R -Ill. confirmed that "he is going back to Chicago ... that's where his work is." Tetzlaff and Jenner, sticking gamely to the staff's gag rule, declined to comment. However, Jenner reportedly was still hoping to find some way of getting his GOP bosses on the committee to reserve themselves.

GAS RIP -OFF: At present, a car owner is often told by his auto manual to use 94 octane gasoline --regular. But octane rating systems vary. The same regular gas is posted as 90 on the gasoline pump. The unwitting buyer, therefore, buys premium.

The consumer -oriented Public Interest Campaign complained to federal energy czar William Simon, saying the inconsistency costs drivers $1 billion a year, wastes one million gallons of gasoline a day and adds 405,000 extra pounds of lead to the daily auto pollution. (Lead is blamed for disease and death in ghetto children, who breathe it or get it in their mouths from playing in street dirt.)

Simon, however, wrote a polite private letter to the Public Interest Campaign president, Lou Lombardo, declining to invervene. But a few days ago, Simon's own Consumer Energy Advisory Committee voted unanimously in favor of octane posting changes.

Moved by the vote, Simon's aides are now reviewing the question and promised us that "We won't let the issue go down the crack."

GIVING AWAY OUR INDUSTRY TO THE SOVIET UNION

It is bad enough to be exporting vital industrial products of potentially enormous military value to our deadly, unrelenting enemies in the Soviet Union. Now the trend is actually to provide the Russians with entire industrial plants superior to anything they now have, or at least the technology to build them. It is like a businessman selling the plans and components of his biggest factories to his most threatening competitor.

Exactly that was done last year when the U.S. - built Kama River truck plant was approved for the Soviet Union. Now American computer companies have been given permission to bid on a contract to install their best air traffic control system in the U.S.S.R. The White House Council on International Economic Policy is just completing a study on computer exports which is expected to recommend a further relaxation of the already very loose remaining controls on the export of this most sophisticated electronic technology to Russia.

Malcolm R. Currie, director of Defense Research and Engineering in the Defense Department, has spoken out against this suicidal rush to sell the best products we have to our worst enemies. Soviet scientific knowledge matches ours, Currie says, but their manufacturing and production technology is still inferior overall. It is this gap that they intend to close by the simple process of buying the best we have, on easy credit terms, and then copying it.

The best the United States produces should be for the United States. Those who have sworn to "bury us" should get none of it.

East Prairie 2, high school lobby-- Margaret Schneider, Evelyn Denton, Nina Hunter, Grace Emory, Wantona Hayes and Mabel Fussell.

Bertrand, elementary school-- Margaret Bethune, Ora Mae Heath, Thelma Peters, Elva Gaty, Nina Reinbott and Dora Wilmurth.

Anniston, city hall-- Karen McClendon, Sam Graham, Lena Sims and Violet Wallace.

Wyatt, Raffety gin office-- Patrice Conn, Wanda Pearson, Marie Murphy, Mrs. A. C. Jackson, Mary Brown and Hilda Bowles.

Wilson City, community building-- Teresia Brewer, Catherine Coopwood, Jewell Neal and Earline Crawford.

In these precincts, Charlestin 5 (rural), Charleston Wolf Island, Dorena and East Prairie 3 (rural), polling places and election workers will be selected by the board of education in the two school districts.

Oran election set April 2

ORAN -- In the April 2 city election, Oran residents will elect a mayor, collector, police judge and four aldermen.

Incumbent Mayor Kenneth Ransdell will face opposition from Benny Evans when he seeks re- election for a new two- year term.

Seeking the collector's office will be the incumbent, Naomi McCallister, and Shirley Michelsen and Fanny Thurston Davis. The collector's race developed after the City Council voted to change the salary from a commission basis to $6,000 per year.

Ed Burger, Robert Dennis and D. H. Perry are candidates for a two- year term as police judge.

Running for alderman in ward one for a two- year term is Sammy Shy and C. C. Parks; ward two, two- year term, Robert Dohogne and Kenny Pobst; ward three, two- year term, Charles Sallee, Wesley Harris and Buster Bollinger; ward four, two- year term, Clarence Curtis, Zexia Sietman, Bill Kiehlhofner and Joe Tate.

Voting places for wards one and four will be in the Burger building and for wards two and three in the city hall.

C'ville to vote on city manager issue May 14

CARUTHERSVILLE — Mayor Terry Wilson Tuesday set May 14 as the date for a special election to decide whether Caruthersville adopts a city manager system.

The action promises to upstage the April 2 city election when voters are to choose a new mayor, since approval of a city manager would greatly diminish the mayor's authority.

Wilson's was the first of about 540 signatures on a petition presented to the City Council Tuesday night.

Dennis Cain, chairman of the city planning commission, who offered the petition said a city manager system "will go a long way toward keeping politics out of city hall so that we can be assured of efficient government."

Caruthersville last July became the first Missouri Bootheel city to install a city administrator. But the council dismissed James Bell from the post five months later after several disputes.

Wilson, who left the council in December to serve as interim mayor when former Mayor Bill Inman resigned, is not seeking the post.

Longtime former Mayor B. F. 'Hot' Rogers and Alderman Perry Going are candidates for mayor.

Area students join fraternity

POPLAR BLUFF — Jayme McCarroll of Malden and Mary Jenkins, Earl Metcalf and Joe Stewart of Dexter were among 46 students recently inducted into the Sigma Rho Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, an honorary fraternity at Three Rivers Community College.

It was the second annual initiation banquet of the honor fraternity, which is the only one represented at TRCC.

3 unopposed in Benton race

BENTON-- Three unopposed candidates are seeking seats on the Board of Aldermen in the April 2 election.

Incumbent Jim Wilhelm is seeking a one- year term as ward one alderman and incumbent Leonard C. Diebold is running for a two- year term.

Incumbent Richard McIntosh is seeking the two- year term in ward two.

Griffey files

MARSTON — Louie Griffey, who has filed for the north ward alderman seat being vacated by Bruce Martin, is unopposed in the April 2 city election.

Tuesday's edition of The Daily Standard incorrectly listed the name Louise Griffey as unopposed for the office.

Changes announced in days, location of exams

POPLAR BLUFF-- Capt. W. C. Brooks, commander of Troop E of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, has announced that effective April 1 some of the days and locations for driver examinations in the 14 counties of the Troop E area will be changed.

The purpose of this change is to provide better service to the people of the area, Brooks said.

Under the new schedule, examinations will be given from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3:30 p.m. at the National Guard Armory in Sikeston on Tuesdays and Thursdays, at the armory in Dexter and courthouse in New Madrid each Monday, at the armory in Charleston on Wednesdays and at the city hall in Malden on Fridays.

Examinations will not be given on holidays.

Cheerleading clinics set for June

JONESBORO, Ark.– Headed by members of the National Cheerleader Association, the 17th annual Arkansas State University Cheerleading Clinic will begin its first session June 3.

Due to the energy crisis, the only change in this year's clinic will be that it opens on Monday, with the first general meeting at 11 a.m. in Indian Field House, according to Gladys Hudgins, clinic director.

Three one- week schools, scheduled for June 3- 7, June 10- 14 and June 17- 21, will provide instruction in every phase of cheerleading to those with or without previous experience.

Classes in tumbling, yell leading motions, chants, skits, pompom routines, organization of pep rallies, use of megaphones and other elements pertaining to cheerleading will be offered.

Under the direction of Lawrence Herkimer, the NCA staff will be selected from various geographic areas of the country. Herkimer, who has been acclaimed as "Mr. Cheerleader of the USA", plans to provide participants with the latest nationwide cheerleading techniques.

Those attending must be junior high, senior high or college students and do not have to be an elected cheerleader to be eligible for the school.

Team competition will highlight each week's school, with teams being rated daily and trophies being presented to the winning teams on the final day of each school.

Students will be housed in air- conditioned dormitories with meals being served in Woodlands Cafeteria in Carl R. Reng Center.

Total cost for a one- week school is $45 per person, with a $10 reservation fee required. The remaining $35 will be due at the time of registration.

University women plan April festival of arts

JACKSON — In cooperation with a statewide project sponsored by the Missouri Division of American Association of University Women, the Jackson branch of AAUW will participate in the Festival of Missouri Women in the Arts on April 6.

The Jackson festival will open with a program on the performing arts at 1 p.m. in the New McKendree Methodist Church auditorium.

Performances will be judged and winners announced at a reception at 2 p.m. in the Jackson Public Library, where visual arts entries from all over Southeast Missouri will be on exhibit, along with a display of creative writing entries.

Winners in the latter two categories will also be announced at the reception. Hostesses will be members of the Jackson AAUW.

Sikeston artists Melissa Swann is among those whose work will be presented. The exhibit will remain open to the public during regular library hours until May 4.

Roberta Lucy graduates from school of nursing

MEMPHIS, Tenn.– Miss Roberta Lucy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Lucy of New Madrid, Mo., Route One, graduated Friday from Baptist Memorial Hospital School of Nursing. She is a graduate of the Lilbourn Mo. High School.

Miss Lucy, along with 61 other nurses, received her graduate nurse's degree at First Baptist Church in Memphis and will take the Tennessee nursing exams soon.

Besides her nursing pin, she also received the sportsmanship award for her full- term sports activities.

Miss Lucy began work at the hospital Monday.

Ann Landers

Mistress worries about lover's health

Dear Ann Landers: Something has been bothering me. I can't get it out of my mind. I don't dare ask anyone else. Please give me some advice.

A well-to-do married man has been keeping me for three years. R. is 22 years my senior and treats me like a queen. He made it clear when he set up this "arrangement" that we could never marry. His wife is a nice person, but dull and uninteresting. His children are grown and leading their own lives. Although we never appear together in public, a few people suspect we are seeing each other.

Five months ago R. had a serious case of indigestion. It happened in my apartment and I was terrified. I thought it was a heart attack. I called a friend who is a physician, explained the circumstances, and he came over immediately. By the time he arrived, R. was feeling better.

Now I am haunted by the fear that one of these nights R. might have a real heart attack in my apartment. What on earth would I do? I am not concerned about MY reputation, but I am plenty worried about his. Please help me. -- Lady In The Shadows.

Dear Shady Lady: If your friend should have a heart attack in your apartment, you would follow the same procedure as when he had indigestion. If he has a massive attack and dies on the spot, you couldn't do much about saving his reputation. If he has a less serious attack, your doctor friend could drive him to the hospital and think up something on the way.

Dear Ann Landers: Quite unplanned, at a party recently, I decided not to drink any liquor because we had arrived late and the guests were just being seated. (Ordinarily I would have hurried to the bar and taken a double martini to the table.)

I enjoyed the dinner conversation immensely and decided to see what it would be like to go through an entire evening with no booze. (Usually I take at least two doubles to "loosen me up.")

I had a marvelous time on ginger ale and concluded that "getting loosened up" actually means flirting shamelessly, talking like an idiot and becoming exhausted at an early hour and begging my husband to take me home.

We were nearly the last to leave and I wasn't the least bit tired. I enjoyed some stimulating conversation with non-drinkers, danced better than I ever had before and loved being me instead of behaving in a raucous and aggressively sexy manner.

So, you gals out there who think liquor helps make you look better or sound better, I have news. Try staying sober. You'll like it. —D. H. Lowell, Mass.

Dear D.: Welcome to the ranks of the blue-noses. There aren't many of us left.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife became pregnant by my best friend. Needless to say, that ended the friendship. He ducked out of the picture and I had to fly my wife to another state for an abortion. It cost me over $1,000 plus the grief.

The heel's wife was very "understanding" and stood by him. Our marriage was damaged but we are trying to work things out. Our three children have no idea why their parents left town so suddenly.

I say this jerk owes me $500. Please agree and print this letter so I can shake it in his face. —Mad

Dear M.: Sorry, but when a married woman gets into a jam like that, the problem is hers to work out as best she can. When her lover is a heel, she pays double.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers's booklet, "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

"Some people get the credit for thinking, but all they do is know how to frown."

'Fat' is important to diet

By DR. LAURENCE M. HURSH
National Dairy Council Consultant

Fat is beautiful? Of course it is. But I'm not speaking of someone who is carrying around excess pounds. I am referring to fat in our food. We need it. It is essential, nutritionally. And food would not taste very good without it.

Certainly there are varying degrees of liking for fat. One person may prefer leaner meats than another. I may put more butter on my bread than you do. And none of us should overdo fat in our meals anymore than we should overdo other substances. Like salt, or pepper, or whatever.

A Relentless War

But the war against fat has been so relentless that some of us might believe it is a kind of poison. Instead, I suggest you would not wish to eat a meal if it was anywhere near devoid of fat.

Even the people who tell you to fear cholesterol only suggest about 10 per cent reduction in the average American's fat consumption. We supposedly, on average, consume meals that contain 40 per cent fat. The cholesterol theorists suggest a reduction to 35 per cent. Most nutritionists, I believe, agree this is a good idea. The argument simply is whether there is any sense in eating less saturated fats and more polyunsaturated fats.

Polyunsaturated fats are, as you probably know, available from vegetable sources, principally from corn or safflower oils. During the past 50 years (while the incidence of heart disease has increased) the consumption of vegetable oils has gone up. During the same years saturated fats consumption has gone down. So I don't see a correlary with heart disease that, in turn, should make you fear saturated fats.

As a matter of fact, a researcher in the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Columbia University recently has advanced a new theory regarding cholesterol. Cholesterol, as you know, is one of the fatty substances that some researchers think may be related to heart disease. They cite statistics that individuals with high levels of cholesterol in their blood have more heart attacks and strokes.

Meanwhile, Dr. Hans Kaunitz at Columbia suggests that cholesterol may be a "repair" substance. He says cholesterol occurs in large amounts wherever there is a diseased organ and repair processes going on. This, he says, may partly explain why atherosclerotic lesions (in arteries) contain a high concentration of cholesterol.

Eat a Balanced Diet

Well, in my opinion, the best nutritional approach to total health is to eat a balanced diet chosen from a wide variety of foods. And you should not consume more calories than you need to maintain your ideal weight. This may mean eating somewhat less fat. It could easily mean less sweets and starches, less heavy gravies and perhaps a more sparing use of salad oils.

So don't fear fats: Enjoy them with moderation. Besides taste and perhaps great benefits we don't yet know about, fats give us energy and the fat- soluble vitamins (A, D, E and K). Fats also are part of the structure of body cells. And they form protective cushions around vital organs.

Teresa McGee receives practical nurse degree

RISCO-- Miss Teresa McGee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. McGee, graduated March 7 from the School of Health Occupations in Springfield. She was among the practical nurses' graduating class of 28 members.

The graduation address was given by Mrs. Florence Harris, L.P.N., executive director of the Missouri State Association of Licensed Practical Nurses Inc.

Presentation of diplomas was by Don Simmons, assistant director of vocational, technical and industrial education.

Upon completion of current classes in psychology and pharmacology, Miss McGee will be employed at a hospital in Springfield.

Miss McGee is a 1972 graduate of Risco High School.

Birthday celebrated

RISCO– Miss Kathy Jo Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Wheeler, was honored on her sixth birthday Monday with a luncheon at her home in Baderville.

The circus party theme was carried out with balloons, streamers and a clown centerpiece. Guests received favors of party hats and various circus prizes.

Circus refreshments included hot dogs, potato chips, animal cookies and a clown birthday cake.

Guests included Tina Babb, Amy McGee, Cheryl Fortner, Teresa Johnson and Michael Landers.

Marcella Simpson is bride of Samuel Hugh Faulkner

NEW MADRID-- On March 2 at 7:30 p.m., the New Madrid Baptist Church was the setting for the candlelight wedding of Marcella Faye Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loyne Simpson of Lilbourn, and Samuel Hugh Faulkner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Faulkner of New Madrid. The Rev. Edward E. Wolfe performed the double- ring ceremony with Mrs. Virginia Keaton providing the wedding music.

The sanctuary was decorated with two candelabras and two large baskets of white gladioli and yellow daisies on white columns.

The bride wore a crisp white organza gown with attached train. Cluny lace and seed pearls trimmed the sheer yoke bodice and shirt sleeves, with lace bordering the hem and side seams giving the dress an apron effect. The bride's cathedral-length veil was of English silk illusion encircled with cluny lace.

Her only jewelry was a pin belonging to her mother's sister, Mrs. Almedia Henry.

The bride's bouquet consisted of white roses, yellow daisies and baby's breath centered over a white Bible covered with lace.

Mrs. Jessica Simpson, the bride's sister- in- law, served as matron of honor. She wore a floor- length gown of mint green crepe with short, flared sleeves and a floral sash complimenting the empire waistline. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, white and yellow daisies and baby's breath with yellow streamers tied in lover's knots.

Bridesmaids were Miss Sandy Simpson and Mrs. Joyce Patterson of Lilbourn, sisters of the bride. Their dresses were mint green crepe with a floral bodice and short, flared sleeves and floral sash at the empire waistline. The dresses were accented with a wide dust ruffle. Their bouquets were idential to the one carried by the matron of honor.

Miss Paula Wescoat of Kewanee, niece of the groom, served as flower girl. Her dress was identical to the bridesmaids. She carried a white basket with an arrangement of yellow daisies.

Kevin Kerr of Sikeston, nephew of the groom, served as ringbearer. He wore a black tuxedo with a mint green, ruffle shirt and wore a yellow rosebud bouttonniere.

The groom wore a black tuxedo with a white ruffle shirt and wore a white rosebud boutonniere to match the bride's bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hugh Faulkner

The groom chose Tommy Essary of Matthews as his best man. Essary wore a black tuxedo with a mint green ruffle shirt and wore a yellow rosebud.

Rick Faulkner of New Madrid, brother of the groom, and Danny Kerr of Sikeston, brother- in- law of the groom, served as groomsmen. Their attire was identical to that worn by the best man.

Robert Street sang "More" and "The Lord's Prayer", and was dressed identical to the best man.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a floor- length knit dress of avocado green. She wore a corsage of white roses.

The groom's mother chose for her son's wedding a street- length dress of red and white knit. She also wore a corsage of white roses.

The fathers of the bride and groom wore tuxedos identical to the one worn by the best man and wore boutonnieres of white rosebuds.

Mrs. Debbie Simpson, sister- in- law of the bride, attended the guestbook and distributed programs to the guests. She wore a corsage of yellow roses.

The ushers were Dalton, Bob and Jerry Simpson, brothers of the bride. Their attire was identical to that worn by the best man.

A three- tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom and decorated with yellow roses and white daisies, centered the reception table.

Attending the reception table were Mrs. Pam Simpson of New Madrid, sister- in- law of the bride, and Mrs. Sandra Kerr of Sikeston and Mrs. Phyllis Wescoat of Kewanee, sisters of the groom. They wore corsages of yellow roses. Miss Stacy Wescoat of Kewanee, niece of the groom, distributed rice bags to the guests during the reception.

The couple honeymooned in the Ozarks and now lives on New Madrid Route One.

On Feb. 1, the bride was given a miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. Sandra Kerr. Hostesses were Mrs. Phyllis Wescoat, Mrs. Kerr and Mrs. Joyce Fowler.

On Feb. 15, the bride was given a lingerie shower at the New Madrid Baptist Church fellowship hall by Mrs. Pat Weaks.

The wedding party was honored at a rehearsal dinner given by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Faukner, on March 1 in the New Madrid Baptist Church fellowship hall.

Stephenson says abortion is murder for convenience

PORTAGEVILLE— Abortion is "murder for convenience," a candidate for the Democratic nomination for 10th District congressman declared here Sunday.

Arthur T. Stephenson of Caruthersville, the Pemiscot County prosecuting attorney who is seeking to unseat three-term Rep. Bill D. Burlison, D-Cape Girardeau, said at a rally that there is only one "true reason" for supporting abortion. That reason, he contended, is "inconvenience."

"It is not convenient for the mother, or it's not convenient for the father or it's not convenient for the family of those involved to allow the unborn child to live," the Episcopal layman said, "and so that which is most precious to all living creation is denied by one living being to another— the right to live."

Stephenson said some abortion supporters "cloud the issue with spurrious arguments of over-population or women's rights.

"Others trade on suspicion and hatred by accusations that their opponents are motivated by an allegiance to an anachronistic theology."

Abortion "by any definition...is murder," he said.

"The real issue in the present abortion question is whether...this society will accept the principle that our government can declare a class of human beings to be outside the protection and the safety of the laws afforded to all other persons," Stephenson said.

"Once that principle is accepted, there is almost no limit to the number of so-called 'undesirable' or 'inconvenient' groups or classes of people that we can get rid of legally," he said.

Local girls active in sorority

CAPE GIRARDEAU-- Six Sikeston students and one from Matthews have recently pledged or been installed as officers in Delta Delta Delta sorority at Southeast Missouri State University.

The Sikeston students include: Paula Doyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Doyle, installed as assistant rushing chairman; Mary Lynn Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron W. Caldwell, rushing chairman; Linda Spitzmiller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Spitzmiller, assistant treasurer; Julia Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Thompson, recording secretary; and Carla Colwick, daughter of Mrs. Maxine Buchanan, house manager.

Rosetta Leigh Whitten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Whitten of Matthews, is a new pledge.

PARMA-- Z. D. Hargraves of Malden explained the Southeast Missouri Transportation System (SMTS) program to Parma Senior Citizens Club March 19 at the Parma Library.

Hargraves said the SMTS program provides buses to serve senior citizens, 55 years of age or older, and handicapped persons in the area. Everyone who rides the bus must be a member of SMTS, he added.

Persons interested in riding the bus may contact Laura Johnson, coordinator, at the Parma DAEOC Center, phone 357-4777; Mrs. Virtrue Hill in Parma, phone 357-4612; or Mrs. Leota McGee, for those in the Risco area, phone 396-5517. Applications are available for enrollment.

Risco senior citizens were guests of the Parma Club.

Bond disappointed

No flood-zoning bill planned

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond expressed disappointment Tuesday night at the announcement by the Democratic leadership in the Missouri House that they will not make a bill calling for statewide flood plain zoning a special order of business.

Calling that "a disaster," Bond pointed out that people living in unzoned, flood-prone areas "may be in an unbelieveable bind" if the state is hit by another round of spring flooding this year.

"After consulting with members on both sides of the aisle, we feel sure there is not enough support to pass the bill," said House Speaker Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis.

The bill would require local governmental units to pass specific zoning regulations to make their communities eligible for federally subsidized flood insurance.

Bond pointed out that unless areas that were flooded in 1973 are zoned, many of those persons helped by the federal government last year would not be helped in future floods.

But Rep. Richard J. DeCoster, D-Canton, countered by saying that counties and cities can already voluntarily adopt the necessary legislation to qualify for federal flood insurance.

"If the local people want such insurance, they can easily obtain it by passing local regulations," he contended. "We should not impose unwanted statewide regulations on our local communities."

Bond noted in his comments Tuesday night that the Army Corps of Egnineers has predicted some flooding in the state this spring, though probably not as much as last year.

"With so little time left in the session," Rabbitt said, "it would be a tragedy to spend time on a measure which does not have substantial support."

AID TO MENTALLY RETARDED

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Hockey League and its 16 member teams will again sponsor the International Floor Hockey Tournament to be held in conjunction with the Canadian Special Olympics for the Mentally Retarded. The event will be held in Winnipeg, Canada, June 13-15.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, says that each team in the NHL will fully equip each team and will provide all transportation, meals and lodging for the children.

Seventh graders-- Jerri Deen, Allegra Morris, Mitchell Vann, Brenda Russom, Kenneth Curtis, David Conley, Debra Morgan and Teresa Hawes.

Audit shows milk producers contributed to both sides

WASHINGTON (AP) — An internal audit shows the Associated Milk Producers Inc. directed corporate money to both sides of the political street during President Nixon's first term.

The audit and a lawyer's report on the co-op's past activities were obtained from court records.

Until President Nixon took office in 1969, the giant dairy cooperative backed mostly Democrats. The audit traces $91,691 in corporate money used to help Hubert H. Humphrey's 1968 campaign against Nixon.

But after Nixon's victory, the co-op leaders decided to make peace with the Republicans. Harold S. Nelson, the co-op's general manager, drew $5,000 in corporate funds to buy tickets to a Republican victory dinner in 1969, the audit shows.

In August, a co-op lawyer delivered $100,000 in cash — now admitted to have been an illegal corporate donation — to the keeper of Nixon's secret political trust, Herbert L. Kalmbach.

But the audit shows the milk producers continued to aid Democrats with corporate money even as they solidified their alliance with the administration.

In 1970, about the time the milk producers were promising to raise $2 million for the President's then-distant re-election campaign, co-op funds reportedly flowed into the senatorial campaigns of Humphrey in Minnesota and of Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

The co-op's former lobbyist, Bob A. Lilly, is quoted as saying he passed along $34,500 in corporation funds to Humphrey's campaign manager to pay campaign printing bills.

And a former lawyer for the co-op, Stuart H. Russell of Oklahoma City, is quoted as saying he was reimbursed from corporation funds for three contributions to the 1970 Muskie campaign, for a total of $8,400.

Humphrey, asked about both the 1968 and 1970 dairy money, said through a spokesman, "I have no knowledge of these transactions ... An organization as large as AMPI should have had the kind of legal counsel that would have prevented these types of transactions."

A Muskie spokesman said, "It's impossible to check on the veracity of every individual who claims he's giving an individual contribution. The campaign made very careful checks to see that no corporate funds were either solicited or accepted and money which could be identified as corporate funds was returned during the campaign."

The milk producers also used several Democrats in a complex paycheck scheme to cover the $100,000 gift to Nixon's trust. The arrangement generally called for phony legal fees or public relations fees to be paid to persons doing business with the milk producers.

These persons then relayed most of the money to Lilly to repay bank loans he had taken out to cover the Nixon gift and some other political expenses.

Among those listed as taking part in this arrangement were former Democratic party treasurer Richard Maguire, former Humphrey aides Ted Van Dyk and Kirby Jones, former Lyndon B. Johnson White House aide W. DeVier Pierson, Rep. James R. Jones D-Okla., and the late Clifton C. Carter, who had been the Democratic National Committee's executive director.

Van Dyk was quoted as saying the milk producers didn't tell him the true purpose of the money that he and his employe Kirby Jones passed along.

Rep. James Jones was quoted as saying he wasn't reimbursed for his $10,000, which he said he gave voluntarily thinking it would be relayed to Democrats. The report said Maguire didn't respond to requests for comment, and that Pierson declined to comment personally.

The audit was conducted by the firm of Haskins & Sells of San Antonio, Texas. It was attached to a report on the coop's past political dealings by attorney Edward L. Wright, a former American Bar Association president.

MIND CONTROL® & ESP

MIND CONTROL GRADUATES report better control over

•HEALTH •INTUITION •SALESMANSHIP •SMOKING

WHAT IS SILVA MIND CONTROL?

The "Silva Method" as it is known was developed by Jose Silva, a research scientist in Loredo, Texas, and a pioneer in mental training and research in brain waves. Mr. Silva states, "The discovery that Human Intelligence can learn to control brain waves and function with awareness at the Alpha and Theta frequencies of the brain will go down inhistory as the greatest discovery of man."
Silva says that we somehow have unconsciously learned to interfere with the body's healing function and this effect is known as the psychosomatic health problem. It appears that by learning to function with awareness at the Alpha/Theta levels we automatically cease to interfere, allowing the body's internal organs and glands to return to their natural rhythmic self-healing function.
"We don't need to teach the internal organs how to function. Nature takes care of that when we do not interfere. The Silva Method is dedicated to help humans become healthier, more productive and better problem-solvers.

"Our students report better memory, high grades, less tension and anxiety, faster healing, release and rejection of Psychosomatic problems, control of sleep and headaches, control of smoking, weight and even correction of drug habit, and also maintenance of better general health."

LEARN TO USE ESP TO SOLVE PROBLEMS

Silva adds that these are just side benefits and that the real benefit is that the student when at these levels seems to sense information impressed on the brain cells of others. This what some call ESP or Extra Sensory Perception, but Silva calls it Subjective Communcations.
The MIND CONTROL program has changed the meaning of ESP which was uncontrolled, erratic and very evasive to Subject Communciations which is controlled and effective for problem solving.
You can now have an added tool to obtain information, to use your mind more effectively and become more successful. By learning simple, practical, easy-to-use techniques you can make your life better and also help people around you

RADIAL CONSTRUCTION	2-PIECE TREAD	OPEN, AGGRESSIVE BLOCK TREAD
The body cords run directly across the tread from rim to rim, a 90-degree angle to direction of travel. Stability and Handling ease unmatched by tires of any other type construction. Plus you get an exceptionally smooth ride and extended tire life.	The wide, open, aggressive, block tread is made of two different compounds—one a cool-running compound for the undertread or tread base, the other a long mileage compound for the tread.	The computer-designed block tread provides better all-weather stop-go traction. The tread is deeper with wider grooves than most other steel radials.
STEEL BELTED	SEVEN PLIES UNDER TREAD	WIDE 70-SERIES PROFILE
A tempered, brass-coated, steel belt bonded between two double plies of Dynacor rayon puts five plies in the belt for fantastic strength!	The 5-ply steel-rayon belt plus two rayon body plies give you 7-layer protection against road hazards. The Seven Plies under the tread also means Strength & Fuel Savings for you!	This profile produces a tire carcass that is wider and lower, with a wider tread. Puts more tread on the road, gives quick steering response, provides excellent high speed stability.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, March 27, the 86th day of 1974. There are 279 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1964 Alaska was rocked by one of the worst earthquakes in modern history. More than 100 persons were killed, and property damage was estimated at $750 million.

On this date:

In 1703, the Russian czar, Peter the Great, founded the city of St. Petersburg, now Leningrad.

In 1854, France declared war on Russia.

In 1933, Japan withdrew from the League of Nations after being denounced as an aggressor in Manchuria.

In 1939, Adolf Hitler demanded that Poland agree to German annexation of Danzig.

In 1941, during World War II, the government of Prince Paul was ousted in Yugoslavia.

In 1945, General Dwight D. Eisenhower declared that German military forces on the Western Front had been defeated.

Ten years ago: Two U.S. Air Force fliers were returned to U.S. custody 17 days after their reconnaissance plane was shot down by a Soviet fighter over East Germany.

Five years ago: The United States launched a Mariner spacecraft on a four-month flight toward Mars to help determine if that planet can support life.

One year ago: The man who oversaw the drafting of Americans for military service in three wars, General Lewis Hershey, retired from the government after 62 years of military service.

Today's birthdays: Former Japanese Premier Eisaku Sato is 73 years old. Ballet dancer and producer Arthur Mitchell is 40. Actor David Janssen is 44.

Thought for today: It's great to be great, but it's greater to be human. — Will Rogers, American humorist, 1879-1935.

Federal school plan may lead to more taxes

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A House-passed bill to revise the formula by which state aid to schools is distributed was criticized in the Senate Education Committee Tuesday night as likely to lead to a state tax increase.

The bill would raise state aid for most of Missouri's 600 school districts and is designed to give more money to poor districts and less to affluent districts. The committee delayed action on the bill until next week.

Sen. Edward Linehan, D-St. Louis, asked, "Where are we going to get the money? From another tax increase?"

He estimated the cost of the bill over the next three years could run as high as $210 million.

"This would require another tax increase," Linehan said, "I think people are really getting disgusted with this kind of thing."

Several senators suggested the only alternative to a tax increase would be to cut down expansion of other state programs.

"Have you ever known any of the barnacles of bureaucracy being scraped off the ship of state?" asked Sen. Emory Melton, R-Cassville.

However, Sen. Nelson Bone Tinnin, D-Hornesville, advocated the bill, saying, "isn't this the first strong effort for statewide equalization of educational opportunity?"

A room full of school superintendents, including a representation of the St. Louis city school system, supporting the bill, agreed with Tinnin.

However, Tinnin warned money available for expanded programs is limited to about $65 million for the next fiscal year which begins in July.

Slaughter of contaminated chickens begins

MAGEE, Miss. (AP) — The slaughter of millions of Mississippi chickens found to contain unsafe levels of a cancer-causing pesticide has started.

H.F. McCarty, one of the largest poultry producers in Mississippi, stood watching in a drizzling rain Tuesday as farmhands loaded squawking chickens into a dump truck turned gas chamber.

A metal pipe connected the truckbed to the exhaust pipe of a larger truck which stood nearby, its engine running. As the chickens were dumped into the chamber filled with carbon monoxide and they died.

The chickens were among at least 1.6 million of McCarty's 3.2 million birds found in routine testing to contain unsafe levels of dieldrin, which the Environmental Protection Agency says can cause cancer on long exposure. The EPA ordered the birds killed.

Estimates of the number of chickens affected range as high as 12 million. Federal and state officials say there is no way at present to reimburse the poultrymen for the loss of their chickens, or for the additional cost of destroying the birds.

McCarty said he agrees with the decision to slaughter the chickens.

Ferrell speaks to Rotary

Club president Jim Woods, left, listens as Mayor Frank Ferrell, standing (top photo), tells Sikeston Rotary Club members that prospective new industry would need some of the area included in the annexation proposal on the ballot for Tuesday's city election. He told the group Monday night that the city has already received inquiries from industries and added that property owners have indicated they are in favor of the proposal. Woods, left, (bottom photo), greets three new Rotarians, from left, Doyle Horne, Don McCormick and Bob Bowen.

Firm asks Malden council help to expand facilities

MALDEN — Alderman Phil Santie told the City Council Monday night that Bee Cee Manufacturing Co. Inc. met recently with the council's finance committee and requested that the city sign a $75,000 note for expansion of the company's facilities, since the city owns the property on which the company is located.

Action on the matter was postponed until legal questions can be answered in a meeting scheduled Thursday night. Also to be discussed at the Thursday night meeting is proposed enactment of a one- cent sales tax for the city and plans for the purchase of Associated Natural Gas Co. facilities.

The planning and zoning commission presented the council a revised zoning map. A public hearing on the matter will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in the city hall council room.

Athletic commissioner Gene Bennett announced that a plan has been formulated in which the church baseball leagues, Pony League and Babe Ruth League teams may use the Layne baseball field on Broadwater Road which is the only lighted field.

The council voted to advertise for bids on health and life insurance for city employes. Bids will be opened at 7 p.m. April 19.

Ron Yersak of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission told the council that it must obtain a clear title for the lot chosen as the building site of the new community building before it applies for matching funds.

In other action, the council hired Tom Chambers Bookkeeping Service to keep the city's books and write most of city's checks. The firm will also audit the airport commission books.

The council also voted to purchase new engines for street and park department mowers, proceed with new roofing for restrooms in Frisco Park, hire James Hensley as street department employe and increase the salary of the humane officer to $2 per hour.

Memo asked oil cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators said today they have a 1968 oil company memo which recommends foreign crude production cutbacks because of fears of a surplus of oil.

Staff members of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on Multinational Corporations said the document was from the files of Standard Oil of California and projected "large potential surpluses" through 1973.

They said the memo recommended cutbacks in some foreign production areas to offset some increases in Saudi Arabia and Iran where pressures were on for stepping up production.

A surplus of oil would cause the price of oil to drop, thus lowering company profits.

Staff members said the memo would be discussed with officials of the Standard Oil Co. of California in open hearings Thursday on the influence of multinational oil corporations on United States foreign policy.

According to a report in today's Wall Street Journal, the memo is a December 1968 forecast prepared by Standard of California economists. The newspaper said the memo also predicted even more bothersome supluses through 1978 when new production was expected from the Arctic, Australia and Indonesia.

The Socal economists urged strong measures to prevent such an oversupply of crude, including the production cutbacks.

The Socal economists assumed that all the major international oil companies would act concurrently to hold production down, and their forecast of total non-Communist world production based on that assumption proved to be correct within 1 per cent, the newspaper said.

A spokesman for Socal was asked about the economists' report and termed it a "think piece," adding: "There were no collective determinations ... There is no international oil Cartel ... So it would be a mistake to salivate too much over this piece of paper."

One of the results of the oil company actions was that spare production capacity fell from 6 million barrels a day in the early 1960s to less than 4 million barrels a day in 1968 through 1969 and to zero in 1973 as demand rose and Arctic oil development was delayed, the paper said.

SeMo men held in investigation

Cairo, Ill., police today were holding two Southeast Missouri men for investigation of possession of stolen ools.

The tools are believed to belong to E. H. Dugger of Sikeston Route Two. Dugger apparently did not know the tools were missing until informed by police, according to Scott County Sheriff John Dennis.

Deputy sheriff Gerald Inman and Sikeston police detective Dan Hinton were in Cairo this morning talking to suspects.

Cairo police said the men had been arrested after they tried to sell the tools.

Police car damaged in pursuit

CLARKTON-- A highway patrolman escaped injury but his patrol car was not quite so lucky Tuesday night while pursuing a vehicle with no tail lights on a township road four miles east of Clarkton.

Trooper Thurman M. Almond, 31, of Malden was pursuing a vehicle that had been involved in a race with another vehicle. The patrol car ran off the road on a curve into a drainage ditch, damaging the right side.

Johnson, 27, of Patterson.

The accident occurred when the right front tire on Mrs. Johnson's car blew out, causing her to lose control of the car which struck a guard rail.

She was taken to Madison County Memorial Hospital in Fredericktown.

Pamela Elaine Pierce, 7, of Gordonville was injured at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday on a gravel road three miles south of Jackson when the driver of the car in which she was riding lost control of the vehicle on a curve and ran into a ditch.

Miss Pierce suffered minor injuries and was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

The driver, Joan Natalie Pierce, 40, of Gordonville, was not injured.

Other area school districts are also asking approval of tax increases in order to combat inflationary costs. In Charleston, the R-1 school district board of education is seeking approval of a 30- cent increase, raising the levy from $3.60 to $3.90. Richland voters are being asked to approve an increase from $3.50 to $3.75, and the Thomas W. Kelly district at Benton is asking a 55- cent increase from $3.70 to $4.25.

With the tax increase approved, the tax rate in the East Prairie school district would still be considerably lower than other area schools, lower even than some schools which do not have the AAA rating.

"This year we lost some 120 students from the district, which means a loss of about $47,000 in state assistance," McElrath said. The 30- cent tax levy would bring in approximately $42,000 which is needed to offset the amount lost in state aid. Average daily attendance in all local schools this year is 1,550 compared to 1,671 last year.

"Operating a school district is a big business, an economic fact which can be proven by our budget which totaled $1,634,816 this year," McElrath commented.

"Over a million dollars of this budget went for teacher and other employe salaries, and when you consider the fact that most of this money is brought back into our town in some manner, you must realize the economical role our schools play in the financial growth of our town," he added.

When asked what alternative measures he felt the board should have to consider if the proposal is not approved, McElrath replied, "To name a few, some of our programs now offered would have to be eliminated or curtailed; some employes, including some students who work under various programs after school hours, would have to be dismissed; and changes in bus transportation and school maintenance would probably be necessary."

A six per cent salary increase for all employes, approved by the board earlier this year, would also be cut from the budget if the measure fails to receive approval McElrath added.

The superintendent is optimistic about approval of the tax measure and indicated that the board of education also felt that parents and other school patrons who have given their support to the school district, teachers and the educational programs in the past would again support them by approving the issue, in order to continue to provide a high standard of education for the children of the district.

Anyone who has questions concerning the proposed tax levy is urged to contact McElrath or a member of the board.

Polls for the annual school election scheduled April 2 will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Registered voters in ward one will ballot in the fire station; in ward two, the high school lobby; East Prairie ward three (rural) teen town building; and in the Dorena and Wolf Island areas, in the Dorena school building.

Included on the school ballot will be the election of two members for the board of education for three year terms. Candidates are Avery Hutcheson, A. L. "Bud" Story and John Joe Bryant.

McClarty leads SEMO hit parade

Southeast Missouri State University of Cape Girardeau split a doubleheader with Western Illinois State of Macomb, Ill., Tuesday afternoon at VFW stadium, dropping the opener 3-2 in nine innings and charging back for a 6-3 win in the second game.

The victory raised Coach Joe Ulhs Indians record to 3-1 and sends them to Warrensburg Saturday to open their MIAA league wars with Central Missouri State University.

Bob Blankenship, former SHS standout, suffered the opening game loss for the Tribe after relieving Gaylon McSpadden in the eighth. Western got to the curve balling artist for three hits and one run in the ninth. McSpadden allowed three safties through eight innings and fanned seven.

Pat McClarty, Missouri prep all stater from Lilbourn, led SEMO's six hit offense with two safties. The 5-foot- 9 first baseman transferred from Memphis State and won a starting spot with a five RBI performance in the Indians opening encounters at CBC in Memphis, Tenn.

Mark Amick connected for a solo homer for Southeast in the fourth.

Steve Elfrink got a five hit, five run first inning backing from his teammates and went on to tame Western 6-3 in seven innings.

McClarty once again paced Southeast's hitting department with two hits.

Cepeda, Agee released

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Luis Aparicio wasn't mad while Orlando Cepeda was stunned, but neither one was a member of the Boston Red Sox today.

The two veterans were unconditionally released by the Red Sox Tuesday. So were their combined $200,000 salaries.

"I'm not mad at anybody," said Aparicio, a nine-time Gold Glove winner who'll be 40 next month and has played more games—2,599—than any shortstop in major league history. "This was something that had to come sooner or later. I've been suspecting something would happen."

Cepeda, 36, didn't take his release quite so calmly. In fact, he took a blast at Darrell Johnson, the Red Sox' new manager.

"I'm really shocked and disappointed," he said. "I really didn't expect it because it was only a couple of weeks ago that he Johnson told me I was going to be his designated hitter.

"Somebody told me not to trust Johnson because he was two-faced. I told him I knew he didn't want me right along and he kept saying that was wrong."

Despite gimpy knees that prevented him from playing in the field, Cepeda hit .289 with 20 home runs and 86 runs batted in last year as the Red Sox' designated hitter.

Another famous baseball name was released when the Los Angeles Dodgers dropped outfielder Tommie Agee, 31, a World Series hero in 1969 with the miracle New York Mets.

Juan Beniquez doubled across two tying runs in the ninth inning and then scored the winner on Bob Montgomery's single, lifting Boston to an 8-7 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Los Angeles pounded Baltimore's Ross Grimsley for six runs in the fourth inning on Jim Wynn's homer, Bill Russell's double and Dave Lopes' double and defeated the Orioles 9-5.

Al Santorini, Aurelio Monteagudo and Mike Wallace limited the New York Mets to seven hits in pitching the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-0 triumph.

Rich Gossage apparently nailed down a spot as the Chicago White Sox' No. 4 starter when he pitched five hitless innings in a 4-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Angel Mangual's run-scoring double in the 10th inning enabled the Oakland A's to defeat the Chicago Cubs 8-7.

A two-run homer by Willie McCovey and a solo shot by Leron Lee powered the San Diego Padres to a 4-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Cincinnati Reds got sixhit pitching from Pat Osburn, Dick Baney and Pedro Borbon and defeated the Minnesota Twins 5-1.

Al Kaline and Ed Brinkman drove in two runs apiece as the Detroit Tigers blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0 and Tom Griffin allowed four hits in seven innings and pitched the Houston Astros past Montreal 5-1.

Lee Stanton's single drove in the winning run as the California Angels beat the Cleveland Indians 5-4 in 11 innings.

Atlanta's Carl Morton and New York's Pat Dobsen each hurled seven scoreless frames as the Braves and Yankees struggled to a 0-0 tie in a game halted after 14 innings.

MSHSAA survey on cage classes

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Is the energy crunch proving too much for an expanding Missouri high school basketball program?

Should the Missouri State High School Activities Association have cut back to two competition classes rather than expanding to four last year?

Are 421 invitational basketball tournaments too much for the Missouri high school basketball scene?

Those are questions the MSHSAA is attempting to answer in a survey of high schools across the state.

The past school year the association expanded from its Class L, M and S format to Class A, AA, AAA and AAAA.

Now Irvin Keller, executive secretary, is questioning whether expansion might have been the wrong direction. He's polling members to determine their views.

He notes members voted to expand to four classes—but that was before the energy crunch hit. Now there's concern about sending the numerous schools involved to additional regionals and state tournament play at a time when gasoline to operate school buses for educational purposes is in short supply.

"I would say that half of our schools have to travel farther (for regional play)," Keller said. The extra travel has also cut into the followings the teams bring with them—and thus in the gate receipts.

"Our regional receipts are down considerably this year," he added. "Some were down as much as 50 per cent and that's in places where they've been good in the past."

Keller said attendance at the Class AA and AAA state tournament in Columbia earlier this month drew 6,771 paying fans, while the Class M tournament at Columbia a year ago drew 8,800. Figures for the other tourneys were not available.

Another factor in the lack of attendance is saturation. Keller says there were 421 different basketball tournaments for boys this season prior to regional and state playoffs.

Keller cites another factor for the attendance lag—the fear of fans that they couldn't find gas to get home Saturday night after the state finals.

And he's not sure how wise it is to have all four state tourneys in one city. He notes that if the contestants are close to Columbia, the attendance is good; if they're far away, the attendance is bad. He noted that the Class AAAA finals were comprised of teams from the far western and eastern reaches of the state.

On the otherhand, the Class A finals featured Glasgow and Smithton—right in Columbia's back yard.

And the turnout of townspeople from those two communities at Columbia?

"I'll bet they didn't have enough people left in town to put out a fire," Keller says.

Cards blanked by Sox

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Mike Garman gave up four runs in the eighth inning as the Chicago White Sox defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0 Tuesday in a spring exhibition game.

Two of the runs off Garman, acquired from the Boston Red Sox in the off-season, were unearned. Earlier, Cardinal right hander Lynn McGlothen, also an ex-Red Sox, allowed only two hits in six innings.

The Cardinals managed only three hits against Chicago pitching, one more than their output Monday against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The St. Louis roster was reduced to 29 Tuesday with the sale of catcher Larry Haney back to the Oakland A's from whom he was obtained last year.

The Cardinals were in Winter Haven today for a mtch against the Red Sox.

Foreman stops Norton in 2nd

CARACAS (AP) — World heavyweight champion George Foreman, who retained his heavyweight boxing title Tuesday night against Ken Norton, turned his attention now to a $10 million fight with former champion Muhammad Ali scheduled for late September in Africa.

Norton also turned his attention to the Foreman-Ali fight and chose the former champion to win saying "he is a classic boxer."

Norton, a 28-year-old ex-Marine, was stopped in the second round.

A dejected Norton told newsmen in his dressing room he did not plan to quit boxing after falling before Foreman.

"I am not a quiter and I am not going to quit a loser," the challenger said, adding "I would like to fight Foreman again after the Ali-Foreman fight."

Norton won himself fame and money in the ring after two fights with Ali, one of which he won and another he lost. Both fights were split decisions.

The champion said he was sure he could whip Ali in two rounds if they met.

Commenting on his fight with Norton, the champ said he felt a few of the challenger's punches "but they did nothing to me."

"A right hand under the heart shook him. As soon as I hit him with that right in the second, I heard him grunt. I knew it was the end for Norton," the champion told newsmen.

"That really took it out of him," Foreman said of the man he fought for his second title defense since he took the crown away from Joe Frazier in 1973.

The champion said he "prayed to God before the fight and my prayers were answered."

"When I hurt a guy I've got to go out and finish him because it's my job," Foreman said. "Most of my fights end in the first or second round and that goes for a fight with Ali. It's either he gets me or I'll get him."

Commenting on his injured knee, the champion said it did not prevent him from clobbering Norton, "but my knee is really in bad shape, I was only faking out there while jumping around," he said.

Norton said before the fight he did not know of Foreman's knee injury, which reportedly occurred about 10 hours before the fight, according to Foreman himself.

Neither Foreman nor his handlers said how the injury— which his doctor said was an inflammation—occurred.

Hulshof backs Jackson's performance

CHARLESTON — Coach Jim Thornsberry's Kelly Hawks opened their 1974 baseball campaign by squeaking past the CHS Bluejays 2-1 in a Scott-Mississippi confence game here Tuesday afternoon.

Fireballing Jeff Jackson hooked up in a pitching duel with Junior Delay for eight innings before Kelly Hulshof exploded a 330 foot homerun to give Jackson his first victory of the young season.

Charleston started the scoring in the bottom of the first inning after Delay set the Hawks down without a run as McDowel belted a double to drive in the runner who had reached the base on a walk.

Kelly was unable to solve the offerings of the Bluejay moundsman until the top of the second when Jamie Burger led off with a double and Jimmy Duncan followed with a two bagger to put men on second and third with nobody out. Kenny Urhahn drove in the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

Neither team could cross the plate again until the game went into the extra inning when, with two out and nobody on base, Kenny Hulshof blasted his homer.

Jackson fanned 13 batters in recording his first victory of the year in his first start.

"I was going to put Urhahn in to pitch the bottom of the eighth frame but Hulshof delivered", coach Thornsberry commented.

Doubles were hit in the game by McDowel for Charleston, Urhahn, Duncan, and Burger for Kelly. Delay smacked a triple and Hulshof hit the lone homer. Hatchel took the loss for the Bluejays after relieving Delay.

Jackson allowed only two hits in the game while Delay and Hatchel gave up eight for the Bluejays.

Wolfpack unanimous pick

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina State, which won the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball toarnament, was officially crowned the No. 1 team in America by The Associated Press today.

Coach Norm Sloan's Wolfpack was the unanimous choice in voting by the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. N.C. State was named No. 1 on all 47 ballots for 940 points.

Kayoed in the tournament's semifinal round by the Wolfpack, defending national champion UCLA took second place on The AP poll with 832 points, easily outdistancing Marquette, which finished No. 3 with 694.

Maryland was fourth with 591 points and Notre Dame finished fifth with 508. Those top five teams retained the same position in the final poll that they had held a week earlier in the midst of the NCAA, National Invitation and Collegiate Commissioner's Tournaments.

Michigan, Kansas and Providence, all knocked off in the NCAA playoff, held the next three spots. Indiana, which won the Commissioner's tourney, used that victory to move up two notches from a tie for 11th place last week to No. 9. Long Beach State completed the Top 10 teams.

Purdue, which captured the NIT, rode that victory to 11th place in the final poll, a healthy jump from last week's tie for 18th place. The Boilermakers just topped No. 12 North Carolina in one of the poll's tightest battles. The Tar heels had been 10th a week ago.

Utah was No. 15 behind Vanderbilt and Alabama.

Pittsburgh finished 16th and Southern California was No. 17. The last three slots were held down by Oral Roberts, South Carolina and Dayton in that order.

The Top Twenty, with firstplace votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

EAST PRAIRIE — The East Prairie Eagles opened their 1974 Baseball season with a 5-4 win over the Scott Central Braves in a Scott-Mississippi Conference game Tuesday afternoon.

Tim Bard was the winning pitcher for the Eagles with ten strikeouts.

East Prairie held a three run lead at the end of the first inning, and added another two in the third. Scott Central was unable to score until the sixth inning when the Braves drove in four runs off Bard. Steve Husk entered the game as pitcher, replacing Bard, and struck out five Braves to hold off the attack.

Husk, and Mark Mars led the Eagle offense with two RBI's each. Brown and Husk each cracked the ball for doubles to spark the Eagles batting.

Teammates Williams and Mays added the sixth inning punch for the Braves with two hits each.

FAR OUT CAMP OUT takes these Boy Scouts to the wide-open spaces of Kansas City, Mo. The tenters chose not to go too far afield in celebrating Scouting's 64th anniversary. Reassuringly close was the midtown Crown Center Hotel.

Program has aided 450 farmers

Of the 137,000 farms in Missouri, approximately 98,000 (73 per cent) report annual sales of less than $10,000. On the average 70 per cent of this gross figure is needed to run the farm. This means that the average annual net income from these small farms is approximately $3000.

In human terms, these statistics mean that each year 2000 farmers feel the economic pinch too harshly and are forced to turn elsewhere for a living. The small farm is a tradition in American society. But when it comes to more than token support, persons who want to earn their total income from farming are often in trouble. That's why in 1971 University of Missouri Extension launched a small pilot project in Wayne and Polk counties.

Appropriately dubbed the small farm program by the extension farm management staff, the project was desinged to help those farmers who wanted to stay on the land despite economic barriers.

Following the pilot project, University Extension was convinced the program was needed. It was expanded to Dallas, Crawford, Oregon, Putnam, Shannon and Washington counties in 1972. These counties became the tesing ground for full scale program development which may eventually lead to a statewide program.

Identifying those who still worked small farms in each of the two original counties was the first problem. Local leaders were contacted and asked to provide names. more than 200 were interviewed.

Members of a six- member Polk County family, who were involved in the pilot project, said they regretted only one thing — that they hadn't encountered a similar project much sooner. After a year in the program they established 200 acres of improved forages on their 237- acre farm. It had been mainly broomsedge and brush. They also remodeled a dairy barn, expanded their dairy herd from 18 to 36 cows and began producing Grade A milk.

According to this farmer, he was able to increase his annual net income more than $2000 by making the right combination of resources and information.

Two- thirds of the farmers interviewed in Wayne and Polk counties had beef cows as a major enterprise; more than one- half had feeder pigs; and a smaller number were involved in dairying. The average size of the farms was 139 acres with most of the land in pasture and hay. Ninety- three per cent owned their farms. Results also showed 65 per cent of the farmers reported working at off- farm jobs during the year and 27 per cent of their wives had outside jobs.

Personal data on the farmers in the original study revealed that almost half are between the ages of 45 and 64.

Overall the study found that the farmers were concerned about improving their farm income and providing a better way of life for their families. But they lacked information on up- to- date farm management practices.

Today the program reaches more than 450 farmers using 12 education assistants. These assistants are local farmers who are concerned with helping other farmers.

They listen to the farmer's problems and offer suggestions. They also attempt to find out the interests and future plans of the family, obtain background information, help families see possible opportunities for obtaining more income, suggest an order of priorities and keep each family informed of services available from other agencies as well as University Extension.

The education assistants are trained by University Extension and work with their area farm management specialist. Once training is completed, the assistants spend most of their time helping 30 to 50 farmers on an individual basis. Identifying farm problems and improving production are their major objectives.

Cancer act calls for strategy

By THOMAS F. EAGLETON
U.S. Senator—Missouri

The cancer death rate in Missouri is 14 per cent higher than the rate in the United States. In 1950 there were 160 cancer deaths in Missouri per 100,000 population. In 1970 there were over 180.

According to current rates, cancer will strike two of three families over the years – or one in four persons. Estimates for Missouri project that during the rest of the 1970's 17,000-18,000 new cancer cases will be reported per year, with 8,000-9,000 deaths per year.

Cancer must be controlled. Research into treatment and prevention is a necessity.

The Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare, of which I am a member, recently approved the National Cancer Act of 1974, which I cosponsored. It is designed to continue and strengthen current cancer research programs.

Progress has been made. The first National Cancer Act passed in 1971. This past fall the National Cancer Institute reported improvements in the percentage of patients surviving more than three years after diagnosis of several kinds of cancer, including leukemia.

But this progress is not enough. The Act of 1974 calls for the NCI to develop and coordinate a national strategy against cancer. Communication between the research centers and the Institute will be improved. Research results must be quickly and systematically put into widespread use for cancer prevention, detection and treatment.

Impoundment of funds for medical research is a threat to the fight against cancer. Cancer will not be understood until the fundamental life processes are understood. This requires research in all of the biosciences. In 1973, funds for several health research programs were impounded by the Administration. This only impeded our progress in fighting cancer. A few more lives may have been lost.

To help prevent this, the 1974 National Cancer Act calls for a Biomedical Research Panel. This panel will monitor the development and execution of biomedical research programs of the National Institute of Health. It will also immediately report to the President and to the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee any delays or blockages in the execution of these research programs.

Another concept strengthened in the new act is peer review of grants. All grant applications for over $35,000 will be thoroughly studied to be sure of their merits and prevent the possibility of duplicating research.

With a higher death rate from cancer than the United States as a whole, Missourians have a special stake in cancer research. More people between the ages 35 and44 in Missouri died of cancer than from any cause, and cancer was among the five leading killers for all ages except persons less than one year old.

I am hopeful the Senate and the House will quickly pass this legislation so the fight against cancer can continue.

Banking committee votes to let wage, price controls die

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee voted Tuesday to let wage and price controls die on April 30.

First the panel rejected, 11 to 4, a compromise proposal by four Democratic senators to give standby authority for continuation of the curbs.

Then it killed, 15 to 0, President Nixon's proposal to retain controls in one or two areas and preserve some of the existing control machinery.

The votes meant that the Senate will not even consider any legislation to extend the controls which expire at the end of next month.

Youth Corps offers new job opportunities

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Missouri youths between the ages of 15 and 18 will be able to earn up to $300 this summer through 13 U.S. Youth Conservation Corps summer programs to be set up throughout the state this year, according to Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.).

Federal and state funds totaling almost $300,000 have been approved for the 250 job openings available in Missouri.

April 15 is the deadline for receiving applications for the program.

Administered through the U. S. Departments of Interior and Agriculture, Youth Conservation Corps activities include construction and maintenance of trails and campgrounds, range management, erosion control and improvement of wildlife habitats.

Youth Corps camps may be coeducational, all female or all male, with live- in quarters or camps to which employes will commute. At the live- in camps, facilities may range from tents and rough bunkhouses to barrack- type facilities or dormitories.

Those interested in applying for a job in the programs may contact local Missouri State employment offices or write Robert Wilson, Assistant Director, Employment Service Operations, Division of Employment Security, Box 59, 421 E. Dunklin St., Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

The Missouri programs will last from four to eight weeks and will be held at the following camps:

Mingo National Wildlife Refuge, near Puxico in Wayne and Stoddard Counties (Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife).

Hay Hollow Camp in Mark Twain National Forest, near West Plains (U.S. Forest Service).

Cedar Creek Management Area, Fulton, Callaway County (U.S. Forest Service).

Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, St. Louis (National Park Service).

Welch Cave, Cedar Grove Route, near Salem (National Park Service).

Babler Memorial State Park, Grover, St. Louis County (Missouri Park Board).

Reed Memorial Wildlife Area, Lee's Summit Jackson County (Missouri Department of Conservation).

Busch Memorial Wildlife Area, Weldon Springs, St. Charles County (Missouri Department of Conservation).

Shepherd of the Hills Hatchery, near Table Rock Dam, Taney County (Missouri Conservation Department).

East Central District Headquarters, Union, Franklin County (Missouri Conservation Department).

Woodson K. Woods Memorial Wildlife Area, St. James Phelps and Crawford Counties (Missouri Conservation Department).

NWS to test tornado device

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)— A tornado detection device will be tested at 20 sites of the National Weather Service and the National Severe Storms Laboratory at Norman, Okla., in May.

The instrument, the size of a typewriter with four antennas, was developed here at the Wave Propogation Laboratory, operated by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The new unit detects the direction of electrical "bursts" associated with tornado bearing thunderstorms, William L. Taylor, project director, said. This means the Weather Service can intensify its radar search of a more specific area and warn the people there of a possible tornado, he said.

During the tornado detector evaluation, instruments will be installed at sites along America's "tornado alley." The sites are at Fort Smith, Ark.; Tampa, Fla.; Atlanta, Ga.; Evansville and Indianapolis, Ind.; Des Moines, Iowa; Topeka and Wichita, Kan.; Baton Rouge, La.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Springfield, Mo. Grand Island, Neb. Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Norman, Okla.; Memphis, Tenn.; Fort Worth, Houston and Lubbock, Tex.

Budapest is a city formed by the two ancient towns of Buda and Pest.

General Dynamics reports sales of $1,641,799,000

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Sales of $1,641,799,000 in 1973 were reported by General Dynamics Corp. compared with those of $1,539,390,000 in 1972.

The company reported its net earnings for the year at $41,343,000, or $3.94 per stockholder share, compared to $24,271,000 or $2.30 per share in 1972.

Three major contracts on which earnings were yet to accrue included a $1.2 billion contract for construction of 18 SSN attack submarines, the company report said.

General Dynamics' report on earnings also did not include a year- end backlog of $636 million covering contracts for liquefied natural gas tankers by its Quincy Shipbuilding division.

In a letter to stockholders, General Dynamics president David S. Lewis described the company's Stromberg- Carlson.

'The Sting' is story of the 'Big Con'

Paul Newman reteams with Robert Redford, and Robert Shaw is added, to make the stellar trio which brings to the screen the Bill/Phillips production of a George Roy Hill film, "The Sting", which will come to the Mall Theatre at Kingsway Plaza Mall April 5.

The exciting suspense-packed story of the "Big Con", by David S. Ward, a Richard D. Zanuck/David Brown presentation in Technicolor, is set in Chicago in the mid 1930's.

Newman considers his role in "The Sting", in which he plays the main con man, a complete original. He has played lawbreakers and nonconformists before in such films as Hud", "The Hustler", "Cool Hand Luke" and "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid".

Like every memorable character in his gallery of screen portraits, Newman's portrayal in "The Sting" is unique.

Redford, in the picture, becomes a protege of Newman's, playing the "Roper" to Newman's "insideman". A youthful success on the Broadway stage, Redford recreated his Broadway starring role in the film version of "Barefoot in the Park" opposite Jane Fonda. "Tell Them Willie Boy is Here" followed in 1969, but it was "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" that bolted him into stardom.

He soon will return to Universal to star with Bo Svenson for producer- director Hill in "The Great Waldo Pepper", the story of a post-World War I brainstorming pilot.

In an intriguing change of image, England's sophisticated Shaw emerges in "The Sting" as an American racketeer-- a far cry from his Sir Randolph Churchill in "Young Winston." He has been seen, among others, in "A Man For All Seasons", "From Russia With Love" and "The Battle of the Bulge". He is the author of five novels and three produced plays.

"The Sting" is the second original screenplay by 27- year-old Ward to reach the camera under Bill/Phillips Productions. The first was "Steelyard Blues".

Besides 20th Century Fox's "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid", Hill's previous credits include "Thoroughly Modern Millie" and "Slaughterhouse Five" for Universal. He will be in his own element in "The Great Waldo Pepper", his next Universal production.

Hooker seeks friend

Johnny Hooker (Robert Redford), anxious for female company, asks diner cashier Dimitra Arliss to go out with him. Universal's "The Sting", which starts April 5 at Mall Theatre in Kingsway Plaza Mall, stars Paul Newman, Robert Redford and Robert Shaw. The Richard D. Zanuck/David Brown presentation was directed by George Roy Hill and produced by Tony Bill and Michael and Julia Phillips. David S. Ward wrote the screenplay about "The Big Con" in Chicago of the 1930s.

As of March 18 a number of the leading stock market prognosticators were detecting favorable signs.

United Business and Investment Report: "There are growing signs that the economic slowdown may have been, or at least is in the process of being arrested. The decline in housing construction activity presents some hint of having bottomed out.

"New factory orders remain strong. Businessmen still plan heavy plant and equipment outlays. The end of the Arab oil boycott and the steadiness of the unemployment rate should give consumers new heart, reopening their wallets a bit in the process.

"The first half of 1974 still promises to be something less than spectacular, but with potential strengths apparently developing in several areas, as noted above, prospects for the second half seem bright."

Standard & Poor's Investment Advisory Survey: "We see no reason to alter the policy we have been advocating of adding to commitments on price dips. A step- up in accumulation of stocks would be justified if favorable decisions are taken at the conference in Vienna."

Standard & Poor's Outlook (another subsidiary of Standard & Poor's Corp.) comments that "the oil situation and inflation have been the two major concerns for some months, and there is a certain interrelationship. Thus the nature of new oil developments remains an important nearby market factor."

Drew Odd Lot Studies was less optimistic in its appraisal of the market than some of its brothers in the business of equity evaluation.

"The market is not acting well. In spite of strength in certain indicators and potentially bullish news from the Arab oil ministers, it looks like a very good time to move your stops up tight."

Argus Research: "Consumer spending is weak right now, but is slated for a pick- up next quarter that will gather in intensity.

The big swing will, as usual, come in the volatile durable goods sector. After declining at an annual rate of 20 percent in the final quarter of 1973 and an estimated annual rate of about 14 percent in the current quarter, consumer spending for durables is expected to advance at a five percent rate next quarter, and then begin to accelerate steadily to an almost 12 percent gain in the final quarter this year."

An equity which some SEC-registered representatives term "speculative" but feel worthy of research with professional counsel at this time is Duddy's, a distributor of auto and truck tires.

This firm, which went public a year or so ago around $12 per share, now is trading in the $3 to $4 area and, with the lifting of the oil embargo, its potential is believed to be improving.

A portion of the tires it sells (mostly by Watts line telephone) through terminals strategically placed throughout the United States is produced in Israel. A major portion, however, of its needs are made under contract by big name domestic tire manufacturers bearing Duddy's brand names.

For the three months ended the past Dec. 31, sales totaled $14,437,000 with net income of $275,000 or 22 cents per share with 1,272,377 shares outstanding. For the like period of the prior year, sales were $10,458,000, with a net of $170,000 or 15 cents per share on the basis of 1,111,507 shares outstanding.

Some analysts feel that such a gain in earnings under the unfavorable situation as the gas shortage and the turbulence in Israel are quite remarkable. With so few shares outstanding, continued growth in earnings could make this stock a candidate for a split, it is noted.

Sikeston realtors hear Matthews and Turner

Ned Matthews, assistant vice president of the Bank of Sikeston, and Wayne Turner, owner of Turner Map Co. in Risco, addressed the Sikeston Board of Realtors March 19 at the Travelodge Restaurant.

Matthews informed the group of the bank's new long-range financing program, and Turner presented an outline on the various maps and atlases of Bootheel counties that are available to the public.

Plans for Realtor Week, which will be observed April 21- 27, were discussed. Shirley A. Dyer will serve as chairman for the week. Dr. Raymond Lansford of Columbia, director of educational services for the Missouri Association of Realtors, will be the featured speaker for the board's next meeting at 7 p.m. April 25 at Ramada Inn.

President Ira Merideth presided and special guests were the Rev. Jim Young of Charleston, pastor of the Charleston Assembly of God Church, and Dennis Ziegenhorn, local insurance and real estate salesman.

New addition to be opened at Weiser Co.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Wieser Motor Co., 1725 North Kingshighway, will hold grand opening ceremonies Friday, Saturday, and Sunday for its new 7,800 square-foot addition.

The new addition provides additional showroom, accessory and service areas. Wieser Motor Co. now has 7,200 square feet of showroom space and over 30,000 square feet in two buildings located on a 3.5-acre tract. The company, which was established in 1964, has 22 full and part-time employes.

John L. Wieser serves as president. Managers are Jerry Wieser, general manager Ron Kokoruдz, sales manager; Robert Ford, parts manager; and Robert White Jr., service manager.

Wieser Motor Co. sells Honda, Yamaha and BMW motorcycles, five lines of fiberglass and aluminum boats, plus two lines of canoes, Starcraft camping trailers and Hop Cap pick-up truck campers.

2 PG features now at Malone

Showing through Saturday at Malone Theatre, 107 W. Malone Ave., is "House of Dark Shadows" and "Tickle Me", both rated PG (parental guidance advised). Starting Saturday will be a double feature, including "Fugitive Girls" and "Devil's Wedding Night", both rated R (Restricted. Persons under the age of 17 not admitted without parents' consent).

"American Graffiti" rated PG, is being held over for the fifth week at Malco Twin Cinema I in Midtowner Village Shopping Center.

John Wayne is "McQ", showing next door at Malco Twin Cinema II. The movie is rated PG.

Held over at Mall Theatre in Kingsway Plaza Mall is "Magnum Force", starring Clint Eastwood and rated R. On April 5, the Mall Theatre will feature "The Sting", starring Robert Redford and Paul Newman and rated PG.

Big K opens 60th store

NASHVILLE, Tenn.— Kuhn's- Big K Stores Corp. has opened its 60th Big K discount department store, a 45,000 square- foot outlet in Richmond, Ky.

The Richmond store, located on the eastern bypass near Interstate 75, is the third of four Big K's opening during the first quarter, and is among 14 announced for opening this year and early in 1975.

Richmond, the largest city in Madison County, is located in east central Kentucky about 25 miles south of Lexington, and is the home of Eastern Kentucky University.

In addition to its 60 Big K stores, Kuhn's- Big K operates 27 Kuhn's Variety Stores. The company's area of operations includes Tennessee, Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi and Missouri.

Kuhn's- Big K stock is listed on the American Stock Exchange.

Area women to attend banking conference

OSAGE BEACH-- Six Sikeston area women will be among the 500 women employed in Missouri banks to attend the 10th annual Missouri Bankers Association conference for women bankers April 10- 11 at Tan- Tar- A Resort.

Attending from the Sikeston banks will be Kathy Brickle, Wanda Raper and Eleanor Hahn from Bank of Sikeston, Shirley Kegley and Wanda Witt from First National Bank and Jo Sikes from Security National Bank.

Marcella DeAlmeida of Joplin, second vice president of First National Bank and Trust Company, is conference chairman. Featured speakers and panel discussions will cover a variety of subjects designed to improve techniques of serving needs of bank customers, with special emphasis on areas in which women bankers play an important part.

Among key speakers are: Charles W. Risley, Sr., president pro tem of the Missouri Bankers Association and president of Excelsior Trust Co. in Excelsior Springs; David L. Schmidt, management consultant, Shawnee Mission, Kan.; Newt Hielscher, Shreveport, La.; and Horace Dunagan Jr., president of First State Bank at Caruthersville.

A panel of experts from education, industry and banking fields will discuss the future of banking on Wednesday morning. Panel members are Harold R. Hollister, senior vice president of United Missouri Bank of Kansas City; Wayne D. Nusbaum, vice president and treasurer, Ralston Purina Co., St. Louis; Barbara Pendleton, vice president, Grand Avenue Bank & Trust Co., Kansas City.

Special areas of interest will be covered on Wednesday afternoon. Subjects include: "Savings and Certificates of Deposit", "Fund Acquisition and Retention", "Loans", "Selling Bank Services", "Staff Training", and "Public Relations".

Hielscher, the banquet speaker, will speak Wednesday evening on "Four Deposits in the Happiness Account."

The conference adjourns Thursday morning with a program of special recognition for the 10th anniversary of the women bankers conference.

Clem Beal

Beal to head Scott County cancer drive

Clem Beal of Sikeston has been selected as chairman of the Scott County unit of the American Cancer Society.

Miss Linda Lawrence of Cape Girardeau, area executive director of Southeast Missouri of the American Cancer Society, made the announcement.

Other officers of the Scott County unit are Herb Stephens, vice president, and Priscilla Righter, secretary, both of Sikeston.

The American Cancer Society Crusade for Scott County will be during the month of April. All cities in Scott County have chairmen who will be assisted by people in that community to help in soliciting funds.

Miss Lawrence stated that cancer claims the lives of over 383,000 people per year ... 8,900 of these will be from Missouri. It is also estimated that there will be over 16,000 new cancer cases in Missouri in 1974.

Over 1,000 people will be involved in the cancer crusade in Scott County.

The majority of all the funds contributed will be used for research, with smaller allocations for public education, professional education, patient services, community services, fund raising and management.

Tanya Tucker is not afraid of growing old

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — That old enemy Age has ended many a child star's career, but Tanya Tucker, the latest fairhaired child of country music, is unconcerned.

"Starting young can be good or bad. Like, sometimes I wonder what Donnie Osmond will be doing when he's 30. But I don't let fears like that bother me," the curly-haired blone remarked.

"I don't really have a child's voice so I don't have to worry about what I'll sound like later on.

"I know my voice will be different, but it's already changed. It did that when I had my tonsils out."

No tonsils helped her latest single "Will you Lay With Me (In a Field of Stone)" make the number two spot last week in the charts. Her album, in its second week in the charts, is in the top 30.

"People like to be surprised. And they are surprised when they hear a 15-year-old singing a song like "Will You Lay With me." And sometimes they're surprised just by my age. They don't all know I'm as young as I am."

Her roots are in country music, but her release of "Delta Dawn" in 1972 and now, "Will You Lay with Me," cross over, as the term goes, into rock airplay."

"My album has a little of everything: ballads, rock and country. I don't want to put myself into a category that's too tight, but at the same time, when you have a country fan, he's the most loyal kind you can have."

Stardom, difficult to handle with poise—even for an adult, might be even harder for someone as young as Tanya. But she says she's just having fun.

"I love traveling around and doing shows. It's really exciting and I get to meet a lot of other people in the business. These are people I've been a fan of for years and they always seem surprised when I ask for their autographs.

"The whole thing is still exciting. And it's getting better. We've got a band now and we're getting new equipment and maybe a new bus," she bubbled.

"I guess I'm really not used to getting the start treatment yet," she admitted with a grin.

While her father is her manager and her producer is the highly-regarded Billy Sherill, Tanya knows the burden falls to her.

Survey shows farm-fuel situation is not improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government surveys show the farm-fuel situation is not improving much despite farmers' demands that they get new allocations.

A report by the Agriculture Department for the week ended March 21 says "the situation is about the same to slightly worse" than in the first half of the month.

Officials said the farm supply of diesel fuel was "tight to very tight" in parts of 16 states, compared with 13 states two weeks earlier.

The survey showed that some counties in Mississippi, Tennessee, Ohio and Kansas were "very critical" in diesel fuel supply.

Eight states—North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Oregon—reported wet weather had delayed field work.

"All indicate that if farmers had been able to get into fields, fuel supplies would have been inadequate to meet demand," the report said.

Officials said farm fuel prices of gasoline had increased about 29 per cent from last Nov. 1 to March 18. Diesel fuel prices had increased 38 per cent and LP gas had increased 21 per cent during the period.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers who underwent a baling wire shortage last year can expect another squeeze when the 1974 haying season rolls around.

"Baling wire supplies are expected to be short about 30 per cent if imports and domestic production continue at present rates and requirements are similar to 1973," the department said Monday.

THE BEEFS about beef in Argentina don't look likely here as Mario, a cook in a small restaurant in Buenos Aires, slices off steaks. But that holds true only for the first half of the month. During the last half there is a ban on selling beef locally in an effort to boost export sales.

The action is in Missouri in 74

The action is in Missouri this year, says the Missouri Tourism Commission. "Missouri is one of the few states that has been relatively untouched by the energy crisis," says James Pasley, commission director. "We think that with adequate supplies of gasoline and a continuing growth of attractions in the state, Missouri is the place to be this year."

As evidence that the tourist industry in the state is optimistic and expects a big year Pasley says Lake of the Ozarks area planners are continuing to build additions to already luxurious resorts, leaders in tourism and travel around the state continue to attend sports shows in large numbers, talking and promoting Missouri to thousands of vacation- minded persons and state officials continue to plan expansion of services to would- be vacationers.

Executive officers of Tourist Associations at Table Rock Lake and officials at the Lake of the Ozarks, two of the state's largest water oriented resort areas, have issued statements indicating there will be enough fuel on hand to provide all visitors to the areas with gasoline to return home and fuel for pleasure use. These areas, along with others around the state, have laid plans to insure that service stations are open seven days a week, on a rotating basis if necessary. "I think it is safe to say there will be enough fuel at the state's major resort areas to provide every visitor with enough to have a goodtime and return safely home," says Pasley.

The tourism commission points out that all agencies surveying potential vacationers are learning that most Americans plan to travel somewhere, but will probably be staying closer to home and spending more time in one spot, than in recent years. "You can't deny that our central location among the other states and our excellent recreational facilities will have an affect on where people in the midwest will vacation," says Pasley. "We could end up better off than before."

The commission has prepared a 46- page booklet on the state's seven vacation lands. Special sections deal with the Pony Express Region, Mark Twain Region, Lake of The Ozarks Region, Ozark Playgrounds Region, the Big Springs Region, Kansas City and St. Louis.

Pasley says it is important to most people to get away from yearly headaches. "After 11 months of rising prices, taxes, mortgage payments and illnesses you are ready to get away from it all," he says, "and Missouri is ready to accommodate you."

The Missouri State Park Board is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year and has taken on the monumental task of developing a state- wide system of trails. "There are several people who are interested in this program," says park director James Wilson, "including hikers, campers, horseback riders, bicycle and motorcycle enthusiasts." Park officials are starting with 1,216 miles of trails already in existence and planning to put them into a system that links city, county and state parks and recreational areas. Pasley says this program is just one more example of the forward look Missouri has in developing outstanding vacation programs.

And Missouri Boat Commission officials say boating in the state is in for a very good year. Executive Secretary W. C. "Pat" Murphy says recreational boating is expected to continue its growth. "Prospects appear good there will be enough fuel to go around for the state's 300,000 boaters," says Murphy, "and the only change in boating habits we foresee is one to smaller 'runabout' boats and a move away from the heavy cruisers." Last year boat and motor registration added more than $319,000.00 to the state's revenue. Boat registration fees amounted to $248,000.00 last year and outboard motor registration fees added another $71,378.00 to that figure.

The tourism commission says there are many historic sites and monuments in the state of interest to visitors. Recently the Gateway Arch in St. Louis was picked as one of the "Seven Man- Made Wonders of the U.S.A."in an unofficial poll of the American travel industry conducted by the United States Travel Service. Pasley says the Arch, in downtown St. Louis, attracts over 4 million persons a year.

Other important spots to visit in the state, says Pasley, include the Winston Churchill Memorial and Church of St. Mary Aldermanbury located in Fulton; Fort Osage near Kansas City; the State Capitol Building and Governor's Mansion in Jefferson City and Forest Park in St. Louis and Swope Park in Kansas City, home of two widely known zoos.

"You can't go wrong in Missouri this year," concludes Pasley.

Washington report

Senator supports soil conservation

By STUART SYMINGTON
U.S. Senator—Missouri

WASHINGTON, D. C. — This past week representatives of the Missouri Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts were here in Washington presenting their message of significance to all Americans: "Soil Conservation is Consumer Protection."

With agricultural exports at an all time high and fuel and fertilizer shortages threatening, the need to preserve and increase the productiveness of American farms has never been greater.

Major efforts of the Soil Conservation Service include work with farmers to help prevent erosion, conduct soil surveys and provide technical assistance to farmers. Among the examples of these efforts are advice on terracing of fields, which grasses to use for cattle forage, effective use of marginal cropland and flood control protection.

This past year, the Soil Conservation Service has awarded more than $1 million in contracts for work in the Small Watershed Program (P.L. 566). Work under this program is done on a cost/share basis, with the Federal Government providing the funds and local landowners and sponsors providing labor and rights- of-way.

Completed work in the last 10 years has provided benefits estimated to be almost equal to the costs; benefits such as stopping water where it falls, thereby preventing floods, and reducing soil erosion and water pollution caused by silt.

In rural areas, P. L. 566 lakes provide outdoor recreation, water supply and aid in attracting industry.

The Soil Conservation Service also sponsors two resource conservation and development projects in Missouri designed to assist rural and small town residents with projects to provide employment opportunities and improve their standard of living.

As example, the Top of the Ozarks RC&D project has stimulated some 5.5 million recreation visitor days and added an estimated $10 million to the local economy during 1973. Since inception, this project has created an estimated 2,674 man years of employment

Southwest Missouri RC&D provided assistance for such diverse projects as local fire protection, housing, landfills and flood control structures.

In addition to services in rural and smaller communities, the Soil Conservation Service provides technical advice and assistance in metropolitan areas for control of soil erosion caused by excessive run- off from shopping centers, parking lots and housing developments.

We agree with the message the representatives of the Missouri Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts brought to Washington. Because of its efforts to protect valuable land, increase agricultural production, provide protection from devastating floods and stimulate rural economic growth, soil conservation is truly consumer protection.

SHEEP GETS HER SHARE

LONDON (AP) — A fully grown sheep found wandering near London's Euston Station has created a host of woolly problems for police. Frank Pawlowski claims ownership of the animal and says he wants to sacrifice it to a sun god in a religious ritual. The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says this is illegal.

While the dispute rages, the 3-year-old ewe has eaten all the roses around the police station where she is detained.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Letter To The Editor

March 4, 1974

Mr. C. L. Blanton, III, Editor
Sikeston Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir:
Enclosed is a copy of a letter personally handed to your sports editor, at the Standard office, last Thursday morning about 9 o'clock. He told me he would have it printed in your 'Letters To The Editor' column.
Having followed rather closely the content of most of the letters in this particular column, I cannot understand what might have been so objectional that it couldn't be printed. Unless, I got too close to the truth!
This letter was not written by a "sore loser" but in the interest of promoting fair play on the part of some of our adults who scratch their heads and wonder why our young people aren't satisfied with the "bag of tricks" we are handing them. It may be too late after the game to print this for it to serve any useful purpose, but since putting forth this much effort, would like to have it in the paper if it meets with your approval.

Very Truly yours,
Mrs. Lester Miller, Jr.

Sports Editor
Sikeston Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir:
This letter is written in protest of unfair officiating in area high school basketball games, particularly at the Lilbourn- Kelly Sub-State Class AA Tournament play in Poplar Bluff Monday night.
We like to think of high school sports as the training ground for discipline and fair play, both absolute requirements in good sportsmanship, plus the thrill of winning the game - all the way to State if possible. Monday night at Poplar Bluff each team thought the State Championship was within their grasp, along with all the fans who have followed these teams all year.
Without demeaning any of the players or the capabilities of either team as a whole, let us look at the officiating.
First, one of the referees that night had called a game in which each of the teams had participated this season. It would seem more reasonable to select officials unknown and unfamiliar to the area for these crucial games. And crucial this game was! It was certain to be the last game for those seniors on the losing team, and what player would jeopardize his last chance to play by committing senseless fouls that would put him on the bench, only to watch his teammates carry on for three quarters of play without him, particularly one who had not been in consistent foul trouble all season.
With this in mind, let us look at Jeff Jackson, a senior and forward for the Kelly Hawks who has an enviable record as a high school athlete. Only a few minutes into this game he committed his team's first foul, only to commit another before the end of the first quarter while also making 10 of the 24 points scored thus far. This proved to be his fate as far as this game was concerned because on three other attempts to make a comeback into the game, he was pegged for questionable, insignificant fouls before he had a chance to make it down court and back.
Now is it coincidence that he was benched for three-fourths of the game and no one else on either team in four quarters of play fouled out? Surely if all the boys had been watched as closely as he was none would have made it through the game.
Now what causes a situation like this? You will never find out from the officials - they run from the floor after a game like they have committed a crime! More frequently is the integrity of the officials being questioned not only in our area, but scattered across the states. But whose fault is this? Are the MSHSAA regulations not strict enough to guide and govern the actions of licensed officials to avoid so many inconsistencies in calling plays from one game to the other, thus confusing the fans?
Or do some referees assume more responsibility for the outcome of the game than is rightfully theirs?
Of course there is good and bad in everything, and I'm sure referees are no ex ception, and a lot can be overlooked if there seems to be a sincere effort made to threat each boy and each team impartially, but such obvious attention to one boy is unforgivable.
It is high time a firm position is taken by the MAHSAA to insure fair, unbiased officiating, or the game of basketball will surely suffer.

Very Truly yours,
Mrs. Lester Miller, Jr.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

March 18, 1974

Dear Uncle Charlie,
I would appreciate the opportunity to use your paper in expressing my thanks to the hundreds of Sikeston families who opened their homes to the high school students attending the State Student Council Conference last weekend. The student body of Sikeston High School worked hard to make the conference a success, but we could never have welcomed the 900 delegates without the warm kindness all the host families showed in making the visitors feel welcome.
It's a great feeling to know that the adults in Sikeston had confidence in both us and in the visiting students from other Missouri High Schools. I'm very proud of Sikeston!
Sincerely yours,
Maureen Klein

For the MASC Conference

March 22, 1974
Mr. Charley Blanton, Editor
Sikeston Daily Standard
Sikeston, Mo. 63801

Dear Mr. Blanton:
I am writing this letter to complain; not about the Watergate affair; and not about the high cost of living; and not about the shortages of things; nor about the 55 mile speed limit. I am complaining about the way people are treating "God". I want to take a stand for my "God", your "God", everybody's "God".
We get our daily newspapers and we read about all the crimes that are being committed; we read about the Watergate affair; we read about the high prices and the shortages; we read about which school beat which school playing football, basketball and etc. How much do we read about "God?" A little two by four inch inch spot in paper with a scripture and a prayer. And then one day a week; one whole page is dedicated for all the church services for Sunday. I wonder Mr. Blanton, how many people bother to read this page.
We turn our T.V.'s on of a evening, and we see and hear about more crime, more about sports, and the weather. Then, it's murder movies, rape movies, crime, crime, crime, 'till the stations go off the air. People will stay up and lose sleep to see who kills who.
Then, there are the people who will dash in from work, change clothes, and grab a bite to eat, sometimes they have to miss that bite, and they rush off to a ball game. Scream their heads off for their teams to win.
Alas! Come Sunday morning. They are too sleepy to get up and go to Sunday School and Church. That is the only day to catch up on their sleep. So what? They aren't doing anything wrong, so "God" won't be too mad at them if they miss church. Miss a meal to go to church! Never.
Mr. Blanton, people better wake up. It's later than they think. With out "God"; there would be nothing. I pray that Sunday morning the churches will be overflowing. I'll be there. Will you?
Concerned about souls,
Sincerely,
Mary Craig

Dear Editor:
FEET OF CLAY
Two times in American history our Great Nation has abandoned soldiers to an enemy so small we could whip them on Saturday afternoon and then watch it on the six o'clock news — and both times Richard Nixon was there. He was vice president under Dwight Eisenhower when they left about 500 men unaccounted for in North Korea. The second time was North Vietnam where Nixon very recently abandoned about 1500 American soldiers who are unaccounted for, and no doubt, like those in North Korea, 22 years from now they will still be unaccounted for. A president or a nation who abandons the men they sent to fight their war can never be honorable. Must we wonder why some fled our country to avoid this fate?
I would like to see an amendment making it unconstitutional for America to leave soldiers unaccounted for — ONLY unless we are defeated, and it would automatically be an impeachable offence for a president to commit this shameful act. I see no real difference in our P.O.W.'s — M.I.A.'s and B.A.H.'s — the latter meaning Safe at Home's, we traded the lives of our M.I.A.'s and with it our honor for personal convenience and now in filthy corruption up to our necks and without a leader, this once proud nation stands on "FEET OF CLAY."

COOKING-UP

The Daily Standard, Sikeston, Mo.
Wednesday, March 27, 1974 24

With the arrival of March comes the first hint of spring and fishing enthusiasts everywhere take to their favorite fishing holes with hopes of landing the big one. Our rivers and lakes in Southeast Missouri yield a large and varied supply of fish for our dining pleasure. Your cooking can become legendary with the following collection of recipes for the proper cooking of fish.

Wanda Atchley

The secret to fish cookery is using the proper temperature and time. In general, a moderately hot skillet or oven and a very short time period is best. Watch the fish carefully. It is done when the watery, translucent look of raw fish changes to an opaque, milky color in the center of the thickest part.

At this point, the flesh will easily separate into flakes when tested with a fork. Handle fish as little as possible during and after cooking to preserve the appearance.

Whether you fry your fish or bake it, you will be guaranteed success with these recipes.

SOUTHERN PAN-FRIED FISH

2 to 3 lbs. fish
1 cup shortening
2 tbsp. salt
½ cup cornmeal

Cut fish into serving pieces. Heat shortening in frypan over medium heat. Mix salt and cornmeal; roll fish in cornmeal mixture. Drop into frypan; fry for three minutes or until delicately browned: Yield four servings.

For those of you who prefer to cook their catch immediately, the above recipe can be prepared easily on the river bank or your favorite camp spot.

BATTERED CATFISH

1 can shortening
2 eggs beaten
1 cup milk
salt and pepper to taste

Melt shortening in deep thick kettle. Mix eggs and milk. Salt and pepper catfish; dip into milk mixture. Roll in cornmeal; drop in hot shortening. Fry until brown, turning once; drain on absorbent paper and serve hot with hush puppies, if desired. Yield 12 servings.

SOUTHERN BROILED TROUT

Salt and pepper to taste
4 large fresh speckled trout
½ cup melted butter
1/3 cup lemon juice
5 tbsp. chopped parsley
½ cup grated onion
½ tsp. paprika
5 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
Dash of cayenne pepper

Salt and pepper trout; place on foil. Mix remaining ingredients; pour over trout. Close foil. Broil at 450 degrees until done. Yield: six servings.

FAVORITE BLUEGILLS

¼ lb. salt pork, cubed
1 large onion, sliced
1 tsp. mixed spices
½ cup vinegar
½ cup sugar
1 gsp. salt
1 dozen bluegills

Fry salt pork until brown. Cook onion in small amount of water until tender. Combine onion and pork; add spices, vinegar, sugar and salt. Cook bluegills in vinegar mixture for 10 minutes or until tender. Yield: four servings.

The following recipe is for those of you are are non-fisherman and prefer to purchase your fish at your local grocer's.

BAKED FISH WITH TOMATO SAUCE

2 pkg. frozen fish fillets, partially thawed
2 tbsp. minced onion
1 clove of garlic, minced
1 tbsp. butter
2 8-oz. cans tomato sauce
1 tsp. sugar
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 tbsp. lemon juice
Chopped parsley (opt.)

Cut fish into six portions; arrange in greased, shallow baking dish. Saute onion and garlic in butter until tender and transparent; add tomato sauce, sugar, Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice. Simmer for five minutes; pour over fish. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes; sprinkle with chopped parsley. Yield: six servings

Try these with fish

HOT SLAW RELISH

Small-size version of a favorite recipe.

3 tablespoons packed light brown sugar
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 tablespoons corn oil
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon celery seed
4 cups packed shredded green cabbage

In a 10-inch skillet over low heat stir together all the ingredients except the cabbage; add cabbage and mix well. Cover and simmer, stirring a few times, until tender — 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

CUCUMBER SAUCE

It features sour cream.

1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon prepared white horseradish
1/2 cup peeled minced cucumber
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon white pepper
1 tablespoon minced fresh chives

Shortly before serving mix together all the ingredients; cover and refrigerate. Makes about 1 1/2 cups. (If cucumber has large seeds, cut in half lengthwise and scoop out seeds before mincing remaining cucumber; if seeds are small they need not be removed.)

Food's More Than Something To Gulp

By Virginia Knauer
Special Assistant to the President

Office of Consumer Affairs
Department of Health, Education and Welfare

Are your hands quicker than your eyes?

Do you grab a can or box of food off the grocer's shelf without giving your eyes time to read the label? Or just barely give your eyes time to read the price?

This week when you do your grocery shopping, slow down. Take time to read labels. I think you'll find some interesting information has been added to the labels of many foods.

If you have been reading labels recently, you know I'm referring to the new nutrition labeling that some food companies are using. By 1975, more foods will have nutrition labeling either because of some regulations of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) or—I'm pleased to say—consumer demand.

Why should you take time to read the nutrition labels? I personally read them:

- To find out how many calories are in each serving of the food;
- To compare the nutrition content of different kinds of food, to find better nutrition for my food dollar;
- To aid me in planning nutritionally balanced meals;
- To identify foods that are high in certain nutrients that I need or should avoid.

The labels don't tell you everything you need to know about food. For one thing, there is a limited amount of space on boxes and can or jar wrappers. Also, a supermarket is not a library where you pull "books" off the shelf to do your homework about nutrition.

You can do your homework at home—or at your public library — by finding and reading books and magazine articles about nutrition. But so much has been written about nutrition, it is easy to get confused. The Federal Government has two basic booklets about nutrition available free: Food Is More Than Just Something To Eat and The New Look in Food Labels. Send your request for either one (or both) to Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Tube watchers may be interested in a 10-part series about nutrition that will be broadcast by some NBC-affiliated television stations, starting this spring. Check local TV schedules for the program called "Nutrition for Today," or call or write the NBC station in your area for its schedule of this series.

SOUTHERN SANDWICHES

Preserves and nuts taste good with ham.

8-ounce package cream cheese
½ cup Concord grape preserves
¼ cup finely chopped toasted pecans
½ pound thinly sliced ham
16 slices whole-wheat bread

Soften cream cheese and mix thoroughly with preserves and nuts. Toast bread if desired; arrange ham on 8 slices of the bread; spread cheese mixture on remaining 8 slices bread and place these, cheese side down, over ham. Cut each sandwich into 2 triangles. Makes 8 servings.

REGINA VAN AALTEN BENENSON'S BOTERKOEK

A Dutch family recipe contributed, via her daughter, by a great cook now living in Lexington, Ky.

1 cup butter
¾ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg, separated
1 rounded tablespoon sour cream
1¾ cups unsifted flour
2-3rds cup ginger marmalade

Butter and flour a baking pan (about 11 by 7 by 1½ inches). In a medium mixing bowl with a wooden spoon, cream butter and sugar; thoroughly stir in egg yolk and sour cream. With your hands, gradually work in the flour, scraping bowl with a spatula at end of mixing and rounding dough into a ball — it will be very soft. Cover tightly and freeze until firm. Cut into quarters; work with ¼ at a time, keeping remainder refrigerated. Pinch off small pieces of a ¼ portion and soften slightly with fingers; pat pieces, as you pinch them off, to cover half of bottom and ½-inch up half of sides of prepared pan; cover remaining half of pan with another ¼ portion of the dough; smooth. Spread with marmalade. Using the same method, pat remaining 2 portions of dough over the marmalade (but not up sides of pan) and smooth. Pour the unbeaten egg white over the top and spread evenly; pour off excess egg white. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until golden-brown — 30 minutes. Cool. Loosen edges. Cut into diamond shapes.

POSTMAN FINDS NEW COMPOST

BRADFORD, England (AP) — A Bradford postman decided to save time on his morning rounds by burying part of the mail in his back garden, a magistrate's court was told. The prosecutor said the letters seemed to have formed a "new type of compost."

Double Recipe

It takes time to make a good pot of chili, so it makes sense to double the recipe, using half now and popping the rest in the freezer.

And that holds true for other dishes as well, casseroles, stews, spaghetti sauce, for example. Simply cook according to the recipe, cool thoroughly at room temperature, and store in an air-tight container, leaving room for expansion at the top if the dish contains liquid.

5 run in race for collector

SCOTT CITY-- Five candidates are running for collector and nine are seeking seats on the Board of Aldermen in the April 2 general election.

Candidates for a nine-month unexpired term as collector are Mary Weisenborn, Fern Arnold, Virginia Richardson, Bonnie Raines and Linda Davis.

Four aldermen will be chosen for terms of two years each.

In ward one, incumbent Alderman E. Dale Crites faces opposition from Tom Bellis.

In ward two, incumbent John Schlenker will be running against Richard Hink, Lawrence Ward and John Josharek.

Lester MeKee is unopposed in his bid for alderman from ward three.

In ward four, incumbent William Anderle is opposed by E. C. Tyler.

Voting precincts for ward one will be in the Illmo- Scott City High School. Wards two, three and four will vote in the city hall.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

The breath of life

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am wondering about the right and wrong techniques of mouth-to-mouth respiration — and what the dangers are when done wrong?

I am elderly. I had been listening to a talk attentively and under tension for one long hour. When I was standing upright after that I passed out.

When I soon became semi-conscious someone near me raised my head, pinched my nose shut tightly and pushed my lower jaw down tightly and began mouth-to-mouth respiration. It stopped my breath. It seemed like I was in torture. I pulled away and blacked out again. When I became conscious again my tongue got thick and my lower jaw was so stiff I could hardly answer questions.

When should mouth-to-mouth respiration be given and how?

DEAR READER — I would imagine that mouth-to-mouth respiration would be very uncomfortable if you were breathing normally on your own.

Artificial respiration should be given when the breathing has stopped. If the breathing is very shallow and infrequent it might be difficult to be sure that a person is still breathing. If there is any doubt then one can suspect that respiration is not adequate and it would probably be better to do it than not do it. Respiration does stop in some cases during a heart attack, a stroke, or other medical problems.

Properly done, the mouth is opened. A trained person might be sure that the tongue hasn't fallen back into the throat blocking the air passages or, if possible, see that food is not lodged in the windpipe.

The victim's head is tilted back. The nose is closed or pinched shut and the person giving the artificial respiration puts his mouth over the victim's and exhales into the mouth. Obviously, if the nose is not closed the air simply rushes out the nose and not into the lungs. Also, the mouth has to have a tight enough fit not to lose air. If the windpipe is not obstructed the exhaled air goes into the victim's lungs. The chest should expand as it does with normal breathing.

Next, the mouth is removed and the victim naturally exhales. Then the procedure is repeated so that the person giving the respiration exhales each breath into the victim's mouth. Basically each time the donor exhales his breath goes into the victim's lungs and when he takes his mouth off to get a new breath the victim is releasing the air from his lungs.

Fortunately, respiration resumes normally in many people after a few breaths this way. If it doesn't then the process is continued until medical help can be obtained.

A handy little book on artificial respiration and other emergency first aid is "Save Your Child's Life!" by David Hendin. For your copy send one dollar plus 25 cents for postage and handling to "Save Your Child's Life!" in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10022.

The danger in giving artificial respiration is minimal indeed. The danger is in failing to give it when needed. If the procedure is continued for a relatively long period of time some residual soreness of the jaw might occur and your mouth might not feel normal.

If you had a simple faint then you might not have needed artificial respiration but the only people who would know would be those present at the time and able to observe your breathing pattern.

When an adult is giving artificial respiration to a young child, then it is often possible and best, to cover both the nose and the mouth of the child with the adult's mouth.

Dr. Lamb welcomes questions from his readers, but because of the volume of mail he cannot answer personally. Questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns. Write to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

New study opens to students

CAPE GIRARDEAU-- Southeast Missouri State University students who find they can't satisfy their objectives through an established program at the university are increasingly turning to the interdisciplinary studies major, now barely a year old.

Dr. Donald Froemsdorf, chairman of the university's Division of Science and Mathematics, is credited with introducing the idea on the Southeast Missouri State campus.

"It isn't original with us," he said, "but has been done in small liberal arts colleges where the student contracted his plan of study from a list of courses offered."

When the division chairman first mentioned the prospect in a meeting with the heads of the science and math departments, it was greeted with enthusiasm.

"I felt that the program would be beneficial for students in our departments who were interested in, for example, environmental studies and oceanography," he recounted. "We worked on it for about a year before it was then accepted and presented to university officials."

The interdisciplinary studies major was eventually adopted on a university- wide basis and now encompasses several areas. The most popular so far are social work, journalism, and conservation, according to Dr. David Strand, dean of the university and officer in charge of administering the program.

"Currently there are over 50 students working with a faculty committee," Dr. Strand noted, "and I usually have several applications on hand that are in some state of being processed."

He added, "There is no limit to the program other than the imagination and interests of the student involved."

The basic requirements for a bachelor of science degree with a major in interdisciplinary studies are 14 hours of communications and humanities, 10 hours of natural and mathematical sciences, 14 hours of social studies, and four hours of physical education.

In addition, as contracted by the students, the work must be done in two or more departments and usually can include no more than 30 hours from any one discipline. A major or minor as defined in other curricula is not required.

A student interested in this program writes a letter to Dr. Strand stating the area of emphasis he wants to study. He also gives the names of two or three faculty members who can assist in planning his program.

Dr. Strand contacts the faculty members to determine their willingness to serve on the student's committee. This done, the student meets with his committee, discusses the specific courses that will constitute his program or "contract," and submits the resulting decision to Dr. Strand for approval.

Dr. Strand emphasized that "one of the criteria for graduation with a major in interdisciplinary studies is a 2.5 GPA (2.0 is the standard for other majors), so we're dealing with a better than average student."

Teri Thompson, a freshman from Cape Girardeau, plans to enter social work and deal primarily with children.

"With this program," she said, "I feel in touch with what I'm interested in. I started as a major in child psychology but kept losing touch with my purpose in college."

A junior college transfer from Mineral Area College in Flat River, Dennis Rogers of Farmington heard of the program from a friend.

"I planned to go into sociology but didn't want to take the foreign language requirement. I find the courses I take relate to what I plan to be doing," said Rogers.

Rogers wants to enter the Volunteers in Service to America corps after graduation and go from there into some form of social work.

Journalism is the major interest of Mark Bliss, a sophomore from Kirkwood. "I was in history until the end of last semester," explained Bliss, "but I now have a minor in political science and plan to go into newspaper work with my journalism major."

None of the students expressed any major concern about being able to find a job with their unusual degree.

What's the law?

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Jake and Barney were two vicious dogs who frequently terrorized pedestrians using the public streets. The barked, snarled and even bit one or two victims. Despite several warnings to their owners, the dogs were permitted to continue their delinquent ways unabated.

When they bit Mr. Jones, however, instead of biting them back, which was his first inclination, Mr. Jones sued the city for his injuries.

"Under the law," argued Mr. Jones in court, "a city is responsible for maintaining its sidewalks in a safe condition. With Jake and Barney permitted to roam them, no sidewalk was safe."

"He's got it all wrong," responded a municipal official. "A city's obligation to keep its sidewalks safe refers to keeping them in good repair. Since a vicious dog is not a defect in the sidewalk and since a defective sidewalk can't be vicious, Mr. Jones can't claim that he was injured as the result of an unsafe sidewalk."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the city liable for maintaining a vicious sidewalk?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that where impoundable vicious dogs are permitted to prowl city sidewalks with the knowledge of city officials who also know that their owners have failed or refused to control or confine them, the city can be held liable to a person bitten by such a dog for failing to maintain its public sidewalks in a safe condition.

This decision, noted the judge, refers only to dangerous conditions to human beings created by nonhuman animals and not by other human beings. In other words, concluded the judge in effect, a city cannot be held liable for failing to maintain its sidewalks in a safe condition where, for example, a drunk bumps into another and causes injury.
